Radio Hanoi Says US Bombers Are Back Near Capital;Report 3 Down

Other Planes Keep The Pressure On In South

SAIGON (AP) — Radio Hanoi said U. S. fighter-bombers returned Saturday to the area of North Vietnam's capital, where they had staged five raids within a week. The station reported, without confirmation in Saigon, that three were shot down.

B52 Stratofortresses helped lighter craft keep aerial pressure on the enemy in South Vietnam. The eight-engine jets staged four strikes against Communist troops and camps ranging from 30 to 350 miles north of Saigon.

In the ground war U. S. Marines pressed a new drive, called Operation Beaver Cage, along the coast 25 miles south of their headquarters at Da Nang. Initial results of the sweep, launched with a landing from boats and helicopters, Friday, seemed slight. A spokesman said two Communists were killed, without Marine casualties.

With only scattered contacts reported by the U.S. Command in this and 17 other operations, the air offensive claimed prime attention.

Rear Adm. Vincent P. DePoix, taking command of the U.S. Navy's Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf, said the bombing of North Vietnam will be stepped up as northeast monsoon storms give way to a six-month season of generally clear skies.

But he warned "it can cost us" whether the weather is fair or foul.

During raids Friday just outside Hanoi, the Americans attacked through intense opposition by MIGs, missiles and flak. U.S. officers said Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs engaged in at least six dogfights with the Soviet-built jet fighters and shot down two.

These were the 43rd and 44th MIGs reported destroyed against the loss of 12 American planes in aerial combat since April 1965.

The U.S. Command made no mention of any American losses in 98 missions Friday. Radio Hanoi claimed four planes were shot down.

Go-Ahead For New Planes Is Given

Two Prototypes Of Supersonic Jet Airliner Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson approved Saturday the next giant step toward a supersonic jet airliner — the building of two prototypes of the SST designed to carry 300 passengers at 1,800 miles an hour.

The announcement at the White House put the United States squarely back in the competition for air superiority against the British-French and Soviet transport planes now under construction.

Johnson said in a statement he would ask Congress for an additional $198 million for the construction of the prototypes during fiscal 1968. There is some $250 million now available for that purpose, bringing to some $450 million the funds to be spent during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Alan S. Boyd, secretary of transportation, said government expenditure of $1.144 billion would be required to build the prototypes and test them through the first hundred hours of flying.

The present aim is to have the planes in the air by mid 1970 and in commercial service by 1974.

Johnson authorized Boyd to sign contracts for the prototype construction. Boyd told newsmen at a White House briefing he expects representatives of the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., and General Electric Co. to sign contracts this week.

Boeing, which will build the airframes, and General Electric, which will supply the eight engines for the two planes, won the design competition last December after an 18-month competition that cost $220 million.

In Seattle, William M. Allen, president of Boeing, said a workforce of 9,000 persons will be assigned to the program at the peak of construction of the two pioneering planes. He said 1,700 now are assigned to the program.

Boyd told newsmen that the airlines have ordered 113 of the supersonic transport planes which are intended primarily for longhaul operations. He said 300 are expected to be made and sold adding the figure is based on the most pessimistic reading of prospects.

The Soviet government and a French-British combine each is expected to have supersonic transports in commercial serv-

Two Vessels Are Missing

Intense Storm Continues To Imperil Fishing Boats

BOSTON (AP) — An intense storm that lashed the Atlantic with hurricane force winds continued with only slightly less fury Saturday after it left two fishing vessels missing with 12 persons aboard.

Rescue ships and a U.S. Coast Guard plane raced out from New England and Nova Scotia to help the fishing vessels trapped and battered by the raging storm that was gradually easing.

The 4,141-ton Liberian freighter Costa Rican Trader was in danger of breaking up after it went aground on rocks near the harbor approaches to Halifax, Nova Scotia. The crew made it to safety.

The six-man crew of the 94-foot lobster boat Deep Water, out of New Bedford, was missing after the vessel vanished about 100 miles south of Martha Vineyard Island Friday.

The fishing vessel Elizabeth N., out of New Bedford with a crew of six, was reported missing Saturday. A spokesman for the New Bedford Seafood Producers Association said it was last seen Thursday noon off Nantucket Island.

Winds were recorded at up to 50 miles per hour Saturday, churning up waves 20 feet high.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said the storm center, some 400 to 500 miles southeast of Nantucket Island, was moving slowly eastward. But the storm effects, it said, would be felt through Sunday.

The Coast Guard butter Acushnet, battled for hours to attach a two line to the 102-foot Boston trawler Plymouth with five men aboard about 75 miles east-southeast of Nantucket and began to tow it to shore.

A Coast Guard plane dropped a pump to the Plymouth earlier, then flew on to the New Bedford fishing vessel Noreen, also in trouble off Nantucket. The Noreen, with a crew of 11, controlled the flooding and apparently was out of danger.

Five persons reported missing off the coast of Nova Scotia — four aboard the fishing vessel Lena G. and one in a canoe — were found Saturday.

The Lena G. was taken ashore at Victoria Beach in Nova Scotia and the 26-year-old canoe rider rider was found on a tiny island in nearby St. Margaret's Bay.

Nova Scotia rescue ships were standing by three other fishing vessels that had called for help after the storm struck. The vessels were not believed to be in danger of sinking.

SPEAKER — Thomas F. Eagleton, Lieutenant Governor of Missouri, will be the guest speaker at the United Fund Awards Banquet to be held May 10 at 6:30 p.m. at the Smith-Cotton cafeteria. Before being elected lieutenant governor in 1964, he had served as Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, and Attorney General of Missouri in 1960. He is a graduate of Amhurst College and Harvard Law School, both cum laude.

Button Show In Sedalia At Hotel

Open this afternoon from 1 to 4 o'clock will be the Missouri Button Show being held this weekend in Sedalia in the Ambassador Room of Bothwell Hotel. There is no admission charge and on display are 176 trays of buttons in the competitive show, 57 non-competitive and ten juniors. The buttons are in many classifications. Many are unusually beautiful and have fascinating historical stories of their origin.

The silver bowl for the most entries went to Miss Mary Florence Lawton, Osceola, president of the Missouri Button Society, who had 21 competitive trays and five non-competitive.

For outstanding entries small silver cups given this year. Mrs. Daniel Reed, Marshall, received the cup honoring Mrs. Glen Toalson; Mrs. Sam Ray, Liberty, received the cup in memory of Lillian Smith Albert ;and in the Junior division, Cindy Price, Kansas City, received the cup honoring Mrs. Ben Nealy, past national junior president.

Judges were Mrs. Eunice Quinn, Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Hazel Strong, Hutchison, Kan., who stated that there were so many exceptionally fine entries this year they had great difficulty selecting the winners.

Dealers attending are Mrs. Viviane Ertell of the state of California; Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Quinn, Madison, Wis.; and Mrs. Frances Menaugh, of the Sedalia area.

The banquet was held Saturda night at the hotel at which Mrs. Ertell showed a film of one of her trips around the world in search of buttons.

Favors at the banquet were buttons made from marbles, which are very lovely and may be worn on a ribbon around the neck, made into earrings or an a charm bracelet. The marbles, which come in many colors, are fried then poured on ice which give them a cracked design. They are then mounted. Other favors were little green and gold felt cases to carry buttons in and also the button measure, which is like a card with three holes, to measure diminutive, small and large buttons.

Mrs. R. C. Haynes, Marshall, and Mrs. R. H. Rexroad are co-chairmen of the show.

Former FDR Agriculture Head Killed

DELPHI, Ind. (AP) — Claude Raymond Wickard, 74, an Indiana hog farmer who was secretary of agriculture during World War II, was killed Saturday in an automobile-truck collision.

His car was hit broadside by a truck loaded with crushed stone at a junction of U.S. 421 and Indiana 18 about three miles south of here.

State police said Wickard, driving alone, was traveling west on the state road, apparently disregarded a stop sign and his car was struck by the truck driven by James A. Haynes Jr., 36, Dayton, Ind.

Wickard became secretary of agriculture under President Franklin D. Roosevelt in September, 1940, after the start of World War II but before the United States became involved in it. He held the post until 1945.

He subsequently served as administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration under President Harry S. Truman from 1945 to 1953.

He began his federal government work in 1933, first as assistant chief of the corn and hog

The Highway Patrol identified the dead child as Alethia Elizabeth Parker, age four months. She was a passenger in a car driven by her grandfather, A. B. Parker of St. Paul, Minn.

Parker, the dead child's mother, Clydean Parker, 19, of St. Paul, and another passenger in their car, Nada Dorain, 43, of Oak Clair, Wisc., were hospitalized.

Also injured was the driver of the other car, Forest Craven Hubbard of Kansas City, Mo.

According To Spanish Officials

Flag-Burning Incident Is Indicative Of Penetration

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A flag-burning exercise against the U.S. role in Vietnam at the University of Madrid demonstrates a deep Communist penetration of Spain's student movement, Spanish officials said Saturday.

They blamed a handful of the 1,200 Americans enrolled in the university for sparking the demonstration Friday, but they added the hard-core Communists — some Spanish, some Latin Americans — used the Americans, some of whom had been circulating petitions on the campus against the war in Vietnam.

"The hard-core group, including the pro-Peking Communist student organization, was happy to hide behind the American students who started the anti-war petitions," one official said.

"Many activities carried out under a claimed quest for student freedom are actually directed by the Communist core among university students."

The officials expressed the belief that fewer than a score of the Americans studying at the university were actively engaged in either the American students' antiwar campaign or the more organized Spanish Student Committee Against the Vietnam War.

Student sources say there were 1,500 to 2,000 Spanish and Latin-American activists in the leftist student groups, among them the Student Organization for a Free Student Union.

Officials said they had detected extremely heavy infiltration of Communists and pro-Communists into the student union group and the antiwar groups in the past few months.

"American student intervention against U.S. policies in Vietnam handed the Spanish and Latin-American leftists at the university a ready-made platform to exploit," said one university official.

"Before it ended in the flag-burning episode Friday, the extent of extremist penetration became evident. The hard-core groups were no longer pretending to campaign for student freedom or a free student organization. The slogans they chanted and painted on banners came right out of the Marxist textbooks."

Downtown Days Set For Sedalia

The second in a series of major promotions by the Downtown Association will occur in Sedalia Monday and Tuesday, as outlined by the following committee of merchants: Virgil Dean, Neil Chapman, Jim Edwards and P. J. Hedderich.

The current one is stressing price appeal in the stores as well as registration accomodations made available to all shoppers. Allocation of $225 by the association has been made for distribution which will be determined by selection on Wednesday morning at the Chamber of Commerce office of names of registrants who visit the stores Monday and Tuesday.

Case Will Not Join In Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., declined Saturday to join New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in backing the candidacy of Michigan Gov. George Romney for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination.

Case's statement that he wants to "keep the book open just a little bit longer" seems to emphasize the reluctance of moderate Republicans to get behind a single candidate at this point. The Vietnam war appears as a factor in this irresolution among the intraparty foes of Republican conservatives.

Rockefeller has urged the moderates to unite for Romney to prevent the "other side" — represented in this case by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon — from winning the nomination next year.

Case said he recognizes Rockefeller's concern that if "we get a dozen or so moderates all competing some conservative person would perhaps be able to make an across-the-board appeal to the people (and) with less than a majority, but still more than any other individual, run away with the prize."

It is his opinion, Case said, the moderates are not risking very much by not making a decision now on a candidate.

"In fact," he said, "I think we'd be risking a good deal if we did because we have the desire to have a good look and to turn over and over and look upside down and inside out at the qualificatins of the number of people that are possible candidate before we make up our minds."

Case gave his views in a television interview recorded for broadcast in New Jersey.

The moderates' current inability to get together on any one candidate has been illustrated by the plugs Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois has put in recently for Rockefeller as a potential nominee.

The New York governor has been saying over and over again that "under no circumstances" will he be a candidate. But Percy's contention that Rockefeller is the best-qualified man in the party to be president indicates belief among some moderates that the governor would be available in a convention stalemate.

GOP Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland has pledged he will make every effort to get Rockefeller into the race.

Case said the selection of a Republican candidate is especially important because of the Vietnam war.

Telemobile Exhibit To Sedalia

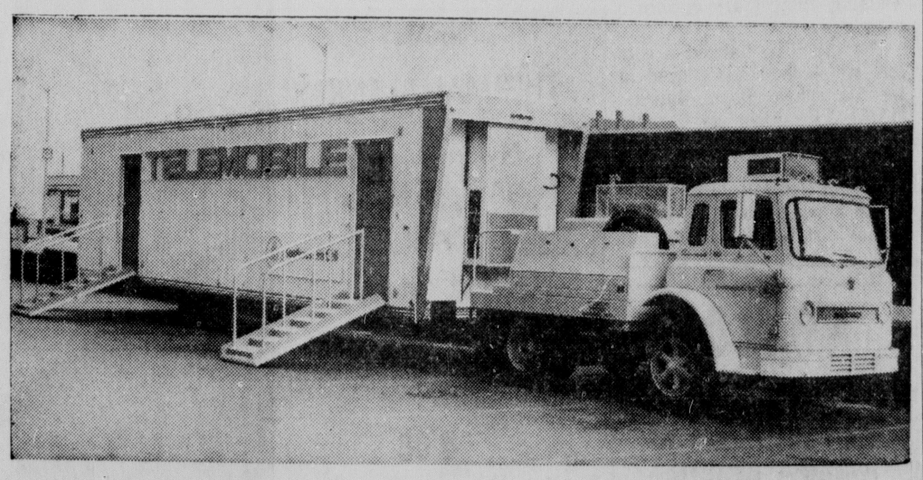
A display room 40 feet long and eight feet wide will roll into Sedalia Tuesday to show and tell the story of telephone service from Alexander Graham Bell's first distant-talking gadget to the laser communications of tomorrow.

"Telemobile," an exhibit trailer designed and built by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, is now making a tour of the state. It will be open to the public for free inspection on Ohio west of the Court House from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Exhibits housed in the big trailer tell the story of the telephone industry from its beginning. Displays are in three sections. The first shows early telephones, including a model of Bell's first instrument, and how their development led to a nationwide network. The second features telephone services today and shows methods used to transmit calls. The third previews telephone service of the future, including demonstrations of the laser and Picturephone service.



TELEMOBILE, Southwestern Bell's mobile display room, will be on free public exhibit on Ohio west of the Court House from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Tuesday.

It takes about 15 minutes for a visitor to see and hear the story, according to Southwestern Bell Manager James Mayes.

"We hope everyone in Sedalia who can will come to see the Telemobile displays," Mayes said.

Huge Waves Endanger Sea Vessels

BOSTON (AP)—Huge waves churned by 45-mile-an-hour winds imperiled shipping throughout the Atlantic seaboard Friday, sinking two fishing boats, one with the loss of a six-man crew.

"It was the worst sea I've seen in 23 years," said Capt. Floyd Hansen of the fishing trawler the Mockingbird. Her five crewmen were rescued shortly after the trawler sank 100 miles east of Cape May, N.J., at daybreak.

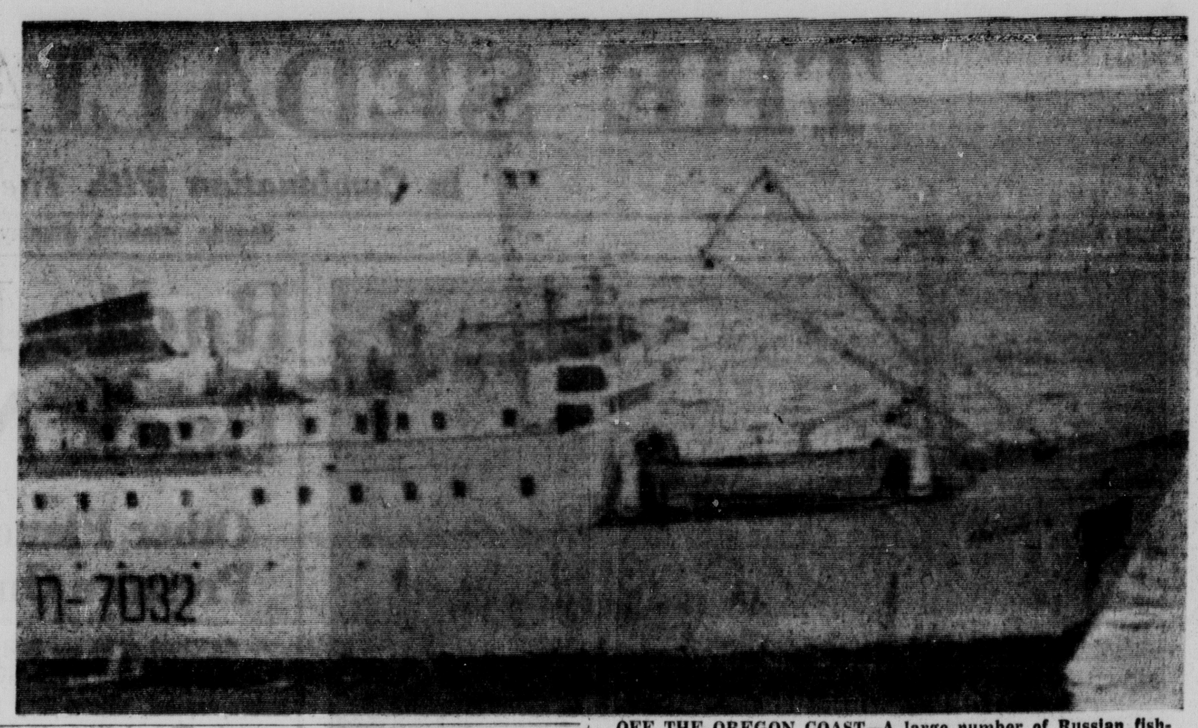
The 94-foot lobster boat Deep Water, out of New Bedford, Mass., vanished about 100 miles south of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., as the Coast Guard worked desperately to get assistance to her.

The possibility of finding any of the crew alive was "not very good," a Coast Guard spokesman said, because of the freezing cold water and waves running 25 to 30 feet.

A third fishing vessel, the 102-foot trawler Plymouth, was feared lost early today, but later was found by the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet.

Crewmen of the Mockingbird, a 90-foot trawler out of Hampton, Va., were hauled from the water by the Coast Guard cutter Sassafras. The men were reported in good condition.

Coast Guard planes struggled vainly against high winds and heavy snow to find some trace of the Deep Water. She had radioed she was taking water and was "in immediate danger." The message said her wheelhouse was smashed and her engines were out of order.



OFF THE OREGON COAST—A large number of Russian fishing vessels showed up again off the Oregon coast this week. The Russian boat Kalisto (foreground) is surrounded by its fleet of trawlers (on horizon).

Reds Accused Of Preventing Peace

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger today accused the Soviet Union of preventing true peace in Europe by insisting that West Germany accept the consequences of World War II.

"We will seek unweariedly for ways and means to reach an understanding with the Soviet Union," he said. "Unfortunately a corresponding readiness on the Soviet side is hardly perceptible."

Kiesinger spoke before a congress of German refugee groups from areas now under Soviet and Polish rule: Prussia, Pomerania, Brandenburg and Silesia.

section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. He subsequently became chief of the section, and was undersecretary of the Agriculture Department before being named to the Cabinet.

Wickard was born Feb. 28, 1893, on a Carroll County, Indiana, farm near Camden which his family had owned for 50 years previously. He maintained the farm throughout his government service.

He was graduated from Purdue University in 1915 and three years later was married to the former Louise Eckert of Logansport, Ind., who died several months ago.

In 1927 Wickard was chosen "Master Farmer of Indiana" for his improved farming and stock feeding programs.

His political career began with his election as a state senator in 1933. This, combined with his farming ability, led to his appointment as undersecretary of agriculture and later to secretary when the late Henry A. Wallace vacated the post to become vice president.

During World War II the Agriculture Department functioned under a split authority with the War Foods Administration. Wickard administered the regular department programs.

Before the Pearl Harbor attack that put the United States into the war, he called for an increased farm output and afterward his wartime slogan was "Food Will Win the War and Write the Peace."

After leaving Washington he continued operation of his Indiana farm, but in 1956 ran as the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, losing to Republican incumbent Homer E. Capehart.

He was active in the 1960 presidential campaign, boosting the Democratic farm program to farmers nationwide. In June, 1963, he was named a member of the Purdue University Board of Trustees.

ice in 1971, well ahead of the United States.

It was believed the Russians were trying to have their TU114 at next month's Paris air show but informed sources said two weeks ago it would not be ready.

They said, however, the Soviet aircraft factory, named for designer Andrei N. Tupolev, is hoping to get the plane into the air for a test flight by late this year.

This would be ahead of the French-British Concorde, a plane it closely resembles. The test flight date for the Concorde is next Feb. 28.

The French-British Concorde is expected to be about 20 per cent slower than the projected U.S. SST and have a 50 per cent lower passenger capacity.

● Accidents

A bride and groom of only three hours ended their wedding trip in Bothwell Hospital Friday night, the bride being admitted for observation, while the groom was released after treatment. Their car, a 1960 Chevrolet, was demolished.

The couple, David J. Howard, 22, and the bride, the former Miss Barbara Jane Ranz, 21, formerly of Columbia, were married at Leeton about 7:30 p.m. Friday and their car was wrecked on the Walk curve, 11 miles north of Sedalia on Highway 65, about 10:15.

They were driving north and missed the sharp curve. The car ran off the left side of the road, struck a ditch and an embankment and flipped over on its top. The car was towed to Sedalia by the Parks wrecker.

Mrs. Howard suffered a laceration of the right thigh and lower right leg, fractured nose and laceration on the nose, and possible fracture of the skull. She was treated by Dr. John Lamy and admitted to the hospital for further observation.

Howard suffered laceration of the right hand, slight cut on the scalp, abrasions of the right and left knees, sprained left ankle, and bruises of the left elbow. He was also treated by Dr. Lamy and dismissed.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were brought to Sedalia by a passing motorist who stopped Deputy Sheriff Orval Lewis at the city limits and notified him of the accident, and he in turn relayed the information to the county jail from where the State Highway Patrol was notified.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were enroute to Boonville.

RHEUMATIC FEVER IS ALWAYS DANGEROUS

It is now believed that rheumatic fever is caused by the same streptococcus germ which causes a strep throat. It can make a child or adult tired and have painful joints or abdominal tenderness.

More serious results occur. The illness inflames the heart's mitral valve. Scar tissue can form and permanent damage may result. Worse yet, a child does not grow out of this and can get rheumatic fever over and over again. Physicians know these dangers, but can protect you most if they are consulted about any sore throat as soon as possible.

CASH REWARD FOR OLD PHOTOS

I will consider paying a cash reward for the uncovering of suitable photographs of volunteer firemen in Sedalia (prior to 1887) . . . or of the fire houses and apparatus of that day. So far I have been unable to locate any such photos, though the possibility of them existing is good. I want such pictures for copying and preservation as a part of the fire department history which I am compiling.

In addition, I am still seeking any photos, on a loan basis, of latter-day firemen, fires, fire houses, engines and such.

I am also seeking photos of such early day volunteer fire chiefs as: R. W. Baker, John Gallie, W. J. Tucker, W. C. Weiler, E. H. Renish, and Fred Wilson.

I would like to locate photos of the old number one (two story) station at 4th and Montgomery, a view of the east side of city hall, prior to 1887 . . . and of the steam fire engines of Sedalia.

Constantine To Appear In Public

ATHENS (AP) — Greece is enjoying a weekend of Orthodox Easter celebrations during which King Constantine is to make his first public appearance and tour of military camps since the armed forces took over the nation eight days ago.

The king and members of the new government are to mark the beginning of Easter with a religious service in a square before this capital's main cathedral. At midnight, the king traditionally proclaims, "Christ is risen."

Constantine visits military camps Sunday to crack red eggs with the soldiers, a custom that in the past has given the king a chance to fraternize with the armed forces.

Whether the same kind of public association with the troops would occur Sunday remained to be seen. His statement of qualified acceptance of the military regime Wednesday included a call for a quick return to parliamentary government.

Since the coup, Constantine has been in seclusion at Tatoi, his country estate 16 miles from Athens.

No curfew was in force and Greeks could leave the country with a special permit. There was no censorship on outgoing cables and telephone calls, although foreign publications were barred. Local newspapers and magazines were heavily censored.

Brig Gen. Stylianos Patacos, the interior minister, said 6,509 persons were arrested following the coup.

Patacos said 11,328 have been released and 2,534 were being kept on the island of Yioura. He gave no details about the remainder, except to say that he discussed ths condition of all 5,181 detainees with King Constantine Friday night.

'Vulture' Tag For American General

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda branded Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, today as a "vulture" and said his speeches in the United States this week were attempts to disguise what it called "the disgrace of America."

The official Soviet Communist party paper said: "These sudden guest performances are but evidence of the deadlock of the policy of aggression."

"The manifestations of carrion vultures are another attempt to fool the Americans and to force them to reconcile themselves to the disgrace of America," Pravda commentator Viktor Mayevsky wrote.

North Korean Killed In Predawn Action

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A North Korean was killed and two others were wounded and captured in an encounter in the 2nd U. S. Infantry Division area near the Koren truce line, the U.N. Command said.

The incident, sixth known fatal clash along the truce line this month, occurred about two miles south of the military demarcation line.

Ryun Celebrates By Pacing Kansas To A Medley Record

Record-Splattering End To Drake Relays

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Jim Ryun, world's greatest middle distance runner, celebrated his 20th birthday by anchoring Kansas to a world distance medley relay record with a 3:55.6 mile in a record-splattering windup of the 58th Drake Relays Saturday.

The Kansas quartet, picked up tremendously by Ryun's fifth best mile of his sensational career, was clocked in 9:33.8. That knocked two-tenths of a second off the accepted world, American and national collegiate record of 9:34.0 by UCLA in 1965.

In the 20-event closing session under murky skies, a capacity Drake Stadium crowd of 18,000 saw nine meet records smashed, and one tied, producing a two-day total of 12 Drake marks.

Four of six returning champions retained individual titles among the original field of more than 1,100 athletes from 94 universities and colleges. They included double winners Randy Matson of Texas A&M and distance star Van Nelson of St. Cloud (Minn.) State.

The other successful defending champions were pole-vaulter Fred Burton of Wichita State, completing a sweep of Texxas, Kansas and Drake Relays, and 440-yard hurdler Tony Pickett of Houston.

Michigan State and Kansas dominated the eight university relays events contested over both days, each taking two baton titles.

Texas Southern copped three of the six college division relays titles, setting Drake records in two.

Matson, who claims the world record at 71-5½, won the shot put with a meet record of 68-8¼ to become the first athlete to sweep two events over three straight Drake years.

Ryun sped the final quarter of his anchor mile in 54.1 to win by 1100 yards over Georgetown's Bob Zieminski. Georgetown was disqualified for second because the second runner left his lane.

It was the second straight day Ryun turned in a sub four-minute mile in relay competition. The world mile record-holder at 3:511.3 Friday ran a 3:59.1 anchor mile for Kansas' winning four-mile relay team.

Damascus Is Favored In Derby Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby will be run for the 93rd time Saturday at rambling Churchill Downs with highly favored Damascus giving America's premier horse race old but familiar overtones.

The well-built son of Sword Dancer-Kerala, owned by Virginia's Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft, will carry the white and red dot silks made famous by such Kentucky Derby winners as Gallant Fox in 1930, Omaha in 1935 and Johnstown in 1939 when the Belair Stud was all-powerful.

Mrs. Bancroft, a comparatively newcomer to the sport, kept the silks when the Belair Stud was dispersed several years ago following the death of her brother, William Woodward Jr. The colors were originated by William Woodward Sr., founder of the racing dynasty and whose horses were trained by racing immortal Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons.

Despite Damascus' imposing career record of six victories and two seconds with a 3-1 performance this year, Churchill Downs officials look for a field of 15 3-year-olds. If that many start, the value of the Derby will be $153,700 with victory at the end of the 1¼ miles bringing $111,200 to the fortunate owner. Second place will be worth $25,000, third $12,500 and fourth $5,000. The trainer and jockey of the winner each will receive 10 per cent of the first place purse.

Picking the second choice for a race, which but for the presence of Damascus would figure to be wide open, is a diffiult task. But that position in the betting likely will go to Louis Rowan's Ruken, little-known at the start of the year. But he qualified for the first of the Triple Crown series, which also includes the Preakness and Belmont Stakes, by winning the Santa Anita Derby and then whipping Successor in a seven-furlong warm-up at Keeneland.

With the possibility that the one-mile of Tuesday's Derby Trial may cause a change of minds, the remainder of the field figures to include Successor, who had enough of an excuse in the Blue Grass to warrant another chance in the opinion of trainer Eddie Neloy; Reason to Hail, winner of the California Derby; Canadian-owned Cool Reception; Ask the Fare; Puerto Rico-owned Dawn Glory, a starter by popular request of his home land fans; Blue Grass Stakes winner Diplomat Way; Tumble Wind, Gentleman James, Proud Clarion, Lightning Orphan, Dr. Isby, Barbs Delight, Free Tumble and possibly Betemight and Second Encounter.

Willie Shoemaker, winner of three previous Derbies in 15 rides, will be aboard Damascus. He spotted the colt last year when he rode him to victory in the Remsen and never has backed down in his opinion. Shoe last won in 1965 with Lucky Debonair. He also scored with Tomy Lee in 1959 and with Swaps in 1955.

Draft Choice Traded

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons announced Saturday the trading of a future draft choice to the St. Louis Cardinals for veteran quarterback Terry Nofsinger.

Geigel, Brown Make Defense

North American Tag Team Wrestling Crown On Line

The North American tag team wrestling crown will be put on the line here Tuesday when the rugged duo of Bob Geigel and Bob Brown make their defense in the Convention Hall ring.

Scheduled to oppose the power minded champions are Sonny Myers and Steve Bolas, a newly - formed alliance that could prove one of the most effective of the season.

Also set is a finish battle between hard-hitting Handsome Jack Donovan and the dangerous Plum, a masked heavy weight who has proved one of the roughest of the area grapplers in previous appearances here.

Should Donovan win, the Plum would be unmasked and his identity revealed. Should the Plum overpower husky Jack, Donovan will lose his golden locks in the center of the ring. That is the agreement the promoter exacted from the two maulers.

Also set is a scrap between two veterans wrestlers — Lee Henning and Tiny Mills. Henning will pit his 252 pounds against the 270 of the powerful Mills in a clash that will see two ring workmen with nearly 60 years of wrestling between them in action.

Myers and Bolas pose a serious challenge to the reigning N. A. champs. Myers, 238 - pounds, and Geigel have had some memorable matches, Myers trying diligently to set up the tough Texan for the Japanese sleeper.

With Bolas added to his team, Myers gains in speed and overall strength. Bolas is a gutty wrestler with a wide assortment of holds to call upon.

They'll need whatever breaks they can fashion against the champions, who lean heavily to a roughing offense and so far have been highly successful with it.

Tigers Win 5, Lose 5

One-Third Of S-C's Ball Games Called Due To Rain

Rains has been the name of the game for the Smith-Cotton baseball squad, as five out of the first 15 scheduled games have been canceled because of rain or soggy ground conditions. In the remaining ten games, the Tigers have won five and lost five.

This year's Tigers seem to move by leaps and bounds, but not always in the same direction. The season started with a heart-breaking loss to Columbia Hickman 4-3 in extra innings. Then the Bengals put together three fine ball games before losing one in a four-game sweep into Southwest Missouri. The squad shut out Joplin in both ends of a doubleheader by identical scores of 3-0, traveled to Springfield the next day and moved past the extremely tough Hillcrest squad 3-2, and then saw the overworked pitching staff battered for nine runs as they lost to the Glendale Falcons 9-6. Fighting hard in the losing effort was catcher Ray Murray, who collected the first S-C roundtripper for the season with a grand-slam.

The Tigers then came home to show off their new found power to the local crowd against Columbia Hickman again, but were surprisingly manhandled 7-1 and 4-0, as the pitching staff that had worked so well away from home was taged for 11 runs and upped their ERA from 2.2 to 3.1.

The next action was again at home, as the Tigers pulled off beautiful pitching again and defeated Northwest 3-0 in the state rain kept postponing the finals, sub-district semi-finals. While rain kept postponing the finals, the Tigers moved to North Kansas City and pounded the high-calibre squad 6-3.

Back home again, the Bengals went three innings with Oak Park before rain again called off a game. The Tigers seemed on the path to victory as they led 1-0 before the clouds opened up.

The sub-district finals were moved from Liberty Park to Centennial Park, and the Tigers met Eugene to try and qualify for further action in the state championships. Eugene, seeded as number two behind the Tigers, upset Smith-Cottton 5-3. Murray again came through with a long homerun in a losing effort.

Still in line for the Tigers is the completion of the conference schedule, a doubleheader with Lee's Summit, the Independence Tournament, and closing off the season, the Smith-CottonInvitational.

Connie Mack Meeting

Tennis Washed Out

COLUMBIA (AP) — Rain washed out the finish of a three-team Big Eight tennis meet Saturday, but Oklahoma State claimed two dual victories and Missouri one. Both teams clinched their victories Friday.

Oklahoma State defeated Missouri 6-1 and Nebraska 6-0. Missouri downed Nebraska 5-1.

Four doubles matches were scheduled for Saturday and two were completed before the rain came.

By D. Kelly Scruton

CASSIUS CLAY, Muhammad Ali or whatever one might want to call him — and I am guessing he's being called a lot of other names by people of his own race — certainly isn't doing his people any justice by his actions. What is rather amusing is the fact that it wasn't until recent years he decided to become a Black Muslim minister — that was after he registered for Selective Service by several years.

Just because he yells, "I will go to jail first—I will die for my religion," in the minds of a lot of people, including some of his "former" admirers, is not going to make him a martyr as he is hoping to become. His remarks and his actions are disgusting, sickening, disgraceful, not to mention distasteful.

It is just too bad that Clay has had some bad advice, from whom, we wonder. Personally, I don't think Clay is smart enough to pull this "draft dodging" like he has and he may be in a far worse condition than he realizes—not the $10,000 fine or five years' prison sentence which could be assessed against him—but the effects of bad advice which may cost him his fortune and which has already cost him his hard earned (maybe not so hard) laurels.

He has been stripped of his heavyweight boxing titles, and it is doubtful if he will ever again have the opportunity to enter the ring and win them back, if the World Boxing Association, New York Athletic Commission and other state athletic commissions refuse to permit him a license to fight.

He says his religious beliefs have cost him $5 million already, rather he said it has caused him to lose it, and says it is possible he'll lose $10 million more. I would say it is most likely if he's got more than $10-million, by the time he is through with his advisors, he'll be closer to being broke.

A former serviceman and an admirer of Clay's said Friday night, "I am greatly disappointed in Clay. I liked the guy, he, I considered one of us, but I am disappointed now. He could have, if he did not believe in war, gone into the service and most likely would have been used in special services to boost the morale of the servicemen, been an athletic instructor, or many other things in the services which did not have a, what you might say, a direct contact with war. He had a chance to be a Big Man, man, but that's over now."

I believe there are many more young men of his race who feel just like the fellow I talked to Friday night—it's all over now.

NATIONAL Golf Day has been officially recognized by Missouri with a proclamation by Governor Warren E. Hearnes, an ardent golfer himself, that the day will be Tuesday, May 30. In his proclamation Gov. Hearnes urges all golfers in his state to participate in this worthwhile venture by playing at least one round of golf.

Proceeds go to caddied scholarship funds, golf programs for the blind and amputees, junior golf, golf at veterans hospitals and Armed Forces installations, turf research and education, the PGA Benevolent, Educational and Relief Funds and various other golf projects.

This is not new in the United States, but is becoming more and more a designated Golf Day in state after state as golfers begin to "catch on" and with more and more public, private and country club courses beginning to participate.

The "target" score for contestants in the NGDT at their clubs and courses will best when 1966 PGA Champion Al Geiberger meets 1966 USGA Open Champion Billy Casper in the "Round of Champions."

Max Elbin, president of the PGA of America, which is sponsoring this 16th annual event, expressed his appreciation to Gov. Hearnes for his proclamation in Missouri.

SPEAKING of golf tournaments and scholarships, just a reminder that Saturday, May 20, is the Charles M. Van Dyne Memorial Golf Tournament to be held at the Sedalia Country Club. Gov. Hearnes, as I said before an ardent golfer, has already sent in his fee to play. His first appearance in this tournament was last year and he reported a most enjoyable day.

It has been called to my attention "the most imporant part" of this tournament is the course itself. Already much work has been and is being done on the greens and fairways under the direction of Greens Committee Chairman W. W. "The Milk Baron" Bus Greer, along with Herb and Johnny Bopp.

Herb, one of the finest greenskeepers in Missouri, says the fairways and green will be in excellent condition.

Tournament Chairmen Jim Buchanan, Dr. C. W. Kateman, along with Club Pro Lew Hargis, Bill Bunn and Bob Fingland are busy getting prepared for this fourth annual affair.

"The tournament will be played, rain or shine," Buchanan said, "and we'll have to have inches of water to call it off and if this happens, then we'll arrange to play on Sunday."

Final Respects Paid To Coach Mackenzie

NORMAN (AP) — The football fraternity paid final respects Saturday to Jim Mackenzie, head football coach at the University of Oklahoma, who died Friday at 37.

Some of the nation's top collegiate coaches, including Paul Bryant of Alabama, Frank Broyles of Arkansas, Doug Dickey of Tennessee and Hayden Fry of Southern Methodist attended the funeral.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Otto Anderson of Norman and the Rev. Marius Lindoff of Fayetteville, Ark.

Scriptures were read by Dr. George L. Cross, the university's president, and Bud Wilkinson, the coach who built a football dynasty at Oklahoma in the mid-50s.

Burial will be in Gary, Ind., Monday.

San Francisco Has Inked Steve Spurrier

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers announced Saturday the signing of Steve Spurrier, 1966 Heisman Trophy winner and star University of Florida quarterback.

Both the 22-year-old Spurrier and his employers of the National Football League club agreed quickly on one thing:

With John Brodie and George Mira as No. 1 and No. 2 quarterbacks Spurrier is not likely to see very much action next season as a pilot of the team.

But he'll be the No. 2 punter behind Tommy Davis, having averaged 40.8 yards for Florida last season.

The 49ers were customarily mum on contract details. There was no confirmation of a Miami-published report that he would get $300,000 spread over six to seven years.

Lose Two-Mile Relay

Patrick Anchors Four-Mile Relay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave Patrick anchored Villanova to the four-mile relay championship at the Penn Relays Saturday, but couldn't quite pull off a valiant attempt to lead the Wildcats to victory in the two-mile relay.

Just two hours and 15 minutes after his 4:10.3 mile leg in the four-mile relay, the lanky blond runner prevented a final challenge from Michigan's Ron Kutchinski on the final straightaway of the two-mile event.

But up on the outside moved Fordham's Jack Fath. Fath took the lead some five yards from the finish and Patrick, in a final desperate lunge, collapsed across the finish line and had to be carried off the track.

Fordham's time for the two-mile relay was 7:21.4, best in the world this year and one of a myriad of records set at this 73rd annual carnival, which ended its two-day run in bright, 65-degree weather before a crowd of 34,982.

In all 10 meet records were broken, and another was tied. Many of the competitors credited this to the new, springy track that got its first workout at the meet.

In the big college mile relay event, Rice's sophomore-laden team scored a 40-yard victory over second-place North Carolina State and finished in 3:06.9, better than its Friday qualifying time that had set a meet record by two-tenths of a second.

The victory made up for some disappointment for the Owls, who had been the fastest qualifiers in the 440 and 880-yard relays as well as the mile Friday, but lost out in both the shorter events. The 440 went to defending champion Florida A&M in 40.6, a meet record, and the 880 was won by Johnson C. Smith in 1:24.5.

Other events in which records fell included the 120-yard high hurdles, won by Erv Hall of Villanova in 13.6, the 2-mile run, which fell to Sam Bair for the second year in a row in 8:46.2 and the javelin, which went to George Mischis of Tennessee with a throw of 248-10½.

Another record was set by Tennessee in the sprint medley with a time of 3:17.8, and, on Friday, records went to Winston-Salem's Leon Coleman who won the 440-yard hurdles in 51 flat, Villanova, which took the distance medley at 9:39.9 and Art Swartz of South Carolina, who defended his discus championship at 179-9.

The one record tied was in the 100-yard dash where Clarence Ray of Kentucky State won in 9.5.

Clay Says He May Become A Farmer

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay, stripped of his heavyweight championship, prepared to settle down to the casual life of an Alabama farmer while his attorneys took new steps Saturday to keep him out of jail.

A new suit was filed in U.S. District Court here disputing the government's right to prosecute the part-time fighter and part-time Black Muslim minister for refusal to enter the Armed Services.

"The suit is similar to that which was turned down by Judge Allen P. Hannay last Thursday," said Hayden Covington, Clay's New York attorney. "It is different only in that it shows our client has exhausted his administrative remedies.

"In effect, however, we are starting all over again."

The voluminous plea contends that Clay, whose Muslim name is Muhammad Ali, should be exempt from the draft because he is a preacher. It also argues that he has been discriminated against because of the unpopularity of his religion and that the Selective Service system is unconstitutional because it doesn't have a fair representation of Negroes on the draft boards.

Clay, seemingly relaxed and resigned to his fate, dutifully signed the new papers and then got on the telephone to make travel arrangements to Tuskegee, Ala.

"I just bought a farm down there—600 acres, five minutes away from Tuskogee Institue," Cassius explained. "I've got a house there and a lot of barns. I'm going to have milk cows and horses and I'm going to raise corn, potatoes, okra, beans and a little cotton.

"I'm buying two big tractors to clear out the land. I'm going to have students from Tuskegee to come over and help me work it. They can relax, study and dance in a big barn. I'll sell all the food I raise cheap to the poor people. There's a lot of poverty there."

The undefeated heavyweight, who had his title taken away from him when he refused to take the symbolic step forward Friday at induction ceremonies here, said he didn't know whether he would ever fight again.

"It's all in the hand of Allah," Cassius said solemnly. "Everything I've done has been for Allah. He controls the air I breathe and the turbulence in the heavens for the airplane I ride.

"Money and title mean nothing to me. They waste away. Spiritual things are with you always."

He insisted efforts to name a successor through an elimination tournament, as proposed by the New York Athletic Commission and the World Boxing Association, would be a farce.

Walker On Top Of NBA Draft List

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Walker of Providence, who may become the first $300,000 rookie in pro basketball, tops the list of college players up for grabs in the National Basketball Association draft this week.

Detroit has the first pick in the draft opening here Wednesday and everyone expects that the Pistons will tap the 6-foot-3 All-America who was the leading major college scorer last season with a 30.4 average.

Detroit, which finished last in the Western Division of the NBA, got the first pick by winning a flip of a coin with Baltimore, the last place team in the Eastern Division.

Walker, who already has been drafted by Indianapolis in the new American Basketball Association, said several weeks ago that his goal for turning pro was $300,000.

Also, Mal Graham of New York University, David Lattin of Texas Western and Cliff Anderson of St. Joseph's, Philadelphia.

Walt Frazier, who led Southern Illinois to the championship of the National Invitation Tournament; high-scoring Earl Monroe, who led Winston-Salem, N.C. State to the NCAA College Division championship, and Al Tucker of Oklahoma Baptist head the list of small college eligibles.

Frazier has a year of eligibility left at Southern Illinois, but his class graduates in June and he has indicated he might turn pro if the right offer is made.

Tigers Split Doubleheader With Jeff City

The Smith-Cotton Tigers travelled to Jefferson City Friday night for a CMC doubleheader. For their efforts they were able to gain a split with the Jays. The Tigers won the opening game 3-2 ,and dropped the nightcap 1-0, in 12 innings of play.

The first game the Tigers scored all three of their runs in the second innings, with Gary Eck hitting a home run for the game's deciding run. The winning pitcher for Smith-Cotton was Jerry Morris, who pitched all seven innings. The losing pitcher for the Jays was Mike Wilhelm, who pitched three innings before being relieved by Ron Rackers.

The second game was a thriller and a heartbreaker for the Tigers. The game remained scoreless for the first 12 innings before the Jays were able to get a run across home, in the bottom of the 12th. They did this by a walk, a single, a sacrifice, another walk, then a wild pitch by Mike Kraxberger. Up to that point Kraxberger had gone 12 innings, faced 50 batters, and had retired 16 by strike outs. The Jays' hurler did an equally commendable job, as he also went the entire route, while retiring 12 Tigers by strike outs.

Kraxberger was the losing pitcher for the Tigers and Charles Ratz was the winning pitcher for the Jays.

Next game for the Tigers will be Tuesday, here.

Maple Leafs In 3-2 Lead In Cup Playoffs

MONTREAL (AP) — Toronto's muscular Maple Leafs rallied around substitute goalie Terry Sawchuk, soared to a 4-1 upset over Montreal Saturday afternoon and took a 3-2 lead over the Canadiens in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Canadiens, enjoying the home ice advantage and with Toronto's regular goalie, 42-year-old Johnny Bower, still sidelined with a leg injury, were heavily favored going into this fifth game of the Cup finals.

Now, however, they must win two straight — one on Toronto ice — if they are to continue their two-year reign as Cup champions. The sixth game is scheduled in Toronto Tuesday night and the seventh, if necessary, in Montreal Thursday.

Sawchuk, victim of a 6-2 drugging in the fourth game, was supported by a three-goal flurry in the middle period and a hustling, aggressive team.

The Leafs scored once on a power play, once while they were a man short and once while both teams were a man short. Dick Duff and Ron Ellis were cooling off after a brief brawl when Dave Keon poked a loose puck through a scramble of players at 19:27 of the middle period.

Bob Goalby Drops Into Three-Way Tie

SAN ANTONIO, Texx. (AP)—Bob Goalby bogied the final four holes of the third round to drop into a three-way tie for the lead in the $100,000 Texas Open Saturday.

A high wind bothered the pros all afternoon, as it did both of the earlier rounds.

Goalby dropped a 20-foot putt on eight for a birdie, a 40-foot putt on nine for an eagle and a 110-foot putt on 10 for a birdie.

"I hit a tree on the 13th and lost my confidence after that," he said.

Concessions On US Troop Withdrawal

BONN, Germany (AP) — An informed source said today President Johnson decided to make concessions on withdrawing U.S. forces from West Germany after his talks with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger this week.

One concession, the informant said, was to leave more nuclear strike planes on German soil than had previously been intended. The precise figure was not disclosed.

The President authorized his negotiator in London — John J. McCloy, former U.S. high commissioner in Germany — to make the concessions in talks with the British and West Germans. The result, the source added, was the ease with which an agreement was concluded Friday on the stationing and financing of U.S. and British troops in West Germany.

The agreement still has to be submitted next week to the other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but with accord among the three major powers concerned, little difficulty is expected.

Under the agreement 20,000 of the 225,000 American ground troops in West Germany are expected to be pulled out under a rotation system. More may be withdrawn later. The British are to take out 5,000 to 6,000 of their 59,000 troops and airmen.

Claim Civilians Killed In US Raids

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet newspaper today printed a report from North Vietnam claiming that more than 150 persons, many of them women and children, were killed in two U.S. air raids on Haiphong April 20.

The paper Soviet Russia said the dispatch was written by Monica Varnenska, a woman military correspondent of the Polish paper Tribuna Lyudu.

Citing "incomplete information," she said that during the raids 70 heavy bombs and more than 120 rockets "of different types" fell on the major North Vietnamese port.

Stalin's Daughter On Shopping Trip

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — Escorted by private detectives, Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of Joseph Stalin, ventured into affluent suburbia on her first U.S. shopping expedition.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, four detectives and Eunice Campbell, sister of the woman who will translater her memoirs, sampled wares Friday at Lord & Taylor and Bonwit Teller on Manhasset's "Miracle Mile."

Few customers appeared to recognize Mrs. Alliluyeva, who bought a pair of slacks, three pairs of stockings, a pullover sweater and a pair of shoes. But sales people knew her.

One of the salesgirls was Anastasia Sarandanaki, born in Paris of White Russian parents. Mrs. Sarandanaki said the two women did not discuss Russia.

Earmuffs For Go-Go Girls Recommended

Burton King, director of Duke Medical Center's hearing clinic, warns that people who work in noisy surroundings run the risk of losing their hearing.

That goes for go-go girls in loud discotheques, he said, and for workers in many manufacturing plants.

Speaking at the Chapel Hill meeting of the North Carolina chapter of the Accoustical Society in America Friday, King also suggested that North Carolina require workers in high-noise jobs to take periodic hearing tests. He said hearing loss i cumulative.

LBJ Will Push For Super Jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was reported today to have decided to push ahead on development of a supersonic jet airliner.

Officials involved in the project said a White House announcement on administration plans was expected soon, possibly today.

The plane would be capable of carrying 300 passengers, over distances of 4,000 miles, at about 1,800 miles an hour.

Any decision by the President to go ahead with development is expected to be followed by a request to Congress for about $200 million to start work on prototype planes.

The Federal Aviation Administration last Dec. 31 chose the air-frame design of the Boeing Co., Seattle, and the engine design of General Electric for the plane.

The FAA, which is in charge of the development program, estimates that if there is a go-ahead soon, the first flight can be made in 1970 and the airplane may be ready for commercial service by late 1974.

Memorial Mass Is Called Off By Priest

VIGEVANO, Italy (AP) — A priest agreed to a request to offer a memorial Mass Friday for Benito Mussolini of the anniversary of his death — then called it off when it became a public issue.

The local branch of the Italian Social Movement, Italy's post-war Fascist party, asked the Rev. Felice Masperi to say the Mass.

After the priest agreed, the requesters posted black - bordered mourning notices for the Fascist dictator who was shot to death by partisans April 28, 1945, at Dongo on Lake Como.

Father Masperi called off the rite after 50 persons had gathered in the church.

Third Class City Water Sale Ruling

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled Thursday that a third-class city can sell municipal water supplies to a city of the fourth class, a public school or an individual outside its city limits.

But, the opinion advised Rep. Ronald Belt, R-Macon, the city cannot provide for transportation of its water beyond its city limits. The purchaser would have to do that.

In the same opinion, Anderson held that under similar circumstances the city cannot sell natural gas beyond its limits because there is no law authorizing it.

Knows How To Hurt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — State Sen. Hugh Morrow of Birmingham knows how to hurt a guy.

The Alabama Senate stayed in session into the night Thursday, for the fifth night in a row, because of a filibuster over a proposed new road program. Morrow was one of those doing the filibustering.

The Senate refused to recess for dinner. Then when Morrow arose to speak, he spent his allotted hour reading from a book about food, describing in mouth-watering detail the many goodies it contained.

Senators To Court To Stop Payments

BOISE, Idaho, (AP) — Four Idaho state senators have gone to court to stop the state from paying salaries to them and other lawmakers.

Their suit, filed Friday in Boise District Court, contends a $3.50-per-day salary to legislators is unconstitutional while the legislature is not in session. The four, all Republicans, are Sam Kaufman, Fred Bagley, and William C. Roden of Boise, and Phil E. Batt of Wilder.

The Idaho Legislature approved the supplemental $3.50 per day out-of-session pay during the 1967 session. Lawmakers receive $35 per day while in session.

Cervantes To Lead Anti-Litter Group

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mayor A.J. Cervantes has promised to lead a contingent of 22nd Ward residents Sunday in a sweeping assault on alley litter.

When a delegation of ward residents headed by State Rep. John Conley visited the mayor's office to complain about the condition of alleys, Cervantes handed each a broom.

The mayor said Friday the city is doing something about a complaint about poor street lighting, but alleys are the responsibility of the citizen.

Critical Text Is Publicized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William F. Ryan, D-N.Y., made public today the text of a space agency team's 1965 report detailing criticisms in manufacture of the Apollo spacecraf

Ryan had disclosed at a news conference on Wednesday some of the reports's sharper criticisms of workmanship and quality control at North American Aviation, Inc., the firm which made the Apollo unit in which three astronauts died last January.

He acted after the National Aeronautics and Space Administration declined — with backing from the chairman of a House investigating subcommittee — to submit the full report to investigators. A summary was provided instead.

NASA declined comment Saturday on the report or on Ryan's action.

Ryan said of the report that "not only is it pertinent to the management compettence of North American Aviation but also (to) the supervisory competence of NASA, both of which are in question."

What he made public was a 20-page "NASA review team report" of a group headed by Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, which inspected operations at North American's Downey, Calif., plant between Nov. 22 and Dec. 6, 1965.

The 20-page report apparently was incomplete. It mentioned that further findings of some team reports were attached, but a spokesman for Ryan said the congressman did not have those reports. Ryan has declined to say where he obtained the report.

One part of the report says that North American "must take immediate and effective action to improve the quality of workmanship and to tighten their own inspection. Performance goals for demonstrating high quality must be established, and trend data must be maintained and given serious attention by management to correct this unsatisfactory condition."

Phillips, NASA's Apollo program director, wrote a covering letter to the president of North American, J. L. Atwood.

Phillips' letter said "the conclusions expressed in our briefing and notes are critical. Even with due consideration of hopeful signs, I could not find a substantive basis for confidence in future performance."

Phillips testified before a House subcommittee earlier this month that he had rechecked the Downey plant four months after his original report. He found then, he said, that some of the deficiencies had been overcome and the firm was making satisfactory progress toward overcoming the rest.

NASA Administrator James E. Webb told the House group that public release of the Phillips report would damage NASA's relationship with North American.

Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., said at the time he didn't think the agency should release such "personal notes."

In a statement Saturday Ryan again challenged NASA to make public all of Phillips' findings and said the matter should be thoroughly explored by the congressional investigating committee.

Surviving Nurse Is Happy All Is Over

MANILA, (AP) — Corazon Amurao, survivor of the massacre of eight nurses in Chicago last July 14, arrived home today and said, "I'm happy it's all over."

The 24-year-old Filipino nurse, looking pale and nervous, was referring to the trial of Richard Speck, convicted of the murders April 15 in Peoria, Ill. Miss Amurao was the star witness.

Miss Amurao was met by a busload of relatives and friends who accompanied her to her hometown of Durungao, San Luis, south of Manila.

She said she plans to return to the United States after a long vacation.

To Welcome Guests

J. Leo Hayob, Marshall, president of the Chamber of Commerce Executives of Missouri, will welcome Missouri Congressional Delegation as dinner guests in Washington on May 1 at the Washington Hilton Hotel.

This annual Congressional Dinner is being sponsored again this year by the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, and the Chamber of Commerce Executives of Missouri with participating local chambers of commerce.

Favors Call For Marine Reservists

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A retiring Marine Corps general said today he favored an immediate call-up of Marine Reservists to aid in the war in Vietnam.

Lt. Gen. A. L. Bowser, commanding general of the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, said in an interview with the Norfolk (Va.) Ldger-Star he would advocate the use of Reservists "if the administration is intent on shortening the time period to achieve more measurable results in Vietnam."

The 35-year veteran, scheduled for retirement June 30, is the first active-duty general officer to advocate publicly a call-up of reservists, the newspaper said.

Bowser said Marine Reservists could be readied for combat "in not under two months or more than four or five."

Noting that the Marine Corps had reached half-a-million strength during World War II, the three-star general said the size of the corps "should be tailored to its mission in pursuit of our national policy."

Bowser said the amount of training being given combat troops going to Vietnam was minimal but adequate, whereas their equipment left something to be desired.

"They could probably do with more modern, long-range artillery," he said. "The United States has not been really progressive in this field. Compared with the Russians, we're behind."

In fact, he added, there were better artillery pieces in World War I than today.

Bowser said he was "optimistic" about the outcome in Vietnam.

"Not in the sense of fixing a time for completion," he said, "but in the sense that in the end a situation will be created which will result in the indepencence of South Vietnam."

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Part-Time Viet Nam Troops

By JOHN T. WHEELER

HUONG MY, South Vietnam (AP) — Silently the last companies of the 1,20-man Viet ong force slipped into position around the isolated district headquarters compound, confident of a quick kill.

A Viet Cong officer, who knew only 15 men guarded Huong My, checked his watch and shouted: "Fire!"

Mortars barked, lobbing high explosive shells into the air. Long tongues of flame spurted from recoilless rifles and 57mm and 75mm shells drove low across the rice paddy, over five barbed wire barricades and the mud wall, dead on target. Although the night was moonless, the two-story headquarters building, little larger than a home, was clearly silhouetted against the starry sky.

The time was 0415—4:15 a.m. Three Viet Cong battalions waited in the darkness, knowing that the mortar and rifle barrage would go on for nearly half an hour.

Neither the attackers nor the defenders could know that an epic battle was just beginning, and that it would take the lives of nearly 400 persons, including women andchildren. In sheer savagery the siege of Huong My would have few equalsin the Viet Nam war.

Huong My's defenders were all militiamen, members of the popular and regional forces who earn about $10 a month as part-time warriors. Since the outbreak of the war, they have been a number one target of the Communists.

Here in the Mekong elta, south of Saigon, militiamen suffer five times the casualties of the government regulars, who are paid far more. Yet they are credited with killing 10,000 Communists in the last year, several times more than the regulars. Countrywide there are 140,000 each of popular and regional forces men. Nearly half are in the Mekong Delta.

Nearly all the fighting was from behind mud fortifications such as those at Huong My. The defenders, who live and die with their wives and children in the vulnerable outposts, are a much easier target than regular battalions.

Because they are strung out in thousands of such isolated spots as Huong My, the militia posts are at the top of the Viet Cong's list of operations. Because militiamen are held in contempt by the regular army, their priority for equipment, guns, ammunition and medical help is at the bottom of the government list. Vigorous American efforts have improved things somewhat in past months, but not nearly enough.

The militiaman has been recruited in the area he must fight for. The popular force men do some farming by day and defend their homes and families by night. The dying is worth it.

The time for fighting and dying had come to Huong My's militiamen and their families.

The volley of recoilless rifle shells slammed into the headquarters building, tearing great chunks from the wall. More followed and 82mm mortar shells rained into the compound.

"I was about six inches in the air when I woke up," said Capt. John Eian of Ashby, Minn. He became entangled in his mosquito netting as he leaped from the bed. Thus he was a few steps behind the other two Americans who make up Advisory Team 93 as they sprinted to action stations in the headquarters building.

Inside the district building, Cpl. Duong had clambered up the ladder into the tower post. He began firing the post's only machine gun toward a Buddhist cemetery, where he could see the flashes of recoilless rifles being fired. Twice wounded during six years of fighting the Viet Cong, Duong was considered a brave and accurate machine gunner.

On the ground floor his wife, Cuc, 26, gathered her four children and huddled with them against the compound wall. Her 7-year-old son, Kim, later moved across the room under a bed.

Sgt. I. C. David Styers of Baltimore, Md., and Capt. Eian reached their radio to find that the aerial had been shot away. So had those for the Vietnamese sets.

The firing was so intense that individual explosions and the cracks of bullets passing overhead merged into a rolling thunder. Without communications, there was no way to call for fighters.

Then they heard a Vietnamese shouting in English what obviously was a radio transmission to Ben Tre, the province capital. The voice belonged to Capt. Xuan Pham, the district chief and commander of the militia guarding Huong My. He was calling over the Americans' emergency radio asking for quick air strikes. Otherwise, he knew, the compound would be overwhelmed by Communist assault waves advancing toward the barbed wire.

But in Ben Tre, the American radio operator was suspicious. He thought it was the Viet Cong broadcasting on the American frequency. The province capital had been attacked earlier by artillery and mortars. It had its own problems.

Then over the airwaves came Capt. Eian's voice, asking for immediate help, "or else."

But the Viet Cong already had blown gaps in the barbed wire with bangalore torpedos. A squad of Communist soldiers with a flamethrower ran through a shattered bunker into the compound. The flamethrower was turned on a row of shacks where nearly 100 women and children huddled on the floor.

Screaming, some with clothes afire, the women and children raced 30 yards to the headquarters building. Automatic weapons gunned down many.

The light from the fire exposed the tower atop the headquarters building where Cpl. Duong lay, his face blown away, his machine-gun smashed by an exploding shell. On the ground floor, tears streamed down his wife's face.

A recoilless rifle round had punched through the bricks at the back of the room and exploded near the ceiling. Gathering three of her children and darting out of the room, she turned to watch as the flames destroyed her family belongings, including her savings, hidden in a tin can.

Some of the militiamen, like Pvt. Do Van Sang, fled their posts.

But not everyone ran. Many displayed high courage in the face of what seemed almost certain disaster.

The commander of the post's three mortars was hit in the mouth by shrapnel early in the fighting. He stuffed his mouth with cotton and continued directing fire with hand signals until he collapsed.

By now American jets had arrived and their bombs and cannon ripped through the waves of Viet Cong assaulting the compound. Finally the attack was broken. The Viet Cong inside the compound seized women, some holding babies, and used them as human shields, retreating into the night. The women were released later, unharmed.

As suddenly as it had begun, the battle was over, a victory for the government side, thanks to American air power. But 29 defenders were dead, 23 wounded and eight missing. Twenty-five women and children were killed and 39 wounded. Many had burned to death.

The Viet Cong had left 100 of their dead just outside the barbed wire. Another 100 were in the nearby rice paddies. Other dead and wounded had been dragged away by the retreating enemy. The defeat was such that Vietnamese intelligence reported later that one enemy battalion commander and the Viet Cong district chief had been executed.

Two groups of Vietnamese lay near the flagpole, arranged by families, waiting for American helicopters to take them out.

When the helicopters came, Cuc was allowed to go with her dead husband and son to their home village for burial.

The government provided only one casket, that for the husband. Cuc borrowed money for the second, and then took a boat down the Mekong to be with her surviving children.

Asked through an interpreter how she would live now, she replied she didn't know. She was entitled to the equivalent of $200 as a death benefit, but this is months in getting through Vietnamese red tape. Sometimes officials steal part of the money.

Later she would go to live with her mother, whose husband had died earlier in the war. Somehow life would go on.

Hundreds of pounds of barbed wire were brought in to fill the gaps blown out by the Cong. Capt. Pham and the American advisors sweated it out while workmen repaired the three corner bunkers. Intelligence said the Viet Cong were preparing for a new attack.

A week after the assault, the province chief still had not replaced Cpl. Duong's destroyed machine gun or the 81mm mortar captured by the Viet Cong.

Huong My, like the other weak forts strung over the country, would have to make do with what it had until perhaps one day someone would sign an order sending them new weapons.

Martyred Man's Work Increasing

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A man is martyred. And his work increases.

That classic Christian paradox, by which gain springs from loss and triumph from defeat, today marks the new chapter in the case of the late Dr. Paul Carlson.

"Through his death, more is coming about than he had hoped for or even dreamed," said his widow, Lois.

Since her missionary-doctor husband was slain by Congolese rebels Nov. 24, 1964, Mrs. Carlson has worked to further the cause he served.

And it has taken on larger dimensions. One man's death for it has given it more life, through many.

"The concern is much greater than he could possibly have generated if he had lived," she said in an interview.

The aftermath has resulted in formation of the Paul Carlson Foundation of Chicago, which has projected a broad program for augmenting medical work in the Congo.

This month, in its initial undertaking, it is shipping to the Congo a quarter million dollars worth of drugs and medical supplies, donated by several pharmaceutical firms. Mrs. Carlson was here to watch the cargo loaded.

"In places where it's so badly needed, medical help can convey the message of love where other methods aren't understood," she said. "When people see their families get well, they know we are friends. It's very tangible."

A cherry, blue-eyed blonde, Mrs. Carlson, 38, now lives with her two children, Wayne, 12, and Lynette, 9, in Torrance, Calif., and lectures extensively, sparking support for the new foundation's program.

It aims at improving services at Congo hospitals in Tandala, Karawa and Waslo, where her husband served, and to establish a large new hospital, the Paul Carlson Medical Center, on the River Loko, with teaching services to train Conglese doctors.

A member of the Evangelical Convenant Church, as was her husband, Mrs. Carlson said that deeds, not just persuasion, are essential in carrying Christ's gospel to men. She herself is a registered nurse.

"You can't just go and tell people of God's love and not do anything about it," she said. "You don't always have to say words to show love. When you help people; even if you can't speak their language, the message gets through."

Embassy Changes

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SAIGON (AP) — The civilian high command representing the United States in Saigon is undergoing sweeping changes with the departure of Henry Cabot Lodge and several associates.

The style of the U.S. Embassy is likely to be different under Lodge's successor a ambassador, diplomatic troubleshooter Ellsworth Bunker.

m Bunker, presidential aide Robert W. Komer, and Eugene Locke, a Texan who has been ambassador to Pakistan, will replace the civilian command that has been at the top in Saigon.

Phisip C. Habib, mission counselor for political affairs, departed two months ago for a fresh assignment. The chief mission spokesman, Barry Zorthian, is scheduled for transfer later this year.

William J. Porter, deputy ambassador under Lodge, stayed on after Lodge departed Tsesday but will be relieved soon by Locke.

The American change of command comes at a time of transition in Vietnam.

A new constitution went into effect this month and nationwide elections are promised Sept. 1 to install civilian government. Experienced observers think a military candidate in mufti will be elected president.

Lodge's performance is difficult to assess because American policy in Vietnam evolved fitfully in response to Communist threats. The military buildup increased the influence of Gen. William C. Westmoreland in American war councils. Vietnamese military-civilian-religious wrangling blurred matters, too.

The 64-year-old envoy appeared to have an almost equal number of admirers and detractors in his own embassy.

Lodge says there has been "a great evolution and change for the better" since he arrived in October 1963.

The following month he was hailed as a hero by many Vietnamese when President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and killed. American policy helped engineer Diem's ouster.

The rest of Lodge's first tour was spent trying to crystalize a working government out of the chaos of the coup and a bewildering series of countercoups and government shakeups.

When Lodge resigned in June 1964 to return to Republican party politics, some critics said he had rocked the boat too much. They argued that he let the over-all situation in Saigon deteriorate by not giving sufficient attention to details.

Lodge was succeeded by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor but returned in July 1965.

When Lodge left the first time some 10,0000 American troops were in South Vietnam. There were 80,0000 "in country" when he returned. There are 438,000 now.

The impact of the ambassador's presence lessened as the military buildup attracted interest. It also made for friction between American civilian and military leaders.

Westmoreland's staff could point to signs of progress in their fight against Communist main force units. Meanwhile, civilian officials were often losing ground in their efforts to help a succession of Saigon regimes quell runaway inflation and political turmoil.

The unraveled political, economic and diplomatic fabric made Lodge's task unenviable.

The likelihood developed last summer that all civilian operations would be taken under the military's wing. The bureaucratic struggle lasted several months.

Eventually civilian operations, including the U.S. Agency for International Development — AID — and the U.S. Information Service, were restructured along a military chain of command system under an Office of Civil Operations — OCO.

OCO may be one of Lodge's major achievements. It has been the special preserve of Deputy Ambassador Porter.

Some OCO officials wonder what form and direction the organization may take under Komer. His aggressive personality irked some Americans here on several visits.

Komer will take over as OCO shows signs of shaking down. It was formed in November to push ahead as rapidly as possible with a new — the eighth — program aimed at pacification and revolutionary development.

Under this, teams of 59 members get a 12-week training course and are then sent into villages to live, work and fight. Some 475 teams are a prime target for Communist terrorism.

The war costs roughly $60 million per day. Each week about 175 Americans are killed and 800 or more wounded.

Lodge believes the cost is worth it because "American policy in Vietnam has denied the edge of East Asia to communism. We are fighting a limited action here to prevent something much worse. The price is heavy but it could be much heavier."

Hippies' Homeland

By CLAUDE BURGETT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Allen Cohen, a hairy-faced poet with shoulder length hair, advocates communal living, love and the use of LSD.

Cohen symbolizes the feelings and habits of 4,000 other young hippies in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

"What you're witnessing here is history," said Cohen.

"And," added Ron Thelin, nervously twisting his golden mustache, "if the projections are correct, there will be 50,000 to 100,000 more kids here to share our 'summer of love.'"

Cohen and Thelin claim they are not leaders, but willingly speak for the hippie "tribe."

They preach love. Most of the hippies have tried LSD, marijuana or other psychedelic drugs at least once in their grasp to understand themselves, God or love.

These long-haired young men and their women have transformed Haight-Ashbury into a way of life. And they claim their life is a new religion —the religion of love.

Their Bohemian attitudes, unkempt dress and free-wheeling sex habits have caused a split in an Episcopal church that gave them a headquarters. Their communal living habits have caught the attention of the city health department.

Their use of drugs and the fact that runaway teen-agers find a haven among hippies keep them in constant conflict with police.

Cohen and Thelin stood in a disheveled room behind Thelin's psychedelic book shop in Haight Street as rain dripped through the ceiling, and tried to explain their new subculture.

Critics say hippies, aside from their drug habits, don't work and don't contribute anything to a community.

"We are," said Cohen, "creating a new kind of art: a new kind of human relationshrip and a new family relationship."

Art displayed in Haight Street shops is flashy, with colors that show the psychedelic influence and a preoccupation with sex and God.

The "tribe" — as the hippies call their community as a whole — is made up of student of Zen Buddhism, followers of mystical Hindu and Chinese religions, practitioners of American Indian religious rituals.

"With us," said Sharon Sweeney, a young blonde from Minnesota, "religion is a personal thing. It's inside; not conventional."

Beside their hair and beards, the men who lounge about the streets go in for Indian beads, pierced ears, cowboy boots, sandals, tight trousers, buckskin jackets, colored feathers in their hair, symbolic Indian headbands, ponchos and serapes.

Their women wear bright dresses and beads or tight pants. Many go barefoot. Those who have children dress them just as colorfully. The children wear Indian moccasins.

"You can tell which ones have just taken their first trip (LSD experience)," said a resident of the neighborhood, "by the bright colors they wear."

Men and women wear small bells on their belts or ankles.

They walk the streets at all hours, day and night, sit over coffee in the numerous coffee houses that have sprung up along their street. Their conversation is about "acid" (LSD), "grass" (marijuana) or the latest arrival in "Hashberry" — their term for Haight-Ashbury.

Thelin's place is typical of the dozen or so art and poster shops that have opened since January to cater to the hippies. Their unusual tastes have changed the 60-year-old buildings into brightly painted shops and apartments. Dogs and children romp through the streets freely.

"What's the difference between us and beatniks?" asked a Negro girl in the rain-soaked bookshop. "We don't wear black and we're cleaner."

Haight-Ashbury has drawn so much attention that it has become a tourist attraction. A bus company runs tours through "hippie town," and the hippies resent it. They don't like to be gawked at.

"They come down here, man," complained George Surchek — who said he comes "from someplace in the Midwest" — "and they stare and laugh at us. We just want to be left alone, man — to love everybody. But they make it hard to love them."

Twice the hippies have staged "sit-ins" in the middle of intersections, tying up traffic for hours. Police arrested more than 40 of them.

"To get busted arrested is, in a sense, like society scratching itself in the dark places," said Cohen. "We don't care. It is a drain on the tribe (for bail money), sure; but it also is a drain on the establishment."

Hippies don't like to be called hippies.

"That's just a word," said Cohen. "You mix with us and then decide what to call us."

"Yeh, man," added a bearded friend, "but don't stay more than a week or you won't leave."

Health department officials fear that overcrowding the hippie "pads" will cause spread of disease. Police say hippies harbor teen-agers who have left home.

Health inspectors checked housing in the 15-block Haight-Ashbury district recently. They issued 65 citations for housing and sanitation violations — 16 of them to hippie "pads."

Cohen and Thelin refer to the expected summer influx of young hippies as "a pilgrimage from all over the country."

But, a spokesman for Police Chief Thomas Cahill said, "We don't know where that figure of 100,000 came from. All we know is what we see in the press; but it's our guess that this is something a hippie dreamed up."

"Hashberry" is a world that covers only 5 city blocks near the southeastern edge of Golden Gate Park west of downtown San Francisco. In their world, the hippies are nearly surrounded by residential areas, predominantly Negro. Police fear summer influx of hippies could touch off racial unrest.

The old Victorian homes they rent once were residences of affluent doctors and professional men. The rambling buildings afford them ample room for their communal "pads." As many as 200 have spent the night in some "pads."

Chief Cahill appealed on television recently to parents to keep their teenagers away from Haight-Ashbury.

"If there is trouble," said Cohen, "it will come from the outside. The outside community has reacted in fear. They are scared of things they don't understand within themselves.

Dr. Seymour L. Halleck, director of psychiatry at the University of Wisconsin, wrote recently:

"The hippies tend to be tolerant and friendly young people whose public flouting of convention belies a basic passivity. The hippie is deeply concerned with finding his own identity, with becoming a whole person, with communicating, with being terribly honest and real.

Hippies are incredibly lonely people who seem almost incapable of forming intimate relations. Even their sexual contacts are more frenetic than meaningful."

It is their sexual promiscuity and unorthodox approach to religion that caused trouble at All Saints Episcopal Church, one block off Haight Street.

There, a group calling themselves "the Diggers" — hippies who provide free food, clothing and shelter for other hippies — were given an office by the rector, the Rev. Leon Harris.

Senior Warden Donald Carlson, the church's lay officer, and William James, master of acolytes (altar boys) resigned soon after the Diggers moved in.

"When a group of people reject the moral code of our society, curse and swear, are admitted fornicators, and physically unclean, reject - if not despise - the law, etc., I believe they are un-Christian and immoral," Carlson wrote in his resignation letter.

Bishop C. Kilmer Myers of the Episcopal diocese backed Father Harris' decision.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Most people would suffer from lack of oxyzen at an altitude of 10,000 feet. Peruvian Indians often live at altitudes up to 17,000 feet, says The World Almanac. They are able to live at such heights because their lungs are larger than normal, they inhale more air with each breath, they have about two quarts more blood than most people and their hearts are about 20 per cent bigger than those of lowlanders.

French-US Relations At Worst

PARIS (AP) — Figures on trade notwithstanding, U.S. officials admit privately that French-American relations are in their worst shape in a century. There are no immediate prospects for improvement.

The list of political disagreements includes Vietnam, the Atlantic alliance, nuclear weapons control, gold purchases, U.S. business investments and international monetary reform.

Though superficially unrelated, these disputes spring from a common cause: a fundamental conflict over the American role in the world and French determination to alter it.

Aggravating the policy disputes, U.S. officials feel, is a systematic progaganda offensive led by President Charles de Gaulle. His most dramatic contricutions have been his denunciations of U.S. intervention in Vietnam and his call for unilateral American withdrawal.

Though Vietnam is the greatest irritant, it is by no means the only one, as evidenced by Cultural Minister Andre Malraux's frequent imprecations against the "Americanization" of French life.

Broadcasts help orchestrate the government's campaign, U.S. officials say. Some broadcasts prompted U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen to lodge a formal protest with the Foreign Ministry after several informal complaints to the Ministry of Information, which controls the networks.

American tourists are spending less time in France, but probably because of high prices and the availability of better bargains elsewhere in Europe.

As for trade, French exports to the United States totaled $651.6 million last year, an increase of 11.4 per cent over 1965, while imports of U.S. goods rose 10.7 per cent to $1.185 billion.

Responsible American observers find the government campaign is affecting French public opinion.

What are the causes of this anti-American sentiment? at the government level — that is, at De Gaulle's level — there seem to be three.

The president's passion for reestablishing French independence, influence and prestige in the world.

De Gaulle's desire to recreate French self-respect, shattered after the German humiliation and those in Indochina and Algeria. He uses chauvinism as cement for a population divided for a generation. He seeks to relieve the French people of a sense of obligation for U.S. intervention in two world wars and for the billions of dollars of Marshall Plan aid.

Least important, De Gaulle's resentment of America for the slights, real or imagined, he suffered at the hands of President Franklin D. Roosevelt when the general was the exiled leader of free France during World War II.

The American government reaction to De Gaulle so far has been one of restraint, but Ambassador Bohlen has on several occasions cautioned French officials about arousing American public opinion.

The best available information is that he is trying to smooth things over, with the feeling that strong anti-French sentiment in the United States could hinder the U.S. government from reconciling with France either if De Gaulle changes his tune or a subsequent government seeks to restore traditional cooperation.

HOUSE PAINT
"Cures Spotted Fever"
You know the symptoms. Everyone who has ever painted a house knows them and dreads them!
Blisters. Little spots. Then bigger spots that peel! And years sooner than you counted on, a respectable paint job ruined by "spotted fever."
Its cause? Water. (Not rain. Any good house paint sheds outside moisture.) Water inside your house tries to get outside . . . water vapor from cooking, bathing, washing, mopping, etc.
Ordinary paints seal water in as well as out. So, water vapor pushes the paint away from the surface, creating blisters, cracks, peeling . . . dreaded "spotted fever" that ruins a paint job!
Hold-Tite House Paint is no ordinary paint. Hold-Tite holds tight to the surface . . . no peel . . . no blister! Like louvers, it "breathes out" inside moisture while shielding perfectly against outside moisture.
This paint will protect the surface EIGHT YEARS when applied as directed on the container.
IMPORTANT: This may happen after painting: Where old paint is blistering or peeling, you must scrape down to bare wood and prime with Davis Da-Luxe House Paint Primer. Then, proceed as directed on the label of Hold-Tite House Paint. In some cases after a home has been painted with Hold-Tite, some peeling may occur where the old paint was not removed, usually near the places scraped. Actually, despite appearances, such old paint was not holding well. Merely scrape and touch up these places with Davis Da-Luxe House Paint Primer and a subsequent coat of Hold-Tite.

Education Program For LaMonte Club

Mrs. Lee Hudson and her committee of Mrs. William Bolten and Mrs. Edmund Guier, Sr., gave the program on education, "Foreign Student" at the meeting of the LaMonte Nautilus Club April 20, a the home of Mrs. Raymond Wasson.

Mrs. Hudson introduced a student from Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, Miss Yukiko Sasaki from Tokyo, who is studying for her B. S. in English and language. Wearing her native dress she told of her country, customs and the changes that have taken place in the last few years.

Miss Sasaki has achieved high academic honors througout her seven years stay in the United States and gave an interesting report, also answering many questions asked by the group.

Donnie Fairfax, a sophomore of the LaMonte High School, gave a report of the Sophomore Pilgrimage sponsored by the Friendship and Nautilus Clubs.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Ralph Hollenbeck, with regular reports being given.

A report of the results of the landscaping of the Boy Scouts lawn started in 1966 was given by Mrs. Lois Curtis, stating that most shrubs were living but a few had been replaced.

Refreshments were served during the social hour that followed.

Guests were Mrs. T. H. Duffer and Mrs. C. N. Moore, members of the Friendship Club.

ARLINGTON, Tex.—Even though it is closed for the winter months, Six Flags Over Texas can't really be considered a ghost town, despite some of its winter occupants. But Jill Tipps might be a bit hard to convince as she joins one of the winter occupants at the piano. Ghost town or not, it will be a booming place come April 29 when Six Flags opens its doors for the 1967 season. About two million persons are expected to attend the park before it closes for the year on Nov. 17. (UPI)

Washington Capsules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department says it still is too early to predict accurately the economic picture for late 1967.

William H. Shaw, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said although the nation's economy has improved over the last few weeks, statistics covering several months are required for a definitive picture of the future.

The Johnson administration contends the economy will expand during the second half of the year, requiring increased taxes to stem inflationary pressure.

Shaw told a news conference Thursday 10 of 29 leading indicators of future activity pointed up last month while 19 pointed down.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Edward Teller, sometimes called the "father of the hydrogen bomb," now believes a ballistic missile defense can be set up without above-ground nuclear testing.

But, he told the American Physical Society's spring meeting Thursday, "it remains true that the best method of investigation would be atmospheric testing."

Teller also said he believes the United States should deploy a ballistic missile defense system which, he noted, some of our government officials claim "is futile because any defensive effort may be frustrated by a cheap increase of attacking forces."

The White House says former newspaperman Loyd Hackler, associate director of the Veterans Administration's information service, is becoming an associate presidential press secretary.

President Johnson is nominating Carl E. Bagge, a Republican member of the Federal Power Commission, to a new five-year term.

KITAKYUSHU, Japan (AP) — All 12 men aboard a U.S. Navy P3A patrol plane were believed to have perished today when the four-engine turboprop crashed into the sea off Japan's southernmost island of Kuyshu.

Officials said the Lockheed Orion plane went down between Japan and Korea, setting off a blaze that hampered rescue efforts for more than two hours. U.S. and Japanese search planes reported sighting pieces of wreckage, two life rafts and dye markers, but no survivors.

A Navy spokesman said all 12 men were presumed dead, but rescue craft will continue combing the area.

The plane had taken off from the U.S. Marine Air Station near Hiroshima on a routine patrol.

TRENTON, Ont. (AP) — Six Canadian airmen were killed Thursday night when a four-engine Canadian Air Force Hercules transport plane crashed and exploded during a practice landing.

The 36-ton turboprop burst into flames when it hit the ground about 1½ miles from the end of the main runway of the Trenton Armed Forces Base. The explosion set fire to trees a quarter of a mile from the crash, and officials cordoned off the area for half a mile.

BRIERLY HILL, England (AP) — Britain's opposition Conservative party has won another special parliamentary election by a vastly increased margin and its victorious candidate today predicted trouble head for the Labor government.

Voters in this Staffordshire industrial district gave 31,371 votes to Conservative Fergus Montgomery, a margin of 10,220 over his Laborite opponent Derek Forwood. The special election was called to fill a House of Commons seat which the Conservatives won in March 1966 by only 1,567 votes. The winner later died.

The election outcome will have no effect on Prime Minister Harold Wilson's commanding majority of some 90 seats in the House of Commons.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union claims it now has "the world's highest tower" — the 1,761-foot Moscow television tower, which is 705 feet taller than the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

The claim by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, conflicts with published figures on two American towers. The TV tower of station KTHI-TV in Fargo, N.D., is 2,063 feet and KSLA-TV in Shreveport, La., has a 1,898-foot tower.

Tass said the last section for the Moscow tower was put in place Thursday.

Smithton 4-H Wins Share The Fun Contest

Smithton 4-H Club was the winner of the Pettis County 4-H Clubs Share the Fun contest held April 21 at Smith-Cotton Cafeteria, with its skit, "Twas the Night Before Achievement Day." This skit will go on to the District contest.

A clever comedy directed by Mrs. L. Semkin and Mrs. G. Green, it had living room setting where the parents of 4-H members were being constantly interrupted by their children who had waited until the last minute to finish their achievement day entries. The parents, however, refused to give much help and the youngsters had to finish up what they had started themselves, with the one entering bread, who had lost the recipe, coming out with something she simply couldn't enter.

In the skit were: Joyce Jaeger, Dennis Merk, Douglas Green, Jay Gieschen, Stephie Gieschen, Sharon Semkin, Mary Ann Kahrs and Linda Smith.

Second place winner and alternate, was the Houstonia 4-H Club, "Confusion, Incorporated," and was an extremely funny comedy, directed by Jan Blackburn and Sondra Wood. At one corner of the stage stood a boy reading aloud a long article from a magazine to the audience, never looking up, never smiling, just reading, as noise and confusion of all kinds went on around him. The cleaning woman came down the stairway and across the stage bumping along a metal chair, she cleaned everything even dusted the reader and smoothed his hair, someone kept coming on the stage screaming in a loud voice, "Anybody seen Rosemary," someone played a toy musical instrument solo, another did a flapper dance, two girls in one coat and one tie sang an off key song, a boy came on selling pies yelling his ware, and the cleaning woman's mop handle knocked the pie in the pie seller's face. When Rosemary was at last found she was a skunk and that sent everybody, even the reader, whom nothing could disturb, off the stage.

Presenting the comedy were: Kathy Alexander, Connie Fischer, Paula Fischer, Peggy Baker, Maria Fischer, Vicky Alexander, Lonnie Pauley, Jonathan Grant and Lori Minkler.

Prospects Are Good For Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina, to many onlookers, is acting like a country expecting a miracle. It could get one, if it has the patience to wait for it.

If things go right, Argentina has prospects of an economic blood transfusion from flight capital and, with its great potential, could get a running start toward leadership of all Latin America.

Despite the enormous problems ahead, optimists among economists and businessmen seem to outnumber pessimists. The United States is looking on hopefully, fingers crossed.

Paul J. Wallin, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Buenos Aires, estimates there are a billion dollars in Argentine capital abroad, equal to the entire U.S. investment in this country. He predicts that, the way things look now, this capital will begin flowing back to Argentina within six months, denoting a restoration of confidence.

Capital flowed out over the past 20 years, a period marked by the dictatorship of Juan Domingo Peron and, after his downfall, a succession of do-nothing governments hamstrung by Peron's heritage.

Paradoxically, it has taken a new dictatorship to engender confidence. This one, under Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, is pledged to place the country on the road to heavy reliance on private enterprise, and to build an economic base giving popular government in the future a chance to flourish.

The Ongania regime started slowly. It moved cautiously to break down opposition from the predominantly Peronist and politically powerful ranks of organized labor.

Ongania acted to cut deadwood from the government bureaucracy. He shook up ministries and surrounded himself with civilian public servants charged with the task of seeking international confidence. He dissolved political parties and ended overt political activity.

The opposition remains potentially strong. One of the tough nuts to crack is the railroad union. Because of featherbedding, neglect, bureaucracy and incredibly low fares — eight cents for a 115-mile run — the state-run railroads are costing Argentina more than $200 million in losses each year. That is nearly half the total government deficit.

The Ongania government a pears to have worked up considerable steam and to have won over a large body of public opinion in this nation of 22 million.

The regime has acted to break down some tariff barriers on the assumption that Argentine goods are overprotected and needed competition.

The keys to Ongania's success will be his battle with organized Peronist labor, long accustomed to being coddled and wielding enormous political power, and his success with revitalizing the economy, notably in agriculture, which is its backbone.

People In The News

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Edgar N. Eisenhower, 78, brother of the former president, and his third wife, Lucille, have been granted a divorce.

The couple had been married since 1950. Eisenhower, a Tacoma attorney, sued for divorce last October on grounds of a "burdensome home life."

Superior Court Judge Bartlett Rummel granted the divorce to both parties Thursday on the basis of a two-year separation.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., hopes to be back in Washington, D.C., early next week after a bout with the flu.

The senator, who entered Good Samaritan Hospital April 19, said Thursday he plans to stay on several more days "to make sure I'm completely recovered."

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Movie star Cary Grant arrived alone in his English birthplace Thursday night and denied that his marriage was on the rocks.

Grant told newsmen he and his fourth wife Dyan "are great friends."

Grant has been married to the 29-year-old actress for just over two years. They have a daughter, Jennifer, 13 months.

"I shall be bringing the family when I come back to England this summer to make a film," he said. He came to Bristol this time to see his 87-year-old mother, Elsie Leach, who lives in a nursing home.

DETROIT (AP) — David F. Engel is driving 275 miles this weekend to pick up his diploma at the University of Detroit.

But the diploma will be the only thing new about the trip. Engel, 23, has been making the 550-mile roundtrip between Detroit and Erie, Pa., each week for the past two years.

He started making the trip so he could get in some weekend courting with Mary Bauer, now Mrs. David F. Engel.

Since marriage he has continued the commuting to see his wife and work weekends as a milk truck driver for his father's dairy in Erie.

Ready For Her First Assignment

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Red-haired Maj. Jane E. McCullough is ready and eager for her next assignment, as the first uniformed woman in the U.S. Air Force to be stationed in Thailand.

Maj. McCullough, a native of Altoona, Pa., is no novice to foreign duty. In her 15 years in the Air Force, she has served three years in France and two in Turkey. Now she's packed — well, almost — and ready to leave for her Southeast Asia assignment next month.

"I have always wanted to go to Thailand," she said.

In fact, the major leaves the impression she is always eager for new assignments, anywhere the Air Force wants to send her.

She doesn't speak the Thai language — but then she didn't speak German or Turkish either, and says she had no problem communicating with the people of either country. Sign language works almost anywhere, she's found.

Maj. McCullough has been comptroller of the 443rd Military Airlift at Tinker Air Force Base here since 1962. In Thailand, she will serve in the same capacity with the 432nd Combat Support Group, at the Udorn Royal Thai Air Force Base in Northern Thailand.

Busy now "clearing" Tinker, Maj. McCullough plans to leave here about May 1 on a 10-day leave, which she hopes to spend with friends in Seattle, Wash. She will depart for Thailand May 12 from Travis AFB in California.

She's had a few surprises in her preparations for duty in Southeast Asia. She has to obtain a military driver's license, the first she's ever had, and qualify as a "rifleman," although U.S. military personnel in Thailand do not carry weapons.

"I'd never fired a gun in my life," she said laughing, "but I qualified."

When she reported on her driver's test, expecting to check out in an ordinary car, she was told she was required to handle "anything up to 1½ tons." And she passed the first time, in a 1½-ton Air Force truck.

Perhaps her biggest problem is squeezing enough uniforms and other personal possessions to last out her year's assignment into a 100-pound weight limit on baggage. It isn't all packed, but she says: "I've made up my mind what I'm going to take and what I'm going to mail to myself."

It's a sure thing Maj. McCullough will be taking her camera along. She says about the nearest thing she has to a hobby is collecting color slides of the places she has visited.

Maj. McCullough joined the Air Force in 1952 after working for several years with the Census Bureau, the War Production Board and the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington. In addition to Tinker and her two previous overseas assignments, she has served at Fairchild AFB at Washington and McClelland AFB in California.

The daughter of an Altoona attorney, Maj. McCullough says she doesn't really know why she picked the Air Force as a career, but since the deaths of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McCullough, the Air Force has become her family.

All the students are Smith-Cotton sophomores.

Mrs. M. E. Thorp, reading chairman, reported the list of new books at the library. She also talked on "Are You a Sharp Shopper," and "Counting Calories."

Mrs. Roy Neighbors told about Crime Alert and what to watch for and report.

Mrs. Virginia Watring was a guest.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. M. E. Thorp, 519 West Broadway.

Lindbergh's Heritage

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Writer

The radio barks out abulletin:

"A tiny rocket ship shot into space today on history's first solo flight to the moon. The craft, ss overloaded with fuel it had trouble getting off, carries no radio and there has been no direct word from the pilot on his progress."

Sound fantastic?

Perhaps — but it was only 40 years ago that the world was electrified by a feat then as daring as a maverick moon shot would be today.

On the morning of May 20, 1927, Charles A. Lindbergh headed out over the Atlantic in a fragile monoplane sluggish with extra gasoline. He landed 33½ hours later in Paris, the first man to make a nonstop solo transatlantic flight.

Lindbergh became a national hero overnight and, although he has dropped from the limelight through his own wishes, his name ranks among the greats of manned flight.

From this vantage point in time it is apparent that "Lucky Lindy" did more than set a distance mark — records were falling fast in those days. His true distinction lies in the fact that he turned the world's eyes to the skies more than any man before him.

From Lindbergh's adventure sprang a public enthusiasm for flight that has led to ever greater projects, culminating today in a vast undertaking to vault men to the moon.

Now, little more than half life span later, transatlantic flight is routine. Lindbergh's 122-mile-an-hour speed has been quintupled by 150-passenger jet liners, and just ahead are supersonic transports that will cover in two hours the 3,600-hile route that took him a day and a half.

A prototype of these SST's, the huge XB70A bomber, has already pioneered their 2,000 m.p.h. crusing speeds. Rocket planes from the X1 to the X15 have gradually pushed atmospheric flight to more than 4,200 m.p.h.—six times the velocity of sound.

Beyond the atmosphere, in cramped one- and two-man capsules, U.S. astronauts have racked up more than 2,000 man-hours whirling around the earth at nearly 18,000 m.p.h. They are practicing for three-day jaunts across the quarter-million miles to the moon.

In 40 years man has progressed to a point where hopping fromcontinent to continent is tame; onw he is ready to leap the void between celestial bodies. The transition wasn't easy.

Step by slow step, man had to forge a whole new science. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, although far advanced beyond the box-kite contraptions in which he learned to fly, was still only a wood-and-metal skeleton covered with fabric. Then, as he and other daredevils of the late 190s demonstrated the tremendous potential of aviation, great changes came about.

Landing gear were retracted to lessen wind resistance. Engines no longer carried the weight of liquids to cool them; they utilized the cold air through which they flew. Improved fuels and design increased the engines' power, and they could haul the weight of metal skins needed for better streamlining.

By the early 1930s the airplane had evolved into a fairly safe, reasonably economical vehicle, and it began to move people and goods in quantity. The Boeing 247 in 11933 and the Douglas DC series, starting in 1934, made flight a comfortable mode of travel for the first time. With soundproofed cabins against the roar of twin engines, they opened a new era of transportation.

In the late 1930s four-engine propeller planes appeared, enabling regular transocean flights. You could fly around the world in four days in a business suit, looking only a little rumpled when you got home.

When World War II erupted, both civil and military aviation went global. Britain staggered under the first assaults of German bombers, recovered and, with the help of U.S. air power, launched a round-the-clock battering of Hitler's industrial centers. B17 Flying Fortresses and B24 Liberators and British Lancasters fought through flak and enemy fighters with enough bombs to level whole cities.

In the Pacific, Japanese bombers all but wiped out the U.S. battleship fleet at Pearl Harbor. But they missed the U.S. aircraft carriers, and the carriers spearheaded the American drive across the Pacific to Japan. B29 bombers, flying from bases in the Mariansas, destroyed Japan's cities. Then in one week in August 1945 Hiroshima and Nagasaki nearly perished in the birth of the atomic age. Those atom bombs were delivered by four-engine, propeller-driven B29s.

Halfway around the world, German and British designers were developing vehicles that would give atomic might incredible speed and range: jet engines and rockets.

The first jet-powered plane was the German Heinkel HE178, flown Aug. 27, 1939. In May 1941 the British flew their first Gloster jet. The first U.S. jet, a Bell XP59A, flew Oct. 1, 1942, at Edward Air Force Base, Calif.

By the end of the war the Germans had 1,300 Me262 twin-jet fighters, but they came too late to affect the outcome. Also too late were Germany's V1 buzz-bomb, an unmanned jet plane with a 2,000-pound warhead which appeared in 1944, and the V2 ballistic rocket, which a year later began vaulting 60 miles into the air and striking targets 200 miles away. These were the forerunners of nuclear-armed intercontinental missiles.

The end of the war disrupted aviation industries for a time, but soon they were busy again. Boeing built the KC135, an aerial tanker to refuel smaller craft in flight and give them ocean-spanning range. Carrying nuclear bombs instead of fuel, the same craft became the swept-wing, eight-jet B52.

Four-jet passenger liners, mainly the Boeing 707 and the Douglas DC8, brought unprecedented comfort and speed to the civilian world of flying. Now the continents were only hours apart.

Aircraft production spurted, and by 1957 was the largest single manufacturing effort in the United States, employing more than 900,000 people. Besides the jets, military and civilian, there were now the helicopters. First used in the Korean War, they came of full military age in Vietnam, where thousands are in use as gunshops, troop transports, rescue ships. In civilian dress they were finding a hundred uses in transportation, construction and rescue.

With civilian jets, the number of passengers soared. From a mere 6,000 a year in Lindbergh's day, the total zoomed to 100 million in 1966, in the United States alone.

Meantime, a purely research craft, the rocket-driven X15, explored the problems of flight at 4,200 m.p.h. and 350,000 feet—above the fringes of the atmosphere and more than halfway to orbital heights.

On the Edwards AFB dry lake bed in California, even stranger craft are being tested. Wingless half-bullet shapes, called lifting bodies, are being readied to conquer the problem of maneuverability in returning from space. These vehicles, called the M2F2 and the HL 10, are forerunners of space ferries that someday will be able to land at any point on earth from any point in orbit. Current versions are gliders but future models will have jets to enable them to change course on the way down.

Adopt Resolution

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — The Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association has adopted a resolution saying capital punishment should remain as a penalty for murder.

Johnson Steals Spotlight From Victor Borge

Humphrey was billed as the featured speaker and Borge was onstage when the President paid a surprise visit to the dinner.

Johnson quipped with newsmen, then grew serious and talked of Vietnam, saying of the war: "I hope and pray, but I cannot promise, that it will not be too long and that we will soon meet in peace."

The correspondents presented the Raymond Clapper award to Howard Simons, assistant managing editor of the Washington Post. Simons won the award, carrying a $1,000 cash prize, for a series of reports on locating and retrieving the U.S. H-bomb dropped in the Mediterranean.

A special citation went to Leonard Downie Jr. of the Washington Post for a series of articles on the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Frank Cormier of the Associated Press was installed as president of the association, succeeding Robert Thompson of the Los Angeles Examiner.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24, married and have one child. Last week I went to a bank to borrow money. I wanted to buy a new car. My credit is A-1, and everything checked out fine. Then I mentioned that I was a member of a reserve unit. The banker gave me a fishy eye and said, "Reserve unit, eh? Well, you'll have to get a co-signer for this loan."

I explained I didn't want a co-signer. I want to be solely responsible for my financial obligations. The banker then quoted a law saying any man who gets called to active duty may be temporarily relieved of his debts. His last words fractured me. He said, "If you get called up we would be stuck for the money until you got back."

I'm so burned up I can hardly see straight. Why should a loyal American who is serving his country by joining a reserve unit be treated this way? — CAN'T SEE IT

Dear Can't: The law that says a service man is temporarily relieved of his financial obligations was designed to help, not hurt, men in uniform. If you don't want a co-signer, go to a bank that does not require one. And more power to you, fella, I like your spirit of independence.

Dear Ann Landers: I have always been high-strung and nervous. A few years ago I had a breakdown and spent several months in a private mental hospital. I still see my doctor because he gives me self-confidence.

My question is this: When friends know you have been hospitalized for mental illness, why do they treat you as if you are some sort of an oddball? I try to be relaxed and behave in a normal manner, but I have the feeling that people are always analyzing me and looking for signs of abnormal behavior.

The only friends I am truly at ease with are those who also have had emotional breakdowns.

My husband is a wonderful man and we have four children who are normal and above-average students. Please tell me how I can get people to accept me as I am. — VANCOUVER

Dear Van: Your central problem is lack of confidence and an over - active imagination. What you see in others is a reflection of your own insecurity. When you become truly secure you will no longer be concerned about what others are thinking.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the lovely letter from the woman who made her husband's retirement years the happiest years of their married life.

Have you noticed that the people who make the best of difficult situations enjoy life the most? It's too bad people so often marry and then try to change each other. Women are guilty of this more often than men.

When I complained to my mother, early in our marriage, that my husband left his underwear and sox on the floor, she said, "Pick them up and shut up about it. It takes less energy than nagging him."

I took her advice and I am sure it has saved many an argument. Please tell young wives that we must be flexible enough to put up with less than perfection on those we love.—RUTH

Dear Ruth: You told them. And beautifully, too. Your mother's advice sounds like a line out of this column. I've been saying the same thing for years.

Peking's Image Has Been Hurt

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution has damaged the image of Peking throughout Asia. It has alienated sympathizers among the overseas Chinese living outside China, and has embarrassed pro-Peking politicians.

An Associated Press survey of the countries bordering mainland China shows no evidence that the cultural revolution has created any fresh enthusiasm for Mao and Communist China, despite their claims it has. Almost daily its pro-Mao news outlets, the New China News Agency (NCNA) and Radio Peking, tell of praise abroad for the cultural revolution.

Actually, even Peking's friends abroad are dismayed. The Japan Socialist party, a long time supporter of Mao, had a disappointing general election showing in January and blames the China strife.

The pro-Peking Communists in India have been forced to rationalize; they say Marx teaches that all Communist countries must go through a phase like China's.

One result has been the indirect strengthening of pro-American forces, such as Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's Liberal Democratic party in Japan. Another result has been the defection of Asian Communists from Peking's influence to Moscow's.

For many of the 18 million overseas Chinese in Asian countries, the cultural purge has spawned second thoughts and doubts.

These people include Communists and pro-Communists, Nationalists and pro-Nationalists, Independents and neutrals. Almost all have a sense of pride in their homeland. Even among the non-Communists and some pro-nationalists, there has been a feeling of respect — and to some extent satisfaction — in the progress made by Communist China.

Now many overseas Chinese feel that Mao and his youthful Red Guards have made all the Chinese people a laughing stock.

In Hong Kong, a middle-aged Chinese woman, strongly anti-Communist and hard as nails in most things, wept as she talked of the "degradation of the Chinese image" because of Mao's cultural purge.

"How can we Chinese, no matter where we live or what we believe, hold up our heads when the Chinese in our homeland make such fools of themselves?" she asked.

This kind of questioning among the overseas Chinese could win new support for Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists on Formosa.

Week In Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A resurgence of automobile sales brought joy to the industry and encouragement to other segments of the economy during the week.

The sales increase was interpreted as an indication of improvement in consumers' buying inclinations due to an easier money situation and lessened anxiety about the outlook for the economy.

Sales of U.S.-made cars in the middle 10 days of April edged up 1 per cent to 258,230 from 256,677 a year earlier following a 4 per cent gain in early April.

This was in sharp contrast to a 21 per cent sales slump in the first three months of this year from the 1966 first quarter.

"The worst is behind us," said E.M. Estes, general manager of General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet Division.

As a result of the sales spurt, automakers were reported to have restored 80,000 cars to their second-quarter production schedules.

Current schedules call for about 2,155,000 cars this quarter. When the period began, plans were for production of 2,075,000 assemblies, and that had been sliced by 125,000 cars from original plans.

The car market's slump in the first quarter was graphically illustrated by revenue and earnings reports of General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp.

General Motors, the No. 1 automaker, earned $390 million, or $1.35 a share, down 35 per cent from $594 million, or $2.07 a share, a year earlier.

Chrysler reported a 71 per cent decline to $18.2 million, or 40 cents a share, from $62.5 million, or $1.38 a share.

Ford Motor Co. and American Motors Corp. will report next week.

The steel industry also found the first quarter a period of declining profits.

U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, earned $41,133,650 or 76 cents a share, in the first three months of this year against $50,089,511, or 93 cents a share, a year earlier despite a sales increase to $964,628,626 from $949,591,094.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., second ranking, reported earnings of $32,245,000, or 70 cents a share, down from $36,682,000, or 80 cents a share, on a sales gain to $638,534,000 from $615,967,000.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Republic Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and National Steel Corp. also reported lower profits.

Steel executives attributed the profits decline in part to higher labor costs and unusually severe winter weather.

On the other hand, major oil companies fared well from a profit standpoint in the first quarter. Shell Oil Co., Mobil Oil Corp., Gulf Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co., Texaco, Inc., Cities Service Co. and Sunray DX Oil Co. reported gains. Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey,) biggest of all, posted a 7 per cent gain in revenue but its earnings were unchanged from a year earlier.

The cost of living rose in March to a record 115 per cent of the 1957-59 average, up 0.2 per cent from the previous high of 114.8 per cent in February.

More than half the March increase was caused by higher costs of services, the Labor Department reported. Grocery store food prices went down only about half as much as they usually do at that time of year, and apparel prices rose contrary to seasonal expectations.

Steel production for the week declined 1.8 per cent to 2,385,000 tons from 2,428,000 the previous week.

The New York Stock Exchange selected Robert W. Haack, president of the National Association of Securities Dealers, to be its new president.

Haack, 50, will take office this fall, succeeding Keith Funston, who announced last September that he would not accept a new contract when his agreement expired a year later. Funston will become chairman of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.

TV's Impact On Politics

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you have enough money, you can now — in theory — elect almost any personable young man to any office in the United States.

Public relations specialists will polish his image and manage his campaign.

Advertising agencies will determine what media should be used and how, and will produce a zippy slogan — it doesn't have to make sense — to catch the voter's eye.

Poll-takers will decide what he should say and when and to whom he should say it.

Speech writers, lighting experts, voice coaches and skilled cameramen will make sure it all comes out precisely right.

Alas, success cannot be always guaranteed because (1) the opposition will not be standing still — maybe his ad boy will outslogan your ad boy; (2) safely inside a polling booth the voter won't necessarily behave as he is supposed to, and (3) getting enough money may prove insurmountable.

Chiefly because of television, politics has changed more in texture and in style in the past 15 years than in the previous 150.

It has moved from the smoke-filled cubicle to the elegant conference room with the inevitable modernistic paintings on antiseptic walls, from harangues to small meetings to city, state or nationwide blanketing by television, from intuition and guesswork to scientific, or maybe pseudoscientific, gadgetry.

But nowhere has the change been as dramatic as in the high cost of politicking.

A politician can now spend:

$40,000 to be elected mayor of Springfield, Mass., (population, 165,520).

$50,000 and up to become congressman from a competitive district. Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, whose name alone is a powerful asset, spent at least $168,682.31 to be elected in Cincinnati.

Anywhere from half million to a million dollars to win a major state, either as senator or governor. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller poured out $5 million in winning re-election in New York.

Almost unlimited resources to shoot for the presidency. In 1964 Sen. Barry Goldwater and Rockefeller each spent more than $2 million in the California primary alone. Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, who arrived at the Republican convention too late with too little, nevertheless scattered $827,000 along the way, and even Harold Stassen, who caused scarcely a ripple, got rid of more than $70,000.

So it is hardly surprising that the backers of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, barely open for business, are already budgeting in the millions in their effort to win the GOP presidential nomination.

But it has been understood that only the very well-to-do can afford the time and money demanded for the long and difficult presidential chase. What has not been understood is that at all levels costs have climbed alarmingly.

Leading Democrats and Republicans agree that, at a time when the nation needs its best, excellent men in both parties don't seek office for the simplest of reasons: they can't afford it.

While everyone deplores this trend, no one knows what to do about it, and the only answer presented so far is, raise more money.

Despite this primacy of money, it still is difficult to uncover the answer to these questions:

How much did the candidate spend?

Where did he get his money?

Election laws are often so antiquated and unrealistic that only by ignoring them can anyone hope to win. Usually this is done by piling campaign committee upon campaign committee until the candidate himself only vaguely knows what has been done in his behalf.

Lyn Nofziger, press secretary for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, says he assumes $3 million was spent electing Reagan, but that this has to remain an estimate.

"Someone will hand you a bundle of airplane tickets," Nofziger said. "And I drove a car around throughout the campaign and never paid a nickel. I don't think anyone can tell you precisely how much we spent."

California Democrats agree with Nofziger, only they feel he is far too modest in his assumptions. They think Reagan spent between $5 million and $6 million.

However imprecise, the figures are staggering, and not only in a state as large and complex as California.

Probably the nation's No. 1 congressional race last year was in Cincinnati: Robert Taft vs. Rep. John J. Gilligan, a one-term Democrat. Both young, articulate, both from well-known families, the Tafts top-flight politicians, the Gilligans leading morticians.

Both spent copiously.

Taft, the victor, poured out $169,000. Gilligan thinks maybe another $35,000 to $40,000 were spent in Taft's behalf. Gilligan spent some $79,769.95. And Taft thinks maybe Gilligan got another $60,000 in free services furnished by the taxpayers in such things as mailing and trips.

Whatever the total, both agree it is far, far too much.

Taft: "I don't know what the end is going to be. I really don't."

Ohio's election laws require strict accounting, and Gilligan and Taft, unlike many of their colleagues, talked willingly about their finances.

Here's the way the Taft money went: main campaign headquarters, $35,000; press assistants, $20,000; 11 neighborhood stores for regional headquarters, $37,000; television, radio, $38,000; agency fees, $10,000; outdoor ads, $7,000; giveaways (photos, gimmicks), $12,000; IBM voter survey, $10,000.

Gilligan figures he spent about 40 per cent, or around $32,000, on television, 25 per cent on printed materials and the rest for headquarters, salaries and telephones. Judging from the bills, the phone companies seem the only sure winners in elections.

Although his family is rich, Gilligan says he went $4,500 into debt in the 1964 campaign and still hasn't paid it back. A former college professor, Gilligan now sells insurance.

Politics is public relations — Lincoln waiting for the moment to get the most good out of his Emancipation Proclamation is a classic example — so it was perhaps inevitable that with the growth of campaign expenditures the professionals would scurry in.

They flourish in California: Whitaker & Baxter, so highly regarded, one story runs, that when Goodwin Knight learned he couldn't hire the firm he decided not to run for re-election as governor. Spencer-Roberts, which worked for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the 1964 presidential primary and for Ronald Reagan in 1966.

Baus & Ross, which holds the ideological broadjump record, working for Goldwater in 1964 and for Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1966.

It also has Hal Evry, who once advertised that for $60,000 he could make anyone a state senator. "For that kind of money," an old politician grumbled, "my secretary can make anybody a state senator."

"Less than five per cent of all office seekers have any idea of what is involved in winning a political campaign today," Evry says. "It takes a public relations person to communicate with voters."

Evry thinks he elected a state senator mainly with this snappy slogan: "Three Cheers for Pat Milligan."

He laments that he has found no candidate willing to swallow his great, all-purpose concoction: "Banish Parking Meters!"

"Everybody hates them," Evry says.

Although hundreds of public relations firms and agencies dip into politics, only a dozen or so are equipped to manage a campaign completely. Since politics is seasonal, all depend on business accounts for survival. Most confine their politicking pretty much to their home state.

But not flamboyant Joseph Napolitan. His home base is Springfield, Mass., but he also has offices in Boston and Washington, plus tie-ins with Paris and London.

Yet Napolitan's major electioneering feat came in Pennsylvania last fall where he managed Milton Shapp, 54, electronics manufacturer and millionaire who yearned to be governor.

Shapp illustrated the advantages and disadvantages of money.

Without big money Shapp, the outsider, could never have beaten the Democratic establishment in the primaries. To accomplish this, he spent $1,390,000, and all but $3,000 was his own.

By Napolitan's figures, Shapp and Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, the Republican who beat him, spent $800,000 producing and showing television film.

The disadvantage of big money is that your foe can claim that you're trying to buy the election, which is what happened to Shapp.

Now that it's over, Shapp has had a county-by-county study made of GOP expenditures. He says it shows the Republicans spent $5,446,315.28 to his $2.5 million.

"I knew damn well the fat cats were putting it in by the bucketfuls," Shapp said recently. "I was criticized because I was spending my own money. Yet a guy who goes out and raises his own money has got to make commitments and those commitments are going to be paid off."

Ironically but logically, the man who spent his own money so unstintingly is a chief worrier about high campaign costs.

"Most people who have ability shy away from running for office," he says. "The result is that those who do have position of power are several notches down the line from the best."

Naturally Napolitan favors professionals. "I saved Milton a quarter of a million, maybe half a million dollars."

Eventually, Napolitan believes, the politician, like the prize fighter, will battle only under professional management.

"If you're going to spend a million dollars, it doesn't make sense not to have someone who knows how to get the most for your money."

But if you piled in enough money, and hired enough technicians, could you really elect any personable young man who projects neatly?

Milton Shapp: "I believe it. Absolutely, I believe it."

Clifton C. Carter, former top political assistant to Lyndon B. Johnson: "Right now it's pretty close to that."

Joe Napolitan: "Yeah, theoretically you could. But if you don't have the professional or the big money, do you have any guarantee you're going to get quality people in office? There are some principles and scruples in this business. I won't take anybody—and I don't think my competitors will either—unless he's a pretty decent guy."

THE WALL drama in the divided city of Berlin has died down recently, but the structure still stands and is even being reinforced by a second wall in some sections, as seen here. This "double wall" site is at the Bernauer Strasse border sector.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Althought Canada has complete political autonomy, the queen of England is still considered the country's head of state, says The World Almanac. Actually, the queen has virtually no power. Her duties are confined to such actions as instituting new military decorations or dedicating new bridges or buildings when she is in Canada.

World News In Brief

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Military sources said today acting President Gen. Suharto is planning major reassignments of Indonesian army leaders to insure that loyal officers are in command of key areas.

They said Suharto probably will give up command of the army to his deputy, Lt. Gen. M. Wanggabean. Maj. Gen. Alamsjah, a tough anti-Communist, is expected to be named third deputy army commander.

Suharto already has replaced commanders in Central and East Java, strongholds of the Communist subversives.

NEW DELHI, India, (AP) — India expects a number of starvation deaths this year despite predictions that the nation, recovering from three years of drought, will grow six million tons more grain than last year.

Observers say in some areas, especially Bihar State in northeast India, reserves from the 1964 grain crop of 80 million tons have been used up and it is impossible to import grain fast enough to prevent starvation in some areas.

The Agriculture Ministry predicted today that Indian farms would produce 78 million tons of grain this year compared with 72.3 million last year.

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German navy wants to order about 10 more rocket-equipped warships from U.S. shipyards but the government probably can't afford the $750 million cost, the Social Democratic party says.

The party's press service said Thursday the navy's high command also would like to speed up construction of three rocket-equipped destroyers now on order in the United States and to convert a number of fast, small boats to rocket weapons.

The report said the government's tight budget has hurt the navy's submarine program.

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Puebla University students, who held five policemen hostage for 15 hours, met with the state governor Friday night and agreed to submit their complaints against the police to judges.

About 500 students broke windows and wrecked furniture in a police station, burned a patrol car, injured an officer and seized five policemen Thursday night.

They released the hostages when Gov. Aaron Merino Fernandez agreed to hear their demands that Enrique Cabrera, a student arrested several months ago for agitation, be released and that Police Chief Luis Ponce de Leon and Cmdr. Antonio Gomez resign.

In Mexico City, a rightist university student group charged that Prof. Enrique Semo Caleb of Mexico's National University instigated the student violence after the Soviet Union's ambassador in Mexico, Semion T. Bazaroz, paid him to do so.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Campaigning for next Wednesday's election, President Chung Hee Park defended himself today against charges by his main opponent, who wants to take South Korean troops out of Vietnam.

Speaking before an estimated 300,000 persons in a Seoul park, the president said the Vietnam war is closely linked with South Korea's security. He denied the charge of his opponent, former President Yun Po-sun, that diversion of 45,000 troops from the Korean front for Vietnam duty weakened defenses against Communist North Korea.

Park did not refer to his opponent's charge thatthe government planned to send 50,000 more soldiers to Vietnam after the election.

TV Show To Help Used Car Buyers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you in the market for a used car but the only test you know is kicking the tires? The best advice you can get is to watch your local television schedules for an upcoming program on an educational station called "Your Dollar's Worth: Wheels and Deals."

"Your Dollar's Worth" is a year-old series — it used to be "Dollars and Sense" — dedicated to the education of the consumer.

In the course of the series, broadcast on more than 112 educational TV stations, viewers have learned how to shop more wisely for food, save money on gasoline, borrow money at the lowest interest rate, lose weight economically, look in the right places for trouble spots when house-hunting.

The series names brands and stores with an abandon possibly only on noncommercial stations: Industry spokesmen are invited to participate in the programs, which are made in collaboration by the National Educational Television network and the Consumers Union.

Angry sputterings have been heard. Two programs on the sale of over-the-counter drugs did not please the pharmaceutical industry. A revealing program about television repairs, touching on some unscrupulous operators, brought what an N.E.T. spokesman called "vociferous blasts" from various TV repairmen associations.

Used cars is another very sensitive area. The show will instruct viewers what to look for, how to translate sales jargon into ordinary English, and generally wise up the unwary shopper.

Last October the monthly half-hour was devoted to diet foods and pills. It identified the contents of alleged appetite-depressing pills and candies, explained the theory of precounted calorie foods and wound up with the traditiinal warning: "The best way to lose weight is first of all to consult the physician."

In December, "Your Dollar's Worth" undertook the job of explaining what octane in gasoline means and discussed wryly the advantages of tigers, dinosaurs and mileage ingredients. It concluded that most gasolines are pretty much alike and that the wise buyer will consult his car-owner's manual for advice on octane contents.

The list of possible programs is almost endless. And, obviously, educational television stations are the only ones that can tackle consumer education with no holds barred.

The project was dreamed up by William H. Kobin, at one time a public affairs program producer for ABC and CBS, who is now N.E.T.'s programming vvice president. He made a pilot show — it was shelved — but the idea was revived in 1964 when producer Harry McCarthy also moved over from commercial television. McCarthy made the arrangement with Consumers' Union.

Senanayake's Prestige Is Suffering

MATARA, Ceylon (AP) — Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake and his leftist predecessor, Sirimavo Bandaranaike, are matching their prestige in current political campaigns although national elections aren't due until 1970.

This comes about because six special elections, or bye-elections, have been held recently in various districts.

And in all six Mrs. Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom party — SLFP — has defeated the prime minister's United National party — UNP.

Though the elections have meant only a loss of one parliamentary seat, Senanayake's prestige is suffering. In addition he and Cabinet members are losing days campaigning at a time when Ceylon's critical food and economic problems demand attention.

Senanayake has a comfortable majority in Parliament with 93 of the 157 seats, but it is generally conceded that if nationwide elections were held today Mrs. Bandaranaike would be returned to office.

Part of the reason for this slippage is attributed to Senanayake's halving of the rice ration a couple of months ago. This is a country of rice eaters, but Senanayake seemed to have no choice. Some Western observers say it was a bold move, showing the government's determination to take unpopular steps in order to make progress.

One bye-election was in this far southern district of Devinuwara, a district running along 12 miles of coast and 12 miles inland through tiny paddyfield holdings.

In an interview with this reporter Senanayake said:

"Our opposition is making a big issue of the racial question. You see there are two major communities — Sinhalese and Tamils (South Indians). In my government I have all the racial elements together, but accusations are being made that this was done at the betrayal of the Sinhalese.

"We have a food production program under way. We are pushing more use of fertilizer and better seed. By 1970 we want to be 75 per cent self-sufficient in rice. If we have normal weather, we'll make it."

A few miles away in a seashore village, Mrs. Bandaranaike was speaking to an excited group of fishermen and their families.

She said the rice ration would be doubled if her party were in power. She argued that Tamils were taking over areas traditionally held by the Sinhalese. She said the Tamils posed a threat to the Sinhalese language and that the Tamils treat the Sinhalese "with contempt."

Asked if she is a communist as the opposition contends. Jayakody said, "She was misquoted by Ceylon newspapers. We would stick to nonalignment if we were in power."

Area Members Attend ABWA Convention

Mrs. Evelyn Rabourn and Miss Mary Merritt of Sedalia, and Mrs. Laura Cox and Mrs. Beulah Jones, of Marshall, all members of the Sedalia Chapter, American Business Women's Association, attended the convention of ABWA, Southwest District, held in St. Louis at Gateway Hotel, on April 14, 15 and 16. The district is composed of the states of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Mrs. Rabourn was recognized and introduced to the group as a member of the "Inner Circle" which is composed of members who have sponsored 11 or more members.

The local chapter also received an award for its bulletin, ranking in the top ten for the district.

Attending were 516 women registered for the convention, together with the members of the national headquarters staff; Hilary Bufton, William Blair, Mrs. Florence Barrett and Mrs. Lola Mulloy. Bufton announced that there are more than 40,000 members of the American Business Women's Association.

Side-Street Shows Spell Good Fortune

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Off-Broadway's spirited comeback is turning into the big break for a batch of young players from all over the map.

One shapely miss hails from Cherokee ancestry. One deft chap has performed everything from a robot in love with a water cooler to a piece of rye toast.

Several are lucky first-timers, others are savoring the spotlight after long labor. What they share is freak good luck in a usually unlikely zone for spectacular show success.

In a reversal of form, little side-street shows downtown and up are providing more opportunity to hopefuls than the Times Square big-time.

Broadway's recent creative output has turned so sluggish that even established names are having difficulty. As David Merrick puts it, "We're playing with a cold deck."

In contrast, off-Broadway — where lowe budgets naturally mean more employment for the struggling — has shaken off the doldrums of several seasons with 10 strong boxoffice draws. In a half dozen of them, major attention centers on utter or comparative unknowns.

Consider Jackie Alloway, in her first New York appearance as the Amazon queen in a shiny revival of "By Jupiter." Miss Alloway, whose eyes are sometimes blue-grey and sometimes green and who refuses to divulge exact dimensions so they can "remain an illusion," arrived here four years ago from her native Tulsa, Okla.

Tours in stock, and like everyone else in the group, TV commercials kept her eating. The 26-year-old vocalist has one talent unshared by the others. She's an expert marksman who, however, left the artillery in Oklahoma.

Another damsel, impressive for drollery, is Reva Rose, also 26, of Chicago. Since beginning at the Goodman Theater there, Miss Rose has trekked far and long, from West Coast musicals to off-Broadway drama, from a Walt Disney film ("Moon Pilot") to being a private detective, a waitress in an Arab restaurant and demonstrator of electric knives.

As Lucy, the intractable heroine of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," the young comedienne has indubitably arrived. The show is based upon the "Peanuts" character and appears to be the biggest Greenwich Village jackpot since arrival back in 1960 of "The Fantasticks," still going strong.

Sharing top attention with her in the Charlie Brown sage is Bill Hinnant. Around longer than the others, the diminutive 31-year-old dynamo from Chincoteague, Va., is enjoying his biggest success after expeditions into television and a couple of sorties on Broadway.

Hinnant portrays Snoopy, an incorrigible but philosophic pup, in convincing style and with negligible costuming. Being what he isn't comes fairly easily for the Yale University drama alumnus who previously has been called on to impersonate a neurotic ogre, the aforementioned romantic robot and toasted rye.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., (AP) — A Roman Catholic nun says she will work as a reporter this summer on the Milwaukee Sentinel, and she'll wear regular clothing rather than her religious habit.

"I hope to do a professional job." Sister Mary Sharon, 27, said Friday, "but there are times when being known as a nun might prove a handicap."

Sister Sharon teaches journalism and English at Milwaukee's Divine Savior High School. She was hired by the Sentinel under the summer intern program for student journalists.

She plans to donate her $90-a-week salary to her religious order.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Patrick J. Nugent, who is married to President Johnson's daughter Luci, is helping with a $750,000-fund drive to erect a YMCA building in Austin.

Nugent is chairman of a committee to arrange a dinner for some 1,000 persons May 4 at which the need for a YMCA building will be presented.

The 69-year-old actor was discharged Thursday from Good Samaritan Hospital and returned to the Beverly Hills hotel where he had been staying. His home is in New Milford, Conn.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Judy Garland and 20th Century-Fox Studio are unable to agree over the circumstances of her abrupt departure from the movie "Valley of the Dolls."

A spokesman for the film company said Friday, "She withdrew Thursday for personal reasons."

Miss Garland, 44, said, "I have not withdrawn. How dare they say I've withdrawn? I was up at six this morning to go to work. I've done my work," she said.

"It's a shocking thing. Why? That's what I want to know, why?" Miss Garland asked.

The studio said no replacement has been named.

Will Respond To Any Big Offensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. officials say any major North Vietnamese offensive launched across the demilitarized zone into South Vietnam will be met with force.

If the Communists want to play rough, we will play rough, State Department officials said Friday night. They spoke under rules barring direct quotation or attributiont o them by name.

The officials agreed with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U. S. commander in Vietnam, and with reports from Saigon that North Vietnam probably will launch soon a major offensive across the DMZ.

They also reported a buildup of Communist forces around the DMZ and boosted infiltration preparations against the south.

The latter action, they said, cast doubt on the sincerity of the Viet Cong proposal for a 48-hour truce May 23-24 to observe Buddha's birthday anniversary. South Vietnam has proposed a one-day cease fire then.

Defense Department spokesmen said Friday the two North Vietnam MIG airfields bombed by U. S. planes Monday are back in operation.

It had been understood the bases, at Hoa Lac and Kep, were in use the day after the attacks, the first of their kind. The Pentagon declined to confirm this, however.

In other Vietnam-related developments Friday:

—President Johnson named Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr. as deputy to Westmoreland. Palmer succeeds Lt. Gen. Jean E. Engler as director of the Army element in Vietnam.

Johnson also promoted to lieutenant general Westmoreland's chief of staff, Maj. Gen. William B. Rosson, who will take over command of Field Force 1 in the central highlands. Promoted to three-star rank was Maj. Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, who will take command of Field Force 2, which encompasses the Saigon area.

—Michigan Gov. George Romney, whom some observers thought would avoid making the war a campaign issue if he seeks the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, said the war "obviously is of great importance to the nation and can't help but figure in domestic and national policy. There is no question that it will be an issue, regardless of what the candidates say or do."

—Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a potential third party candidate for president in 1968, apparently agreed with Romney.

"The first thing I'd do as president would be to let Hanoi know that Americans are solidly behind their soldiers," he said. "I'd use the Justice Department to stop overt acts aiding and abetting the enemy."

Some Water Districts Tax Exempt

Attorney General Norman H. Anderson in Opinion No. 109, issued to Don R. Ferry, Vernon visions of Missouri law is a ruled that a public water supply district organized under the pro-County Prosecuting Attorney, "political subdivision" within the meaning of that term as used in Constitution of Missouri, and such districts are not subject to sales or use tax for the purchase of materials or equipment made directly by the district out of its funds to be owned exclusively by and for the exclusive use of the district.

Anderson said the Missouri Constitution provides that the general assembly shall not have power to impose a use or sales tax upon the use, purchase or acquisition of property paid for out of the funds of any county or other political subdivision.

He said, inasmuch as public water supply districts are designated corporations and political corporations of this state and are given the power of taxation within the district no sales or use tax may be levied upon purchases paid for directly out of the funds of the district. The purchase of plastic pipe and other materials necessary to install a water supply system made directly by the district falls within this exemption.

Anderson stated that because a contractor who contracts to build an installation is liable for sales and use tax upon the materials used, as the ultimate consumer thereof, even though he is employed by an exempt organization, the exemption given to public water supply districts applies only to materials purchased directly by such districts out of their funds and owned exclusively by and for the exclusive use of the district.

Skipper On Final Run Of Ferry

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—"I tell you folks, it's not a very nice feeling to see the end of anything," said the pipe-smoking Scotsman skippering the ferry Elizabeth on her final commuter voyage across the Hudson River.

Capt. John Boyle tooted the Elizabeth's whistle three times as a passing tug sounded a nautical farewell.

The creaky ferry, plowing through a wind-whipped ebb tide, was nearing the Jersey side and the commuters began to gather on the deck below.

Boyle sounded three blasts of the ferry's whistle.

"It's very sad," he told a visitor. "It's like breaking up a family. Take me, my mate, the crew, we work together, eat together, we just about live together.

"Now, we'll all go our separate simple-minded ways and never see each other again."

The ferry will continue operating until 12:01 a.m. Sunday when the changeover officially takes effect, but the final trip for working commuters was made Friday.

The Staten Island ferry and the Erie-Lackawanna's Hoboken to New York ferry service continue operation.

The Jersey Central ferry was a historic water-link between Manhattan and the other side of the river.

The railroad's records show that the village of Bergen — now Jersey City — granted permission in 1661 to William Jansen to operate a ferry between this community and Manhattan Island.

Chosen For Degrees

Jerome A. Rouchka, Sedalia, was nominated for a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in chemistry at St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kan.

Circuit Convention Held Here

Sixteen congregations in the Kansas City, Sedalia, Clinton and western Missouri areas were represented at the semi-annual Circuit Assembly three-day convention held over the week-end at Convention Hall, Liberty Park.

Principal speaker was the Witnesses' District Director, Andrew Laguna, New York. He told the delegates, "We live in an age of doubt and disblief in God. In fact we even hear some say that 'God is dead." This assembly is to build up your faith in God so you can endure in this age of doubt." He followed this with a model ministry speaking school for student ministers.

Circuit Supervisor S. A. Jensen presented the latest Bible teaching methods developed by the Witnesses. Experienced ministers demonstrated their proven methods in stage skits showing the conventioners how to master the art of teaching Bible truths. Jensen urged conventioners to build men of such faith that they could teach others just as the Apostle Paul instructed Timothy.

Ten new ministers, one from Sedalia, were ordained. After hearing District Minister Laguna speak to them on "Dedication and Baptism" they were baptised by water immersion.

Highlights of the assembly Sunday was the documentary film "God Cannot Lie."

TODAY'S YOUTH with OWEN FOX

Pettis County Extension Youth Agent
University of Missouri Extension Division

As I listened to ten high school age young people report last week to the Rotary Club about their recently organized Interact Club and the excellent reports they gave, I was reminded how much adults misjudge teenagers.

If we were to limit our appraisal of the present characteristics of the American teenager to the newspaper, popular magazines, and radio and television newscasts, we would essentially see the following: "Teen - age Gang Steals Car," "Juveniles Arrested in Gang Killing", "Youth Dope Ring Smashed", "Police Raid Juvenile Vice Party", "Venereal Disease Rates Soar Among Teenagers", Delinquency and Crime Rates Among Youth Multiply Startlingly", "Pre-marital Pregnancies, Illegitmacy, and Abortions Among Teen-agers Become a National Scandal."

However, despite what is publicized, actually only two to five percent of the teen-agers get into trouble.

In recent years we read in the newspaper of 600 teen-agers who were involved in a riot in New York City. The same evening 10,000 youth assembled in Cleveland to listen to Billy Graham. The same day that we read in the newspaper that four youth are apprehended for stealing hub caps, 12,000 youth voluntarily assembled to listen to a former member of the President's committee on Youth Fitness and heard him admonish them to live a life that is moral, honest, and meaningful; to develop the capacity to become loving, mature, and contributing adults.

Talent Show

It was estimated that about 600 persons turned out to see the 4-H "Share the Fun" talent festival recently held at Smith-Cotton High School. It was certainly good to see the young people have the opportunity to express themselves through their talent. There were some good talent numbers from the various clubs. The planning committe will be working on how to cut the length of the program down for next year, as the program was a little long this year.

Another Page for History

A series of deaths of civic-minded Sedalians seem to be occurring with more rapidity and less interlude of time between them than might be expected.

Awareness of this attrition is more pronounced among older citizens whose acquaintance with those who pass on comes from more than superficial knowledge of their activities in our community. Younger persons are not as sensitive to these losses, but they will be as the years pass by.

It should be noted here that many of our citizens who seldom come to public attention accomplish silent service to others in church, home and office. Only intimate friends become really cognizant of their contributions to the community. Someone else, of course, is never oblivious of the performance of good deeds by men and women.

Then there are citizens who by the very nature of their diversified talents produce achievements which cannot go unrecognized by other than public attention and approval.

And so we come again to recognize the merits of a fellow Sedalian who no longer is with us in life—Major General John C. McLaughlin. "Jack" to most of us. He was a dedicated military man who saw the cruelest aspects of war which could make a cynic out of the most hardened individual.

But Jack was not a cynic. By his contact with the inhuman aspects of life he did not become inured to the gloomy view of things in general which so often among others negate the purpose of man's real mission on earth.

Jack McLaughlin was a positive thinker. Moreover, by leadership in military and civic life he could not evade public attention.

But more than a miiltary man, civic and business leader, he was a devoted family man and faithful in service to his church.

Jack had a life of full service to his fellow men. This will be recorded on an additional page of our community history.

Adam's Exit Saves Taxpayers' Money

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The taxpayers will be glad to know that Adam Clayton Powell's absence from Congress is being reflected in a sudden drop of spending for travel and staff personnel by the House Committee on Education and Labor, which Adam formerly headed.

The committee's new chairman, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., is systematically cutting down on all expenses and for the first time has introduced a bookkeeping system to account for evry penny of public money that comes in and goes out.

"I want you to feel free to examine the books at all times," Perkins told this column. "They will always be open from now on. We welcome scrutiny by the Press."

He has told Committee colleagues much the same thing: "We are going to operate in a goldfish bowl, as far as the public is concerned. For one thing, as long as I am chairman there is to be no unauthroized or unjustified travel. I'm going to clear all trips, even short ones, and the money spent on them."

Under Powell, the Committee staff was the largest and most changeable in Congress. An estimated 200 aides worked for him in various capacities last year. They were on and off the payroll. Perkins already has dropped 18 so-called "permanent" staff employees hired by Powell, at an estimated saving of $256,000 to the taxpayers.

Leon Abramson, chief counsel for Labor-Management at $15,595 a year, and Odell Clark, chief investigator at $18,461 a year, are among those who have gone. Many others have been replaced, including C. Summer (Chuck) Stone, a $25,890 "special assistant" to the chairman.

Mrs. Marian Wyman, who has been with Perkins for 12 years, has taken over Stone's job, at only $12,000 a year. Her principal task is to handle the books and finances. A topnotch newspaperman, Ben Reeves, a former editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has become the committee's main trouble-shooter and "Editor of Publications, at $22,500 a year.

Two veteran and capable committee aides have been kept on — Jack Reed, chief counsel, $15,890, and Robert McCord, "Senior Specialist" and Legislative aide, $15,-890. These are the top staff salaries.

To insure a thorough housecleaning and a stop to waste, Perkins even made an inventory of all office equipment, stationery, etc., used by the Committee, when he took over. He found some unusual situations, including the fact that there are 43 keys, not all accounted for, to the stationery supply closet.

The lock was changed and a key allotted to only two persons, Mrs. Wyman and Louise Wright, who supervises the Committee payroll.

Salvaging River Pollution

Public Health and pollution experts have applied a new machine to an old-fashioned system of getting rid of sewage and refuse instead of dumping it into rivers and streams. The solution is composting, essentially the same principle used by French farmers, who for years have accumulated manure in piles to let it steam and decompose.

In Johnson City, Tenn., John S. Wiley, Public Health Service engineer, reports that he is doing the same thing with the city's raw sewage, mixed with garbage and other solid wastes. He is using a new machine developed by Herbert Cobey of the Cobey Farm Wagon Company in Ohio, namely a composter which can turn out compost at the rate of 2,000 tons per hour and produce finished compost at a cost of one cent per ton.

The Johnson City experiment has been successful with not only garbage and sewage but old wastepaper. The final compost can be used to enrich farmland, instead of killing fish in rivers.

Secret of the process, according to engineer Wiley, is the high temperature generated by nature in rotting manure, plus mixing the refuse by machine.

Reagan Disrupts Chilean Program

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California suddenly yanked the rug out from under the California-Chile program whereby these two governments with similar problems have been helping each other regarding transportation and agriculture.

Reagan has abruptly fired Robert Keating, the California administrator in Chile, and his deputy administrator, Patrick Deyoung. He has also asked for an audit of the project's finances.

The Chilean Ambassador, Radomiro Tomic, received notification from his government as to what it was all about; the State Department was completely in the dark except for a cable received from U.S. Ambassador Ralph Dungan in Santiago, who reported that the financial affairs of the California-Chile project were in order.

The project had been initiated by former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown in order to give Chile the advantage of California know-how in regars to agriculture and transportation. The two areas are almost identical in shape and location, both being long and narrow states extending along the edge of the Pacific.

Parts of Southern California were formerly arid desert until Earl Warren, then Governor, took the first step in bringing water south, followed by the tremendous water project of Gov. Brown which will bring northern California river water almost a thousand miles south.

Northern Chile, likewise, is an arid desert and has not yet been able to work out a deal with Bolivia for irrigation water.

Chile, which lacks sufficent funds to feed its own population, has been benefiting from California's agricultural success in supplying cotton, cattle, raisins, lettuce and fruit to the rest of the USA.

The State Department considered the California-Chile project a definite success. Administrator Keating, however, hid out in Washington, apparently afraid to talk about either the success or his reasons for being fired.

Yet you do not see it grow,
For suddenly you've formed it
And didn't even know
You put things some place different
Then unconsciously you'll see Yourself going to the place
That once it used to be;
A towel that hung for many years
Upon the wash room hook
The offcie girls wash their hands
Then dripping at it look,
For a long time there's been a box
For paper towels upon the wall,
But half the time they do not think
Of paper towels at all;
We change things for convenience
Still go where they were before
And sheepishly remember
They are not there anymore;
There are many little habits
That really are no harm
Like waking up on our day off
Without aid of an alarm
At the time we always get up
But then we realize, too,
We can sleep a little longer
And that's the thing we do;
We all have little habits
That unknowingly we make
But they're not real important
That we need to try to break,
Yet there are bigger habits
Folks usually start for show,
To prove sophistication
But the habits grow and grow
It may mean health and happiness
Is going down the drain,
Sometimes a habit leads
To a place for the insane,
Habit is an unseen hand
That holds us in its grip,
From funny little things we do
To big ones where we slip;
Habit is a villian
That people cannot feel,
So quietly, so easily
Into life can it steal,
No matter how we fight it
It seems to hold full sway
And suddenly one finds
They cannot break away;
Oh, we all have little habits.
Silly little ones, it's true,
But it's wise to remember
What a habit now can do,
To weigh it in the scales
See what future it might bring,
For habit can be humorous
Or a very horrid thing,
And those who form bad habits
Are making a mistake
For even little habits
Are mighty hard to break.

South Viet's Guests

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Helen Bentley, Shipping Editor of the Baltimore Sun, reported a dismal picture of her recent assignment in Vietnam. Surveying the congestion of barges in the Saigon River harbor, Mrs. Bentley said: "The American Agency for International Development has been pouring fertilizer into the area instead of rice, and soda ash is piled up on the barges and blocking the harbor. There has been a ship tie-up for 18 months, but now the ships are beginning to move. The problem is that there is no main distribution service. Goods are taken by small boats directly to little stores, but it is impossible to unload cargo which comes in large quantities. It is estimated that the pilfering and theft of American ships amounted to 90 million dollars last year. This becomes direct aid to the enemy because it is stolen by both the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese who will do most anything for money so they sell to the Viet Cong. The policing system is very weak in Saigon."

The Baltimore reporter continued, "There have been four new directors for the A.I.D. program in four years. One reason the Americans are powerless to impose authority is that "we are guests of the South Vietnamese government. Whenever our troops go ashore, the general says to them, 'Remember you are only guests in this country and you are expected to conduct yourselves as such.' The morale of our boys there is very good."

Mrs. Bentley said that the Saigon Chamber of Commerce issued a strong protest against AID. They objected to taking U.S. funds to buy U.S. power tillers for their farms or other U.S. goods because they could buy them cheaper from Japan.

Our military accomplishments in South Vietnam are very good. When our troops move in, according to Mrs. Bentley, they always try to work with the local people, but if the local mayor agrees to work with the Americans he immediately becomes a target for the Viet Cong. About 7,000 mayors and local leaders have been killed, but many continue to help our troops to set up camps and improve the villages.

The Saigon port is divided into two sections: military and commercial. The military goods move very well, and since the recent appointment of Donald Mac Donald, Director of A.I.D., there has been some civil improvement. The harbor is being cleared of suplus barges and there is less pilfering. The Pentagon has done an amazing job of logistics. The Navy moves large quantities of cargo. "Market Time," a police operation, searches the big ships. Planes move ammunition, but they cannot carry as much cargo as ships. Junks and old military ships are now being used for military and commercial cargo.

One encouraging observation by Mrs. Bentley is that the caliber of our men is excellent. The fighting men believe that unless we stop Communism in Vietnam it will spread rapidly in South East Asia. The greatest problem is that the Americans are not even welcome guests in some areas. Many South Vietnamese are still pro - French. Our limited war there is by invitation of the South Vietnamese government as contrasted with the French, which was a colonial protective war.

Mrs. Bentley and the Press Corps in Saigon feel that the war is endless. It may take two generations before peace will really come.

Transfer Bid Assures a Slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you think this hand is complicated we aren't going to disagree with you. It was played in the Men's Pair championships at the Seattle Nationals.

Every North-South pair played the hand at either four or six hearts. When North was the declarer East would open the jack of clubs. South would lose the club finesse and wind up making exactly 11 tricks.

When South was declarer, West would be in an end play at trick one. He would usually open the king of spades. Not that it mattered at all. South would take his ace of spades and draw trumps. Then he would run off his diamonds and discard a club from dummy. The next play would be to lead his jack of spades and throw West back in. West would have to lead a spade or club. A spade lead would allow South to ruff in his own hand and discard another club from dummy. The club lead would be away from the king up to South's ace - queen. Either way declarer would make 12 tricks.

The bidding in the box shows how the slam is bid by use of the Jacoby transfer. North's two diamond response shows at least five hearts and demands that South go to two hearts. South replies dutifully.

North's three diamond bid is a game force. South does not know if it is showing a heart-diamond two - suiter or is a slam try of some sort. In any event South goes to four diamonds to find out.

North's four heart bid says, "I might have bid four hearts right away but I wanted to suggest slam possibilities. South's five-heart bid announces a no-trump of maximum quality for play at hearts. North accepts the invitation and goes on to the slam.

Former Sedalian Named To Head School Group

Steve Snavely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Snavely, Tyler, Texas, formerly of Sedalia, was elected president of the Tyler HI-Y Council for 1967, and a picture of him and other officers appeared in the April 19 issue of The Tyler Courier-Times. He is a junior at Robert E. Lee High School.

Steve, 17, is the grandson of Mrs. E. C. Snavely, 908 South Grand and Mrs. Rex Warren, 916 South Vermont. He was one of 11 Tyler high school students to attend the Youth and Government Program, sponsored by the YMCA held in Austin, Texas. To be eligible, Snavely had to attend one of the eight Pre-Legislaive Conferences. He attended the program in Austin as a senator.

Steve's mother is the former Elaine Warren.

MONEY CLIPS

by Mort Reed

The Liberty Seated design appears on more denominations of United States coins than any other device. It was used first on the half-dime and dime of 1837. In 1838 it was placed on the quarter, in 1839 on the half dollar and in 1840 it showed up on the silver dollar. The short run 20-cent piece of 1875 bore the same device.

Coins of the Liberty Seated series are popular among many collectors because of the number of type variations. The dime, for instance, was issued from 1837 to 1891 at four mints —Carson City, New Orleans, San Francisco and Philadelphia —and during this period at least five different types were issued, which makes collecting a set of types a very interesting hobby.

All dates are available with the exception of the 1894-S. There were only 24 minted at San Francisco and they are all accounted for. The real rarity would be the 1873 Carson City with a total mintage of 18,791.

In good condition the 1873CC lists at $250. In very good, $350; fine, $600; very fine, $850, and extra fine well over $1,000. This type has arrow heads at each side of the date to denote an increase in weight from 38.4 grains to 38.58 grains.

During the 19th century many countries supplemented their hard money shortage with silver from the larger nations. The Virgin Islands circulated the Liberty Seated coins as domestic change by counterstamping each piece with a crowned FR over a Roman numeral seven (VII).

Gridster To Work In Viet Nam Now

HONOLULU (AP) — Big Bill Miller is turning his back on a football career to take a difficult, dangerous job in Vietnam, far from the roar of the crowd.

Miller, who played defensive tackle in 1962 with the Houston Oilers of the American Football coach with the Continental League's Charleston Rockets in his native West Virginia.

Now he is giving up the game, and temporarily leaving his wife and six children, to help the South Vietnamese government in its pacification program.

He won't be carrying a rifle. His weapons will be good will and a desire to help the Vietnamese peasant.

Miller is in Honolulu undergoing intensive training with the Agency for International Development. He became interested in the Vietnam program while working in his spare time with the Action for Appalachian Youth-Community Development in West Virginia.

It was there that he decided to make a career in community defelopment.

"I had gone about as far as I could in salary and in a position to make decisions," he said. "I needed more experience in community development. I knew I wasn't going to get any more degrees with six children to feed, so I decided to sign up for Vietnam."

"I'm sort of a flag-waver, and what's happening in Southeast Asia will determine this country's policies for a long time to come. I feel I've got to contribute something to help. At my age—30—I've got to do it now, when I can be effective."

Miller will leave for Vietnam in July, along with about 38 other volunteers.

Miller's family is vacationing in Hawaii while he is in training, and "Moe"—as he calls his wife—is as enthusiastic as he about the project.

Rat Patrol Success Is Explained

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What's a Chris George?" said a television series planner when the name was suggested for "Rat Patrol." "Let's get Tab Hunter."

Fortunately for ABC and Chris George, name actors were not cast in the desert-warfare series. And now television viewers in large numbers have discovered what a Chris George is.

He is a rugged ex-Marine from Royal Oaks, Mich., and his smooth manner bears an undercurrent of toughness. His style will soon be on view for movie goers, too, in two films.

"Rat Patrol" was one of the few hits of the 1966-67 TV series among the fledgling shows. How did it succeed where others failed?

"The first reason was the desert," Chris George theorized. "The second was the inter-relationship of the five stars on the show; we really work well together.

"The war itself was an important element, I believe. The battles in North Africa were the last time in history when war was carried on a chivalric manner, when gentlemen opposing each other could be capable of noble acts. The history of the desert war is full of them."

It has been a rugged war for "Rat Patrol." The first part was shot in Spain.

"The terrain was beautiful, and we had some great props -- all the German tanks and trucks that Hitler had given Franco," said George. "But the living was miserable. The place where we were would be a beautiful spot for a two-week vacation. But stay 15 days and you'd start blowing your mind. We were there three months!"

The rain, unfortunately, stayed mainly on the plain where they were workking. Because of the weather and Hollywood cries that "Rat Patrol" was a "runaway production," the series returned to the United States. The Mojave desert locations were equally rough, and a jeep accident almost wiped out three-fifths of the cast.

The African lungfish has been known to live longer without food and water than any backboned animal.

New Kind of School Works

By JEAN HELLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine months of the year, a boy named Scotty left his public housing project apartment in the morning and began thinking up reasons not to go to school. At least one day out of every four he found a reason.

Almost any excuse was good enough because Scotty hated school and hating it, he thought, was reason enough not to go.

But in the past two months, 16-year-old Scotty was absent only once, and then because he was sick.

A few days ago, he told his school officials he wanted to stay in school until he could graduate. "I don't have any reason to hate school any more," he said.

Why the change? Why did a boy from the low-income East New York section of Brooklyn change from a near-chronic truant into an eager learner almost overnight

Officials at Scotty's school think they have the answer.

Scotty is one of 225 children who attend a new kind of school, one set up on the second floor of a building that also houses a carpet store. The school is a one-million dollar project opened in February by the New York City Board of Education and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The school looks nearly normal. Except that the floors are carpeted. The teachers have no desks or chairs but sit on the floors with the children. The pupil's desks have chalk board tops and the children actually are encouraged to scribble on them.

And there is one very large room with a perimeter of wooden booths that house 20 talking typewriters, a friendly teaching machine that one of its proponents calls "a perfect mother."

It is around these machines that Scotty's school was designed.

The machines are known officially as Edison Responsive Environment but to the children who use them, they are just talking typewriters — a way to make learning something worth doing.

They are about the size of an old-time player piano and comprise a computerized typewriter, speaker, recorder, projector and viewer.

The learner, in a booth of wood and one-way glass that affords complete privacy, is shown a letter, told by a taped voice what it is, and then asked to type it.

If it is not typed in a given length of time, the taped voice reveals what color the letter's key is. Since there are at least eight keys in any given color, the clue is not very specific, but it is as specific as the machine will get. The name of the letter and the key color will be repeated until the learner finds the letter, but there will be no other clues.

The learner cannot strike a wrong key. All are blocked except the one called. It is impossible to make a mistake.

Once the alphabet has been learned, the machine progresses to teaching words and then to sentences, supplemented by stories and pictures.

The machine's speed is set to the rate at which the user is capable of learning. He progresses at his own pace and is neither pushed nor held back.

"The machine has the patience of a perfect mother," says Dr. John H. Martin, vice president of the Responsive Environments Corp., which designs the programs for the ERE.

"It never scolds, it never tires, it never becomes impatient," he said. "It only responds to the child. It doesn't compliment him when he's right, but it doesn't berate him when he's wrong. It makes achievement a reward, and the learners achieve for it."

The EREs are being used in centers around the world. One of them is the East New York Responsive Environment Center where Scotty and educationally deprived children like him are beginning to catch up.

Dr. Edward Welling, who heads the center, agrees with Dr. Martin about the work of the machines.

As proof, Dr. Welling offered the testing of two groups of children of kindergarten age. All were from East New York. In one group, which never attended the center or worked with the talking typewriters, the 21 children knew an average of 6.1 letters of the alphabet. In a group of 25 who did attend the center, the average knowledge was 16.4 letters.

Dr. Welling estimated that by the end of the school year, 80 per cent of his 60 first-graders would be reading at their proper grade level.

"That percentage is about normal for a fairly decent suburban community," Dr. Welling said. "and you could not, under any circumstances, describe East New York that way. Eighty per cent reading up to grade level in this area is phenomenal."

In public schools in East New York, he said, children usually are a year behind in reading by the time they begin the third grade.

"By the time they are 16," he said, "they are four to five years behind.

Scotty was one of those children. At 16, he read on a fourth-grade level.

"No wonder he hated school," Dr. Welling said.

Scotty's reading progress since he started attending the center has yet to be measured. But, Dr. Welling said, the progress in his attitude is obvious.

"Now he wants to read," Dr. Welling said. "He's trying to read. His attitude has improved 100 per cent. He's gone from completely negative to entirely positive. If we've done nothing else, we've given him a learning attitude, and that's as important as the learning itself."

"If the children want to go running down the halls, we let them," Dr. Welling said. "They don't disrupt a thing. If one kid is playing with blocks in one corner of a room while others are reading, that's fine. He can't disturb anyone if he drops a block because he drops it on carpeting."

Dr. Welling emphasized that the center is not a completely permissive school.

"We have our rules and we have discipline," he said. "They are designed to keep order pleasantly."

Dr. Welling's center is the largest of several around the world and is designed on the whole to teach prekindergarten, kindergarten and first-and second-graders to read. The older students go only for remedial work with the talking typewriters.

At other centers, the talking typewriters are used for other purposes.

Eighteen centers will be put to use soon by the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene in a program for the mentally retarded and autistic.

"I've seen autistic children work with these machines," Dr. Martin said. "They're children who won't talk to anyone, yet they begin talking back to the machine. When they find that the machine is not unfriendly, they begin talking to the machine's attendant. They come out of their shell."

IF YOU FEAR MACHINES may gain the upper hand on people someday, you'll find no comfort in this new computer, which talks back when asked a question. Secretary Barbara Becka dials into the computer and receives a voice response over the telephone while a simultaneous printout of the message is flashed across the screen. The IBM audio response unit is equipped with a vocabulary of 1,000 most-used business words.

Tentative Agreement On Contact

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the Printers Union and the New York Daily News have reached tentative agreement on a new three-year contract providing for a wage increase of more than 20 per cent.

Announcing the agreement Friday night, Theodore W. Kheel, chief mediator in the newspaper dispute, called the pact "precedent setting" and said he believed "the major obstacle to permanant peace has been overcome."

The settlement, subject to ratification by the union's membership, is expected to set the pattern for newspaper contracts now being negotiated. The News and four other newspapers have been negotiating with the printers and nine other unions.

Terms of the pact provide for an 8 per cent wage increase the first year, 6 per cent the second year and 6 per cent the third year. Printers now get $151.85 weekly on the day shift with premiums for night work.

Most of the unions, which represent some 17,000 employes on the five newspapers in the Publishers Association of New York, are not expected to resume negotiations until next week.

Besides the News, the association members are the Times, World Journal Tribune, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal. The Post, the sixth major daily here, is not a member and bargains separately with each union.

MADRID — Madrid University students wave anti-American placards and brandish an American flag on the university campus here. More than 1,000 Madrid University students burned six U.S. flags to protest the Vietnam War. (UPI)

First Graders To Have Round-Up

Next year's first graders at Smithton will come to school on May 5 to learn something of the routine of school and get acquainted with their classmates and teachers. They should bring with them their birth certificate, their immunization record and 29 cents with which to pay for their lunch and milk for the day. They may ride the bus both to and from school.

The students of both Mrs. Miller's and Mrs. Bryce's class will stay at home on this day so that the teachers can devote their full time to the pre-school children.

CALLING ALL HOMEMAKERS
by Raymond Fleth

THIS WEEK LET'S TALK ABOUT SOME IDEAS FOR ACCESSORIES

Raymond Feith

More than ever before, homemakers are recognizing the fact that the selection of the right accessories can make the difference between a medicore room or home and one which truly stands out.

Accessories can be used on walls, on tables, on or around mantels, and on the floor. The tops of dressers, chests, buffets and credenzas may also be accessorized to great advantage.

When it comes to accessories, this is one field where you can really express your individuality and personality.

As popular as the vogue is to use groupings of small pictures on a wall, there are times when the use of one large picture instead can greatly improve the room. This is especially true in rooms which have a cluttered look.

If you want to use a group of pictures and you aren't sure exactly how you want to arrange them, here's a suggestion that can help you avoid putting many unnecessary nail holes in the wall while you're trying to decide whcih picture should go where. Cut pieces of paper the same size as the picture you are planning to use and place them on the wall with masking tape in the arrangements you are considering. You can move them around till you decide on a final arrangement.

Both harmonizing and contrasting accessories may be equally effective, according to the needs of the room.

Homakers is now open on Sunday afternoons from 1 p.m. 'til 5 p.m. for browsing only.

Free qualified decorating service is available to you at Homakers. We'll be glad to assist you with your Home Decorating problems.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hinken Observe Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hinken

Mr. and W. E. Hinken
(1967)

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hinken, 2100 East Broadway, quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary on April 25 at their home with their immediate family.

The home was decorated with floral arrangements sent to them by their friends and family. The couple received many gifts and cards during the day. Mrs. Hinken wore a corsage of gold carnations given to her by her husband.

Dinner was served to the family by daughters and daughters-in-law.

All seven of their children were present for the occasion. They were: Mrs. Charles R. (Ruby) Hayes, Kansas City; Nelson W. (Bud) Hinken, Sedalia; Mrs. William M. (Bernice) McGee; Kenneth Cord Hinken, Sedalia; Billy Lee Hinken, Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. D. I. (Martha) Sevier, LaMonte; and Mrs. George M. (Delores Dean) Wilkie, Sedalia.

Voting For Relative Forbidden

Attorney General Norman H. Anderson, in Opinion No. 68, issued to Lawrence O. Davis, Franklin County Prosecuting Attorney, ruled that where a member of a school board casts a vote for the employment of a relative, and the relative is within the fourth degree of relation, either by marriage or blood, he has violated the nepotism provision of the Constitution and could be removed from office.

Anderson stated the facts in this case were that the six member school board voted to employ the person in question on the following basis: Four members of the board voted "yes"; a fifth voted "no" and the sixth abstained from voting. The director, whose sister-in-law was the prospective employee, voted "yes."

Anderson said the Constitution of Missouri provides that any public officer or employee who appoints or employs a relative shall forfeit his office.

Anderson said it will be seen from the reading of Missouri law that a director of a school board who casts a vote in favor of hiring an individual, to whom he is related, violates the restrictions contained in the constitutional provision.

He said under the law of this state and the provisions of the Constitution, the director's action in voting in favor of the hiring of his relative is an express and positive action and hence constitutes a violation, and he should become subject to ouster.

Gold Key Awards Presented S-C Latin Class Students

Gold key awards were presented to the outstanding students in Smith-Cotton's Latin classes at the 11th Latina Sodalias Banquet, held Friday night in Smith-Cotton Cafeteria. Receiving the awards were Fred Bluhm, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bluhm, Sedalia, Route 4, Latin I; Bill Woolery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Woolery, 1801 South Carr, Latin II, and Rick Belt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Belt, 1425 South Sneed. The presentations were made by Dee Ellison, vice-president of the club.

The speaker of the evening was Profeessor Richard M. Krii Department of Classical languages at the University of Missouri, Columbia, who paid high tribute to Smith-Cotton Latin students, whom he said, won most of the top honors in the Latin contests at the University in which 45 high schools competed. The Smith-Cotton students receive their excellent training under John Allen, Latin teacher.

Professor Krill's talk centered around the theme of the banquet, liberalia, the celebration held to commemorate the occasion when the Roman boy became of age and was officially considered a citizen in Rome. He gave the historical background of some of the Roman customs.

With the blowing of the trumpets the evening began with the traditional grand entry by the Latin students, the girls as the lovely ladies of the Roman empire, they were as beautiful as the flowers they wore, their soft, flimsy garments in pastel shades floating gracefully as they walked. The boys entered in the costumes of the early Roman citizens with their togas of white trimmed with bands of purple, red or gold, and barefoot or wearing sandals.

The four highest ranking girls in the class, with their candle flames lighted the purple candles on the banquet tables as the procession circled the room and found their places at the tables. The candlelighters were Connie Cordes, Virginia Klover, Gwen Eisenstein and Debbie Homan.

The report on Omens were given preceding the banquet by Rick Huddleston.

As Lucius, played by Rick Belt, becomes a citizen, removing the robes of a child to become a man and wear the tiga virilis, the celebration begins and in accordance with the feast, an offering was made to Liber, the god. There was humor throughout the entire evening and the sacrificing of the animal, which turned out to be a dog, by Bill Woolery, as the priest, was in keeping with the humor.

Michele Ferrari, who has a beautiful vo ic e, then sang: "Panis Angelicus," accompanied by Debra Lyles.

The Gladiatorial Co mb at which Lucius attended was an exciting clash of swords between gladiators, Roger Kahle and Steve Shoemaker, as Rick Huddleston, the grinning referee danced around the gladiators delightedly sometimes almost getting in the line of the sharp swords. The announcer Andy Alexander, never lost an opportunity to give commercials on the drink that made water obsolete, Sudsy Slimy Slop, which was given to the gladiators between rounds regardless of their efforts to refuse it. To stimulate the sensational combat were the antics of the cheer leaders, Brenda Stanfield, Zella Riley, Martha Rowles and Cheryl Wahrenbrock whose cheerful voices sang out "Our boys shall die tonight — our boys shall die," and of course, one of them did and was carried off the stage.

Lucius then attended a stage play, "The Aulularia," which was one of the outstanding Roman comedies written by the famous dramatist Titus Maccius Plautus and was first staged in 194 BC at the Megalensian Games.

The banquet committee was composed of Mary Cheffey, Sylvia Klein, Diana Trout, Becky Thomas and Bill Woolery.

2 TOO MUCH RED TAPE
3 WRONG CAR

Lots of people don't really pick out the car they want. They let the dealer decide, by making their purchase from the firm that seems easiest to deal with. This often results in a car that costs too much, irritating delays in closing the deal, or you may suddenly realize you have a car you never really intended to buy!

You can save yourself trouble — and plenty of money — by financing your new car with a convenient Third National loan. It's the cleanest way. You arrange for credit, then buy the car of your choice at the best price possible, just like a cash buyer. And at Third National Bank in Sedalia, you always get that bonus of warm hospitality and courteous treatment . . . each and every time you visit us. Come in and see us today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission will hear arguments June 1 on the proposed merger of American Broadcasting Companies Inc., and International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

The FCC also said Friday all sides in the controversial $2.8-billion merger should submit by May 15 their proposals on how the FCC should rule. It said all sides then will have until May 22 to file final papers.

An FCC examiner ended earlier this week hearings on the merger — largest in broadcasting history — which is opposed by the Justice Department. The hearings lasted 12½ days.

The Pentagon said Friday it "will not make available for public release an individual's home address or next of kin unless the individual's record indicates that the service member has authorized release."

Information concerning combat fatalities will continue to be released, the Pentagon said, since certificates of death are matters of public record.

In order to deny the enemy information that might be used in interrogation, the Defense Department gives out only the service, rank and name of prisoners and missing men.

Pentagon press officers are asked daily for addresses and names of close relatives of men stationed in Vietnam and mentioned in news stories or lists of captured or missing men.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Auto industry critic Ralph Nader urges legislation and court action making auto manufacturers accountable for deaths and injuries resulting from defective vehicles or negligent industry practices.

"Already the courts are beginning to recognize that things like hood ornaments, sharp edges inside cars, vehicle instability and defective or overloaded tires are grounds for recovery against the manufacturer," he said Friday.

Nader, speaking at an American Trial Lawyers Association seminar, urged courts to establish manufacturers' liability for their defects and negligence.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The game of golf, which was invented in Scotland, is known to have been popular in that country about 1440, says The World Almanac. In fact, the game became much too popular with the people to please King James II. In 1457, he made it unlawful for anyone to play at "golfe." According to the king, the people could better use their leisure time practicing archery.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta says income in six southeastern states increased to $56.2 billion in February, a 2.5 per cent increase over the previous month and an increase of about $4.1 billion over the level of February 1966.

Begin To Work Way Out Of Snow

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (AP) — Southern Albertans began stirring today under a wet blanket of snow that isolated many farms, stranded scores of motorists and raised fears of serious spring flooding and widespread damage to crops and livestock.

More than 29 inches of snow fell since Thursday afternoon, bringing virtually everything except rescue vehicles to a halt. Snow was still falling early today.

A rescue train, pushing a snowplow, battled high drifts overnight to pick up 29 stranded motorists at Stirling, 19 miles south of this ranching area city 100 miles south of Calgary.

The motorists had been stranded since 9 a.m. Friday. All were believed to be in good condition.

The latest storm battered an area still recovering from a 27-inch snowfall last week.

Planes were grounded, buses halted, farms and ranches isolated, and livestock were without food.

The storm, driven by 50 mile and hour winds, struck an area from Crowsnest Pass in the Rockies to Swift Current, Sask. About 90 per cent of farms and ranches in southern Alberta were isolated.

Young Girl Drowns Following Accident

SALEM, Mo. (AP) — Lillie Wright, 19, of Salem drowned early today when a truck she was driving ran off M19 and turned over in a creek.

The Highway Patrol said the truck hit a bridge abutment before coming to rest upside down in the creek. It occurred one-half mile south of Salem.

A passenger, Johnnie Dean Mendenhall, 25, of Salem was hospitalized at Rolla.

BAD MEINBERG, Germany — Firemen probe the wreckage of a farmhouse here after the dwelling was hit by a German Air Force Starfighter jet aircraft. The pilot of the plane ejected before the craft hit, and escaped unhurt. A seven-year-old boy is still missing. (UPI)

CLEVELAND — Former Gov. George Wallace gives a salute as he arrives in Cleveland as a part of his tour to promote his bid for the presidency of the United States in 1968. # World News In Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the first time in U.S. history a general took time off from running a war to tell a joint meeting of Congress how things were going.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, assured Congress the South Vietnamese and their allies are in no danger of defeat by the Communists. But he offered no hope of an early end to the conflict.

The Communists still are maintaining relentless pressure, he said, and there is a steady increase in the number of enemy combat battalions.

The reply to the Communist enemy, Westmoreland said, must be "unrelenting — but discriminating — military, political and psychological pressure on his whole structure — at all levels."

To some congressmen, that sounded like increasing escalation, probably both of the number of U.S. troops engaged — currently 439,000 — and the intensity of the bombing of North Vietnam.

During the week, the bombing did escalate sharply. For three days, waves of U.S. planes pounded industrial targets in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas as well as enemy fighter bases. The U.S. Command acknowledged the loss of 10 aircraft, bringing the total for the war to 250.

In an earlier address to the Associated Press annual meeting in New York, Westmoreland had complained that anti-war protests in America were encouraging the Communists to fight on. He said the protests give Hanoi hope that American resolve is weakening.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., called this part of a campaign by President Johnson's administration to force critics of official Vietnam policy "to shut up."

A fellow member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., agreed with Fulbright but said: "I do not blame Gen. Westmoreland because he is obviously doing both in Vietnam or in New York exactly what he is told to do by his commander in chief."

The late Joseph V. Stalin's daughter, Svetlana Alliluyeva, 43, told a New York news conference that responsibility for the mass killings which characterized his regime must be shared by other Soviet leaders, including some "who still are in our Central Committee and Politburo."

In New York to arrange for the publication of a book about her life, the former Soviet dictator's daughter said the main reason she decided against returning to her homeland was denial of "the main human rights" to her late Indian husband, Brijesh Singh, when he was ill in Moscow. She did not elaborate.

The Senate Ethics Committee recommended censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., for conduct it said was "contrary to accepted morals, derogates the public trust expected of a senator, and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

Among other things, the committee said Dodd used for personal purposes at least $116,083 collected for campaign expenses and acted "indiscreetly" in his dealings with Julius Klein, a representative of West German business interests.

The committee recommendation, which has still to be voted on by the Senate, would deprive Dodd of none of his rights of office. His term runs until 1970.

Dodd told newsmen he felt he was innocent of any wrongdoing and would seek re-election.

The Soviet Union's Vladimir Komarov, 40, became the first astronaut known to have died during an actual space flight. The parachute of his craft, Soyuz 1, failed to open on descent from a troubled mission and Komarov plunged to his death from an altitude of more than four miles.

There had been reports, which Soviet sources declined to discuss, that a second spacecraft was poised to attempt a rendezvous aloft with Soyuz 1 when something went wrong.

Komarov was the first Soviet aeronaut to make two flights into space. He commanded the three-man crew of the Voskhod 1, which went into orbit in 1964.

After a ceremonial funeral in Moscow, Komarov's ashes were given a place of honor in a niche in the Kremlin wall.

In Naples, Fla., Dr. Carl Coppolino was convicted of second-degree murder in the drug injection slaying of his first wife, Carmela, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

F. Lee Bailey, the lawyer who had won Coppolino acquittal in a previous trial on a charge of murdering the husband of his mistress, Marjorie Farber, announced that the conviction would be appealed.

The Greekk army appeared to be in firm control of the Athens government after a takeover in the name of King Constantine for the announced purpose of balking antimonarchist elements threatening revolution.

Whether the army had acted with Constantine's approval was not entirely clear. But after a meeting with his new military ministers, the king expressed the "fervent wish that the country shall revert to parliamentary government as soon as possible."

Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, stumping the country as a possible prelude to running for president in 11968 on a states' rights program, told a Pittsburgh news conference he believed such a third-party bid would doom President Johnson's hopes of re-election.

At a London auction, Pablo Picasso's "Woman and Child on the Seashore," painted in 1902, brought $532,000. It was the highest price ever paid for a Picasso, easily topping the previous record of $252,000 five years ago for "Death of a Harlequin," from the collection of the late novelist W. Somerset Maugham.

Heads of 24 Communist parties in Europe offered to disband the Warsaw Treaty organization if the West will liquidate the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Communists, meeting at Karlovy Vary, Czechoslovakia, said there then could be "a Europe without military blocs."

Leaders of the Western world, including President Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, gathered in Bonn to pay funeral tribute to Konrad Adenauer, West Germany's first postwar chancellor.

FOR LT. GEN. LEWIS B. HERSHEY

● As Director of Selective Service, do you have any plans for drafting women—particularly nurses?—Mrs. Robert Allen, Montauk, N. Y.

● Women who possess particular skills have made substantial contributions to the successful operations of the military establishment. But experience has shown that the required number of women needed in the services may be secured through means other than the Selective Service system.

FOR JULIE ANDREWS

● Was the transition difficult from being a "nobody" to being a celebrity?—A.V.J., Kokomo, Ind.

● The celebrity part of my career happened not too long ago, so I really don't know what problems will be presented. But it's been more than 12 years since I came to America for my first go at Broadway. And although I can still recognize that girl who came here in 1954, it's hard to identify with her completely. So I suppose I have changed to some extent over the years.

FOR DR. PAUL DUDLEY WHITE

● What exercises are best for a healthy man over 40? Which ones are to be avoided?—Joe Foley, Cambridge, Md.

● The best exercises for the man of middle age or older involve chiefly the use of the leg muscles. These include walking, dog trotting, golf, tennis, swimming, bicycling (if it can be done safely), skiing, and climbing. There are no dangerous exercises for a healthy man over 40 if he is well, as the word, healthy, implies. But in general, one might advise slowing down somewhat after the age of 50 or 60. The chief danger comes from walking or cycling on the roads of today. Every road should have a sidewalk.

FOR PATTI PAGE

● How did you tell your children, Kathleen and Danny, that they were adopted?—M. S., Indio, Calif.

● When Kathleen was two, I began telling her in fairy-tale style a story about a little girl who was lonely because she had no mommy or daddy. I also told her about a mommy and daddy who were sad because they had no little girl. I went on to say how the mommy and daddy searched high and low before they finally found a little girl to love. The story ended with "and they all lived happily ever after." Kathleen loved the story. She still does. But now, instead of saying how the mommy and daddy "found" her, I say "adopted." The word change makes no difference in her delight with the tale. With Danny, I have recently begun telling him the same bedtime story. How does he like it? Who knows? He falls asleep before I finish!

FOR KEN MACKER, Commissioner of the National Professional Soccer League

● Since soccer has no time-outs, how will you be able to satisfy the tv sponsors by providing opportunities for commercials?—J.F.T., Green Bay, Wis.

● Very simply. We know that when the ball goes over the end line—say in a missed goal attempt (and there are about 40 such misses in a game)—it takes almost 40 seconds to retrieve the ball and get it back into play. When necessary, and at the referee's discretion, we will take an extra 20 seconds to fit in the commercial. This way, the fast pace will not be affected.

FOR HUGH DOWNS

● Is there one person you would very much like to meet?—Charley Marshall, Danbury, Conn.

● Yes—Charles Lindbergh. I have the arrogant feeling that I could get to know him without disturbing his famous need for seclusion. He'd be worth knowing.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

By ALLEN GARVIN

Tv Color Hunt William Gordon, the tv producer, is hunting for color-film footage of authentic World War II air action. Now that all the tv series about the war are going to be in color, such combat footage is in desperately short supply. The Allies shot only 39 reels of color footage, and Gordon has already used it. Now he's going to veterans' reunions to find out whether any airmen happened to take cameras with color film along on their combat missions.

The Packers' Secret The Green Bay Packers' quarterback, Bart Starr, is telling this story on the banquet circuit: "When Vince Lombardi came to the Packers as coach, he built a brick wall on the field and ordered

Can We Bridge the Gap

The battle of the sexes may be replaced by a war between

By MARGARET CULKIN BANNING

Author of "Fallen Away," "I Took My Love to the Country," etc.

A BOY TOLD ME the other day, "My crowd is strictly 14 to 18."

A senior citizen whom I'd met belonged to the same kind of splinter society. "The members of our group are all in their 60s," he explained with curious satisfaction.

Age groups have never been so self-conscious—or so mutually exclusive. Yet when my young friend becomes 18, he will be locked in another age group, and as the members of the 60s club reach 70, they will have to reorganize and learn to point with pride to a new decade.

This unnatural overemphasis on age is prevalent in every walk of life. Usually the first thing mentioned about any candidate for public office is not his wisdom, not his experience, not his talent for leadership—but his age. In a great deal of our social life, matching ages is more important than matching interests. And in altogether too many homes, the teen-agers and college students live their lives apart from the older members of their families.

Of course, there is sometimes a statistical value in such information. But there are also bad side effects. People often read their prejudices into the figures. The young may be blamed without the full context of an accident being known. In another situation, the impression may be created that increasing age is shameful.

The actual hostility which many mature people build up against young people is shocking and dangerous. On the other hand, the contempt which many young people have for those who are older is poisonous in a society like our own, which was founded on the family unit with its disparate ages.

Invariably such attitudes are due to a lack of sufficient cortact and companionship. If these age gaps are not bridged, we may bring on a kind of guerrilla warfare between our fragmented generations.

The question is: Who is going to build the bridges? And the answer is that it must be done, or at least begun, by mature people.

I am not going to tack any specific age limits onto maturity because it varies. But we cannot expect young and undeveloped persons to make this effort.

It can be done—and it is being done—by many teachers, priests and ministers, artists, good parents, wise politicians and statesmen, and experienced business and professional leaders. There is plenty of proof that it can be accomplished, but it seldom is.

One of the great artists who has bridged the gap is Leonard Bernstein. Anyone who has watched the faces of the audiences in his concerts for young people will be convinced of that. A true artist can always attract young disciples who pay no attention to age in the presence of genius.

A dedicated teacher also knows how to eliminate the gap between young and older minds. And certain professions, such as politics and medicine, work out a balance between ages because they know it is necessary to gain the best results.

A man who was well over 70 died not long ago in my city, and it was surprising to hear many young men say with genuine sadness that they would miss him. They explained,

Between Adults and Teen-Agers?

"He was someone I could always talk to."

I remember him as a person of great dignity. He never forced his presence or his ideas on young people. But in a quiet way he was always ready with the protection and advice that youth so often wants.

In my own experience, I have seen again and again that many young people are almost wistful about wanting to be with older people at times and to join in their conversations. But they may not feel sure they would be welcome.

A college girl told me that the reason she liked her college so much was that the faculty talked to the students. "Not just about our work or grades," she said, "but about everything. And they never talk down to us."

One thing is certain: no one can bridge the age gap if he or she is putting on an act. There can be no pretense, or the effort will come to nothing. In middle life or old age, normal people do not enjoy many things that delight youth. If they pretend that they do, they only widen the gap.

An essential in making successful contacts with youth is to be your age. Show that you respect and like being as old as you are, and you have made a beginning.

I put my cards on the table one day with a teen-ager who was staying at my house. He was playing some records which were noisy and unmusical from my point of view. I asked him, "Do you really like that music, David?" He said, "Oh yes! Don't you?"

I could have lied to please him, to be on his side. But I didn't. I told him that I was too old to like it, that my ear was tuned to melody. He was very much interested in the difference in our reactions, and we talked about it for some time. The little discussion made us better friends, and I did not ask him to stop playing his records.

In addition to respecting your own age, you must respect the age on the other side of the gap. You must have sympathy and understanding of its habits and likings even if you cannot share them.

Young people are living in a world which does not offer them much protection, either mentally or physically. They are exposed to sights and stories of danger and lust. They hear and read of scandals and tragedies.

You cannot bridge the age gap if you pretend that such things do not exist. But you can talk them over. You can be persuasive in combating them if you gain a young person's confidence.

You will not cross the gap if you try to do it by angry protest. Nor if the company of the young bores you. They are very intuitive and will know whether you are doing something with them as a duty instead of a pleasure. If you are not at ease with those outside your age group, it's better not to waste everybody's time with false advances toward them.

But it has always been my experience that life has a better flavor when older and younger people meet occasionally. When I was a very young woman, I used to be asked quite often to dine with a group of much older people. I found the occasions delightful. The talk was interesting and at times profound. The dinners had more style and formality than those given by people of my own age. I was flattered at being invited.

Now in reverse, I ask younger people to my home when the occasion seems right. They usually like to come. But never do I feel or pretend that I am one of their group. I am bridging, not merging.

Age groups are inevitable and natural. But they should be friendly to each other, not hostile. There are homes where sympathy and understanding never give up and where freedom lives happily with discipline and good advice. A lucky few live in these homes.

But a man who has devoted his life to correctional work told me that there are boys and girls who cannot be reached, who will neither accept nor return the offered friendship of mature people. This is true, sad—and dangerous. It makes it more necessary to outnumber such young people with others for whom the gap between age groups has been bridged. ◆

I Learned to Fly a Copter— UNDER ENEMY FIRE!

His pilot and copilot were wounded, so this crewman in Vietnam took over the controls—for a harrowing flight

By Sp/4 ORVEL L. McKEE
as told to Jack Ryan

OUR HELICOPTER touched down in the secondary LZ (landing zone), and we waited to take aboard our infantrymen who'd just suffered a pretty tough mauling from Viet Cong a couple of hundred yards away.

But instead we found ourselves sitting there all alone—no GIs, no VC, just our idling chopper and us.

It was eerie. Moments before, at the original LZ, the Viet Cong had laid down so much fire that none of the four evacuation choppers could get in to rescue the platoon of First Cavalry. We'd gone into the secondary zone at the bottom of Chu Pong Mountain near the Cambodian border and had set our ship down without much trouble on the opposite side of a tree line from the beleaguered infantry and our other choppers.

As crewman, I was in the ship's cabin. The pilot and copilot, Warrant Officer Mickey Parent and 1st Lt. Hal J. Merriman, were in the cockpit. They were scanning the tree line, expecting the GIs to come through and clamber aboard—the quicker the better.

But seconds ticked by and nothing happened. We were getting edgy. Why the delay? The idea probably came to us all at the same time—the VC were nested in that tree line!

Right then the trees seemed to erupt with bursts of 50-caliber machine-gun fire. A second machine gun took us on an instant later. The helicopter rocked under the bullets' impact. I heard somebody yell: "I'm hit!" I looked up front to the cockpit and saw the Plexiglas windshield bursting open as slugs drove through it.

"Let's go!" Mr. Parent yelled.

The VC probably didn't know how close they were to a kill because they stopped firing as we lifted off. I figured it was all over. But as we rose above the tree line, the chopper faltered, then began slipping downward, right into the VCs' line of fire.

I realized the engine hadn't built up enough power to lift the ship to full flight. Up front, I saw Mr. Parent slumped to one side of his seat and Lt. Merriman as rigid as a statue beside him. I ran forward to see what was wrong. Mr. Parent's left arm and leg were shattered. Lt. Merriman had been shot three times, and his pale color and unfocused eyes told me he was in deep shock.

The collective lever on a chopper is what a pilot uses to build up sufficient rpms to power the craft upward. But it's on the left side, and Mr. Parent was paralyzed there. I reached over and grabbed the lever.

I'd never flown a helicopter, my job being to keep the UH-1D in flying order. But naturally I'd watched the pilot a lot, and now I was going to see whether I could apply what I'd observed.

The ship was sort of fluttering down like a scrap of paper. We were only about 20 feet off the ground when I jammed the collective lever down. That took the load off the engine for a moment, allowing it to build up rpms. Then, just as it seemed we were going to bump the ground hard, I yanked the lever up. The ship responded instantly, and we rose.

Nobody could say a word. Mr. Parent was bleeding badly and needed immediate help. I turned to Lt. Merriman and shook him against his seat. He looked dazed for a moment, then took in the situation and grabbed the controls.

I yanked some tourniquets out of first-aid kits aboard the Huey and strapped one around Mr. Parent's leg and another around his arm. He was losing consciousness fast. It takes muscle as well as deftness to control a helicopter, and Lt. Merriman was so weak from the loss of blood by now that he couldn't do much more than steady the foot pedals and levers.

I got Mr. Parent under the arms and lifted him back into the cabin. Then I sat in the pilot's cockpit and tried to remember everything—the collective stick for lift, and on it the twist grip to control the throttle; the cycle stick between my legs would move us in any direction; the pedals would turn the craft left or right. So much to coordinate! But Lt. Merriman could start the functioning if I could follow through.

It didn't matter at first. We had lost all orientation and had no idea where we were going. For a few desperate moments, I had visions of flying off, never to be seen again. Then another Huey hove into sight, and on the radio I heard: "Trouble? I see you weaving all around."

"Follow me," came the reply. I managed to get our ship on his tail, and we headed for Pleime about 10 minutes away.

I didn't have too much trouble during that time, but when the flight strip came in view and the guide chopper turned off to give us priority in landing, I realized the toughest job was ahead—getting us down in one piece.

I slacked off power on the collective stick, and we went down—fast. I wasn't going to try one of those nice touch-downs experienced pilots pull off. I would be happy if I could just slide our skids along the dirt runway. But working the pedals and the stick together was almost impossible, and I realized we were coming in at a wild tilt.

At the last minute, I got the left side down a little, and one skid tore into the dirt, then the other. We bounced, then smashed down. We were kicking up dust when the ship tilted forward, and I thought: Oh, oh, after all this, we're going to somersault! Instead, we rolled back and steadied. I had actually landed the darn thing!

I just sat there a moment till my cramped muscles loosened from the tension. Then I scrambled out and helped take Lt. Merriman from the ship. I laid him out on the ground and started to treat his three wounds. The medics got to us in about five minutes and rushed the two men to a field hospital. They both recovered.

The next thing I did was count bullet holes—26 of them. It took a month to patch up my chopper, but then she was flying again with a new pilot and copilot—but the same crew chief, me. I never piloted her again, though, nor cared to. ◆

Using Mixes in Creative Ways

MELANIE DE PROFT
Food Editor

In using mixes, it's important to follow directions on the package. But that doesn't rule out individuality. The way a homemaker incorporates mixes as ingredients in recipes can be a real challenge to the imagination. Here are recipes that make interesting use of a variety of mixes.

This pudding-type cake is a harmonious blend of cling peach slices and spiced cake mix.

Butterscotch Peach Cake

2 cans (1 lb. 13 oz. each) cling peach slices, drained
½ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 pkg. (about 1 lb. 2½ oz.) yellow cake mix
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 egg, fork beaten
½ cup melted butter or margarine

1. Reserve nine peach slices for garnish; chop remaining slices. Distribute chopped peaches over the bottom of a 13x9x2-in. baking pan. Sprinkle a mixture of nuts and brown sugar over peaches.

2. Blend pumpkin pie spice with cake mix in a bowl. Stir in egg and melted butter or margarine until just blended, but not smooth (batter will be very thick). Completely cover peach mixture with batter.

3. Bake at 375°F. about 35 min., until browned. Cool cake in pan on wire rack.

4. To serve, cut into pieces, spoon into dessert dishes. Top each serving with a dollop of whipped dessert topping and reserved peach slice (see photo). About 9 servings

Si Si Pastries

A south-of-the-border appetizer

1 can (4½ oz.) deviled ham
¼ cup tomato sauce
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped celery
½ teaspoon chili powder
Pastry for a 1-crust pie (use a prepared mix)
Yellow cornmeal

1. Thoroughly blend the first five ingredients. Cover and chill.

2. Prepare pastry and roll very thin using cornmeal instead of flour for rolling. Cut pastry into twenty 3-in. rounds.

3. Spoon about a tablespoon of the chilled deviled ham mixture onto each round. Moisten half the edge of each round with water. Fold pastry in half and press edges together with a fork to seal. Place on an ungreased baking sheet.

4. Bake at 425°F. 10 to 12 min., or until golden brown. Serve immediately.

Creamy Onion-Vegetable Soup

Stir 1 envelope or can (about 1½ oz.) dry onion soup mix and 1 envelope or can (about 2 oz.) dry vegetable soup mix into 4 cups boiling water in a saucepan. Partially cover; simmer 15 min., stirring occasionally. Stir in 2 cups cream. Heat (do not boil), stirring occasionally. Serve garnished with snipped parsley. If desired, season to taste with seasoned black pepper. Accompany with assorted crackers or snack foods. About 6 servings

Double Corn Bread

3 medium onions, quartered and thinly sliced
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 pkg. corn muffin mix
1 can (8¾ oz.) cream-style corn
½ cup dairy sour cream
¾ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Cook the onion in hot butter or margarine in a 9x9x2-in. baking pan until onion is soft but not brown; stir occasionally. Remove onion from pan with slotted spoon; set aside.

2. Prepare the muffin mix as directed on the package, substituting the corn for the milk. Turn the batter into the pan and spread evenly to edges.

3. Spoon onion over batter, cover with sour cream, and sprinkle with cheese.

4. Bake at 425°F. 30 to 35 min. Cut into squares. About 9 servings

Peppermint-Chocolate Frozen Dessert

1 cup chocolate-wafer crumbs
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 pkg. (2 oz.) dessert topping mix
½ cup coarsely crushed peppermint-stick candy
1 cup miniature marshmallows

1. Turn crumbs into a bowl. Blend in sugar and butter or margarine. Using back of spoon, press crumb mixture firmly into an even layer on bottom of an 8x8x2-in. pan.

2. Prepare dessert topping mix according to package directions, using 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Fold in peppermint candy and marshmallows. Turn into prepared pan and spread evenly to corners. Freeze until firm, about 3 hours.

3. Allow to thaw slightly before serving. Top with shaved unsweetened chocolate or chopped nuts. About 8 servings

Peanut Butter Chocolate Fudge

Melt ¼ cup cream-style peanut butter, 4 tablespoons water, and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in the top of a double boiler over boiling water; stir to blend. Add 1 pkg. (12 to 14 oz.) chocolate-fudge-flavored frosting mix and stir until smooth. Heat 5 min., stirring occasionally. Remove from water and stir in ½ cup chopped cocktail peanuts and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Turn into a greased 8x8x2-in. pan; spread evenly to edges. Let stand until firm. Cut into squares.

About 1¼ lbs. fudge

Tall Man In or Out of the Saddle

Big-hearted, big-fisted John Wayne has battled cancer as if he were out to whup the Apaches

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

TWO YEARS AGO John Wayne underwent chest surgery for incipient cancer.

He could have kept quiet about it. It might have been the smart thing to do for the sake of his career.

Why didn't he? "Because I know how much hope my recovery could bring to many poor devils in the same fix, that's why," Wayne told me. "I wanted to encourage people to get regular checkups. That's how I found out I had cancer. I had a few weeks off, and my wife Pilar kept after me to get my checkup over with. That's when they found the spot on my lung."

That was two years ago. So I asked him, "How are you feeling?"

He rapped his knuckles on the wooden desk in his trailer dressing room. "So far, so good," he said. "But it takes five years to be sure. Meanwhile, every day I thank the Good Lord for being alive!

"Until such a thing happens to you," he went on, "you never know how good it feels just to get up every morning to see the sun. And I've never been closer to my family."

This was a far cry from the man who used to prefer carousing with his buddies to almost any other kind of activity.

In some ways, the "new" Wayne is more subdued, more mature. In others, he goes overboard to show that he can still keep up with anyone. "I had to make sure that no one thought my operation got me down," he said with a grin. After the surgery he jumped back to work with an enormous fervor.

Wayne's temper has mellowed, too. "Don't get me wrong," he said. "A temper can be useful in my profession. I keep remembering a story my father told me when I was a boy about the mule skinner who always treated his critter kindly—but only after he first hit him with a club to show him who was boss."

There is no doubt in anyone's mind who is calling the shots on any Batjac (John Wayne's company) production. "The War Wagon" was a coproduction between Batjac and ex-publicist Marvin Schwartz, with Burt Kennedy hired as director. Yet Wayne himself was running the show from the first day to the last. One day, for instance, the director seemed quite satisfied with a shot, when Wayne said, "Let's do one more." After it was done, Wayne announced, "That's it." And it was.

Today everything Wayne does seems deliberate and well thought out. Yet in spite of the fear for his life, there is nothing frantic about this man who believes in God, in old-fashioned principles, and in very conservative politics.

Politics is still one subject that will draw him into an argument. "I was always good at debating," he said with a smile. "My first ambition was to become a lawyer."

Wayne's careful allocation of time filters down even to his leisure activities. They usually consist of fishing or boarding his 136-foot converted minesweeper with his family and cruising up and down the coast of California. "For me, this is the best way to relax. I leave all cares behind. On the boat, I sleep like a rock."

But there isn't much time for this any more. Wayne, who will be 60 on May 26, is more in demand for pictures than ever. And when he had more than a few days off, as he did about a year ago, he took off to entertain troops in Vietnam.

"Why did you exhaust yourself like that?" I asked. "You don't sing or dance. What could you do?"

"I visited the guys in the foxholes. Just small groups. I shook hands, and we talked. They've known me all their lives, so I went to say hello and tell them I was with them all the way."

"In everything he does, he's become more of a participant than I've ever seen him," a friend had told me. "Some guys were throwing a ball around the other day. He just had to get in the game—maybe simply to show that he could keep up with the rest of them. Some days he participates in horseplay like a seven-year-old kid."

Wayne may be concerned about his health. He may be growing older and balder, he may have to wear a scarf to hide the wrinkles on his neck, but men still envy his virility and women still are awed by his sex appeal.

He is still the legendary cowboy, maybe the last one still around. "And I try to live up to this image in life. Straight thinking, living by a code—whatever the code is—and sticking to it." ◆

ACCESSORIES: THE ARTFUL FACTS

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

FASHION PUNDITS have long broadcast that accessories make the woman—but the big bugaboo for many a female has been how to cultivate the art of wearing them. You can wear bracelets en masse, for instance, if they are similar in texture or mood. (This season jewelry boasts several influences, from space-age plastic—as seen on the cover—to rich heirloom motifs.) You can discard your huge satchel bag in favor of smaller, multigusseted envelope shapes that when opened provide easily accessible sectioned space. You can become a part of the new fashion scene without feeling like a hipster—by latching onto subtly patterned hosiery in bright or pastel shades; a brilliant silk jacket (see cover) or a generous-size print scarf to enliven a vintage linen dress; the new rounded or squared shoe with a decidedly low heel that looks better with raised hemlines; an accent of vinyl in your wardrobe, whether it be a sou'wester or a bold-colored umbrella to rev up rainwear; cut-out gloves in white cotton, which make more sense than nonsense in warmer weather; and a "must" accessory (even if you've never dared), an inexpensive synthetic wiglet, matched to your hair color, to get your locks through the straggly days or for that gala evening. Whatever accessory you choose, remember the total effect you're going to create. It's the look from top to toe that makes points.

The British Miracle That Creates

IN THE GARDEN—IN THE HOUSE

Yes! From the greatest gardening nation on earth — England — comes a fantastic discovery! Developed by Britain's leading gardener — winner of the famed Victoria Medal for horticulture! Already used today by OVER THREE MILLION British gardeners! And now released to you — through this advertisement only — to try in your own garden WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

Think of it! Here is a gardening development that almost defies belief! It is a CONCENTRATED GROWTH FORMULA, prepared in the form of tiny pellets! It costs only pennies per treatment! And even a child can drop them in the ground in as little as ten seconds.

But once these tiny pellets are placed near the roots of your starved plants, they perform a scientific miracle that has been every gardener's dream for centuries! They SLOWLY . . . AUTOMATICALLY feed your plants the life-giving nutrients they need — CONCENTRATED RIGHT AT THE ROOTS OF THESE PLANTS — POURING LIFE-GIVING ENERGY INTO THE VERY HEART OF THOSE PLANTS — DAY AFTER DAY — THROUGH EVERY VITAL STAGE OF THEIR GROWTH!

Just picture this breathtaking scene to yourself. The first result you will notice — almost immediately — is that these amazing English pellets give your plants a tremendous new burst of growth! Whether your plants are new or old — they send out dozens of hidden shoots and buds! Some of your plants may actually DOUBLE in height and breadth in the very first month!

But this is just the beginning! Within one or two short weeks — without you even touching your plant these amazing pellets AUTOMATICALLY aid your plants in the second vital stages of its growth! Automatically — still more wonder-working nutrients enter into every cell of your plants' bodies—fill those cells with health and strength and sturdiness and wonderful new resistance to disease and pests! Great, tall stems stand up with military precision! Giant buds begin to swell with vigor and vitality! Even tired old shrubs that you had almost given up for lost — begin to straighten out — fatten up — send out the young green growth that you had never hoped to see again!

And then — the most remarkable part of all! When these fantastically beautiful plants have reached their full glorious height and strength, simply drop another Magic Pellet next to them! These tiny English pellets automatically liberate still more wonder-working ingredients! These final concentrated stimulants pour into your roots — carried up through the stems and trunks and branches of your plants — are finally delivered to the great giant flower buds at the top of those plants.

And when those precious ingredients reach those ripe buds — THEN YOU WILL BE BLINDED BY THE EXPLOSION OF COLOR THAT GREETS YOU IN YOUR GARDEN!

Flowers So Beautiful You Can Hardly Believe Your Eyes!

Yes! When you follow this Streeter plan, you will walk through that garden as though you were in a dream! You will see rose bushes weighed down by masses of blossoms, of a richness and perfume and color that you have never imagined before! You will walk past solid, blazing rows of chrysanthemums so thick that you can't even see a leaf in between! You will see dahlias, and asters, and gladiolus and zinnias so massive, so exquisite, so breathtakingly beautiful that you hardly believe that they are the same plants that you put into the ground. And when your neighbors begin to pour into your yard — when you watch them bend and touch these flowers to see if they are real — THEN YOU WILL KNOW A FEELING OF GARDEN ACCOMPLISHMENT AND PRIDE THAT YOU MAY NEVER HAVE DREAMED OF BEFORE!

A housewife from Kent, England, who raises her own vegetables. This cabbage — grown with Streeter's Pellets — weighs sixteen pounds. She can hardly lift it. But this is the proudest day of her life!

NOW 200,000 PROVEN IN ~~100,000~~ AMERICAN GARDENS

"Enclosed pictures show sun flower eleven feet high, with a twenty-eight inch flower head. I didn't heed your warning about dwarf plants however, and experimented with an indoor Rex Begonia. To my surprise and amazement of others we saw a Rex-Begonia of such monstrous size."
— G.E.F., San Royal, Calif.

"This squash was 7½ inches across, 22¾ inches around, and 3½ inches thick. I have never seen such a huge squash before—the results were unbelievable."
— Mrs. D.D.F., Houston, Texas

"Your claims for the Magic English Pellets are not exaggerated one bit as far as bulbs, flowering shrubs and roses are concerned. I have not yet tried the pellets on vegetables, but would expect the same results. I was raised in a nursery and have had considerable experience with shrubs and roses. Your product is the best fertilizer I have ever used. It is much more economical than liquid or solid fertilizers now on the market." — C.A.S., Augusta, Kans.

"Enclosing a snapshot of a cabbage I raised last year with the use of two of your Magic Pellets, and it weighs twelve pounds. My roses, snapdragons, flags, tomatoes, dahlias were the largest and most colorful and beautiful in the block. All the neighbors made a path to my flower garden to see what wonders were being formed and my garden was the topic of this block. I shared my pellets with my friends and their flowers that were almost dead came to life."
— Mrs. S.H.D., Nashville, Tenn.

"My zinnias grew six feet high, the blooms were bigger than tea saucers. I had marigolds bigger than teacups, they grew six feet tall; everyone came to see them." — Mrs. C.M., Cartersville, Ga.

"I never saw anything in my life do so much good. I had the most beautiful roses in town last summer, and my mums were just covered with blooms. I had to pinch them back more than usual but they were the talk of the town — I sold so many."
—Mrs. L.C., St. Charles, Mo.

"Two of my rose bushes died all the way to the crown — I put these pellets around them and now they came back to life and are growing new stems. I also put some pellets around in row of hollies and they grew twice their size in just one season."
— Mrs. P.P., Shreveport, La.

"I have no garden now and use your tablets only for house plants. My African violets have been a mass of blossoms for months. The strawberry plant is growing like a weed, and another violet which did nothing for a long time is developing flower buds now." — A.M.R., Buffalo, N.Y.

"I am five feet two inches and our gladiolus towered above me and they were the most beautiful ones I have ever seen, and I know what garden beauty is because I am from Durham, England, and before my father's death he won many trophies in flower shows, but my flowers and tomatoes outdid anything I have ever seen after using your pellets."
— Mrs. J.M., Tiluria, Ala.

How to Stay Young till 90

Designed to give you the look of a youngster past 60 . . . the strength and power of a trained athlete beyond your seventies . . . in vibrant good health till 90 and more — here is one of the simplest and gentlest, and yet truly revolutionary, anti-aging medical programs ever invented by the mind of man.

CLEMENT G. MARTIN, M.D.

To repeat once again, the goals of this program are simple. They are, in essence:

1. To give you the look of a youngster, in both face and body, far past sixty . . .
2. To keep you in top condition—to give you the drive and power of a trained athlete beyond your seventies . . . and
3. To give you every possible chance of continuing in this vibrant good health till ninety, and more.

The methods this program uses to achieve these goals are equally simple—and, again, surprisingly gentle. They are:

1. A series of one-or-two minute-a-day exercises for your face—designed to combat premature wrinkles and restore the smooth, sharp outlines of youth.
2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid. This attack on these poisons consists of a series of exhilarating new exercises which take as little as three minutes a day—half of which time you spend resting.
3. A new way to lose weight—not a diet—designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in 24 to 48 hours. And to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends. And
4. A series of surprising, and sometimes actually startling, solutions to your most serious everyday health problems — including fatigue, hypertension, indigestion, high blood pressure, and much, much more.

This, then, is the look-younger, feel-better, live-longer program that you can prove to yourself—beyond doubt—without risking a penny. Now let us look at its medical background, and the specific day-by-day benefits it is designed to give you:

Written by One of America's Foremost Physicians, It Opens Up Whole New Worlds of Prolonged Youth, Health and Vitality — Past 90 — that You May Never Have Dreamed Existed Before.

The fascinating new volume which gives you these benefits is titled: How to Stay Young All Your Life. It is the result of fifteen years of meticulous research, and three additional years of intensive writing and re-writing. It is so completely up-to-date that some of the principles revealed in it were not discovered until a few short months ago.

Its author is Clement G. Martin, M.D., F.A.G.S., F.A.C.N. As you may know, Dr. Martin is former medical director of two of the largest insurance companies in the United States, where he specialized in geriatric research—the science of prolonging youth, strength, health, and life—far beyond their present limits.

Over eight years ago, in conjunction with his state medical society, Dr. Martin published a pamphlet based on this research. The response was so overwhelming that he then expanded this information into a book — called How to Live to be 100 — which immediately soared to the top of the best-seller lists, and sold over 100,000 hard-cover copies in the first two years alone.

But now medical science has gone beyond mere longevity alone! Now it is possible—not only to add up to twenty or thirty or forty more healthy years to your life . . . not only to help you ward off the disease of middle and old age that cripple your friends . . , but, in case after case, to actually restore the appearance and energy and bursting vitality and strength of youth itself to your body—and maintain that youthful drive and appearance far past your seventies and eighties!

All the Myths About "Old Age" — Shattered at Last.

This new book, therefore, begins immediately with case histories that prove this fact beyond doubt. In the first few pages alone, you are introduced to:

The American "town without heart disease." Where the inhabitants eat too much, enjoy food that's "rich" in every sense of the term, are overweight, party around, stay up late — but simply don't have heart attacks. (The reason why will astound you.)

The 101-year-old roué, who still eats mountains of spaghetti, washes it down with wine, and loves his sweets.

The amazing French beauty who first invented exercises to preserve the look of youthfulness in the human face. Men worshipped her at eighty. Her figure and her face were as dazzling at 79 as they were at 19. She died, still outwardly in the bloom of youth, past 90.

The American businessman who watched his body become prematurely old and finally collapse of ill health at the age of 50. Who decided to rejuvenate himself though he could hardly stand, through a scientific study of longevity. By the time he was 73 he had regained his youth—his face as smooth, his body as slim and hard as a youngster's. Photographs in this book prove these statements beyond doubt—see them yourself!

And much, much more. Probably the most fascinating reading of your entire life. But it's only the prologue to the real meat of this revolutionary new book. For now the life-saving, health-giving, youth-restoring principles learned in this world-wide medical research are put to work—instantly—for you. To give you results, literally overnight, that will have your friends begging you to tell them the secret!

For example:

What is the price of Renewed Youth and Vitality? As Little as Five Exhilarating Minutes Every Day.

First, you start to peel off years from your appearance:

On page 35, you learn the one-second prescription that automatically causes you to stand more erect (no, you don't have to pull in your stomach, but the results are startling nevertheless).

On page 124, you're given six-second facial exercises . . . wrinkle exercises . . . bags-under-the-eye and age-line exercises . . . that Dr. Martin recommends for every man, as well as woman, who wants people to gasp in astonishment when you tell them your real age.

On page 144, you're shown how the way you eat may contribute as much or more to your overweight problem as the actual foods you eat. And then on page 150, you're given the medically-proven, fastest-possible way to lose excess pounds. Again, this is not a diet at all. And the greater your excess weight, the faster this method works.

But this is just the beginning. Now you go on to tap vast new stores of strength, endurance and energy, like this:

On page 35, you're shown the scientific secret (time to learn; 10 seconds; time to perform; 3 seconds), that guarantees you will sit properly—and therefore cut your desk fatigue in half.

On page 42, you're shown how to "relax yourself ahead". Develop the grace under pressure that marks the champion athlete, and the champion executive. Outstrip your less well-informed competitors who tear themselves to pieces in the mistaken belief that they can win through pressure, anxiety and tension. Keep going at full speed when they're wilting around you like dead flowers.

On page 58, you're shown how you can cleanse your internal organs (your heart, lungs and blood stream) of tension and fatigue in as little as three minutes a day. Try this tomorrow night when you come home bone-weary from work—when you're wound up tight as a drum—and see for yourself how it pumps so much new energy back into your system that you can out-dance your teenage son till two A.M.

Yes, and on page 118, you'll learn how Dr. Martin recommends as little as only 1½ minutes of basic exercise every [illegible] too much to ask from you to obtain new pro[illegible] from heart attacks, now youthfulness, new vitality every single day of your life!

QUIPS AND QUOTES

I've been reading advice columns in the newspapers for many years, and the way I figure it, the happiest man in the world must be Mr. Abby.

—Robert Orben

"Well," said the old-timer, "if I had to do it all over again, I'd marry a girl I knew in Japan. She was pretty, graceful, obedient—and my mother-in-law would have lived in Yokohama."

—Lucille J. Goodyear

Then there was the woman who bought one of those new paper dresses—and then promptly insisted on a later edition.

—Herm Albright

A Boy Scout found a wallet with considerable money in it. The owner's address was shown in the wallet, and the Scout, accompanied by his little brother, returned it.

"You're an honest lad," the owner said. "Here's a $5 bill."

"No," said the youth. "I couldn't accept money for doing a good deed—I'm a Scout."

As the man started putting away his $5, the youth added, "Of course, my brother isn't."

—Frances Benson

"I think I saw your wife downtown yesterday," a friend said. "She was trying to park her car between two big trucks."

"Did she make it?" the husband asked nervously.

"Yes."

—Lou Goddard

"And the worst part is that my kite is still up in the tree!"

KEVIN the BOLD

KREIGH COLLINS

HENRICK VAN DER LAAN, EMINENT DUTCH BURGOMASTER, HAS HEARD OF A MAN WHO HOLDS INCRIMINATING PAPERS WHICH THREATEN HIS GOOD NAME.

YOU SAY THIS IRISHMAN JOINED THAT BAND OF LOWLAND HEROES CALLED "THE BEGGARS OF THE SEA?"

JA! AND WHILE IN THIS SERVICE HE OBTAINED THESE --AHEM-- FORGED DOCUMENTS PURPORTING TO PROVE THAT I, VAN DER LAAN, WAS IN THE PAY OF THE SPANIARDS!

MY PATRIOTISM IS BEYOND REPROACH!

I THINK TREASON IS THE WORD. HE SOLD HIMSELF FOR A HIGH PRICE AND HE'LL PAY A LOT TO SAVE HIS COWARDLY HIDE!

OOOOO

YOU ASK US TO DO A MESSY CHORE --TO KILL A MAN...

REGARD IT AS AN EXECUTION. SUCH MEN ARE DANGEROUS I WANT PROOF OF HIS DEMISE AND I'LL PAY WELL!

A SCOUNDREL! I LOATHE SUCH MEN!

AH, BUT YOU LOVE THEIR GOLD!

HOW DO WE FIND THIS KEVIN?

I HAVE HIS LONDON ADDRESS. WE'LL SEND HIM WORD THAT A CHUM OF HIS "BEGGAR" DAYS WISHES TO SEE HIM --IN SOME SMALL ENGLISH PORT!

SOME WEEKS LATER IN LARKS, ENGLAND.

YOU EXPECT ME TO TAKE CHARGE OF THE SEAPORT INN --ALONE, FATHER?

YOU'LL HAVE TO, LASS. I MUST BE AWAY A FEW DAYS.

YOU CAN START NOW. THERE ARE TWO HOLLANDERS WHO WANT ROOM AND BOARD.

I GUESS YOU KNOW YOU DROVE THROUGH A "STOP" SIGN.

YES, SIR!

© 1967 by NEA, Inc.

WHY DIDN'T YOU STOP?

I TRIED TO, BUT MY BRAKES DIDN'T HOLD.

ARE YOU SURE YOU TRIED TO STOP?

YES, SIR. I PUSHED THE BRAKE PEDAL AS HARD AS I COULD.

THEN WHY DIDN'T THE CAR STOP?

I GUESS MY BRAKES NEED TO BE RELINED.

4-30

HOW HARD DID YOU PUSH ON THE PEDAL?

IT FELT LIKE MY FOOT WENT CLEAR THROUGH THE FLOORBOARD.

WHICH FOOT WERE YOU USING?

THIS ONE.

DO-IT SODA STRAW LOOM

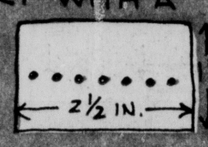
HERE'S AN EASY WAY TO WEAVE YOUR OWN BELT

1. CUT 2 PIECES OF CARDBOARD AND PUNCH HOLES ¼ IN. APART WITH A KNITTING NEEDLE



2. THREAD A 60 IN. LONG PIECE OF HEAVY YARN THROUGH EACH HOLE ... SUCK EACH PIECE OF YARN INTO A 4 IN. LONG SECTION OF SODA STRAW

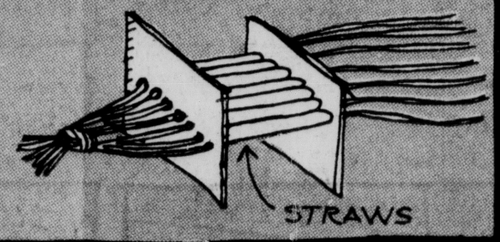
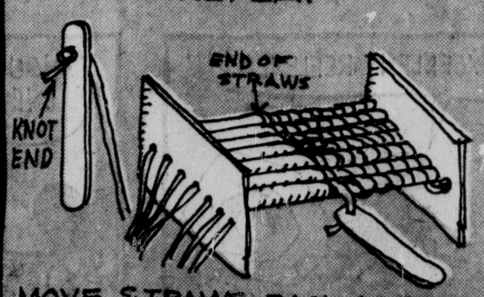
3. THREAD YARN THROUGH HOLES IN SECOND CARD



4. PUNCH A HOLE IN ONE END OF A FROZEN SUCKER STICK ... PUSH YARN THROUGH HOLE... WEAVE OVER AND UNDER STRAWS... PULL YARN EVENLY... PUSH IT BACK AND REPEAT



MOVE STRAWS BACK AS YOU WEAVE... SLIP THEM OFF WHEN FINISHED

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—When entertaining guests with children for dinner I place an inexpensive prettily wrapped gift in front of each place setting (perhaps a toy car for a child or golf tees for a grownup). Everyone seems pleased and a gay conversation always starts which is especially good when the guests are not close friends.—BARBARA

DEAR POLLY---My helpful hint is for travelers who find the stoppers missing in motel or hotel bath tubs or wash basins. A plastic bag filled with water or a crumpled piece of plastic put in the top of the drain will make a wonderful stopper.---MRS. E. D. B.

DEAR POLLY—Use a tea cup instead of a bowl when spoon-feeding baby. The handle is easier to grasp and saves many a broken dish.—JEAN

DEAR POLLY---Wear an apron with large pockets when cutting out a dress or any garment. As you cut, the discarded bits of fabric and pattern can be put in the pockets. This saves picking up after the job.---MRS. N. R. N.

(Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.)

DEAR POLLY---I save the caps from shampoo and other bottles and when my seven-year-old son takes a bath or shower I fill one of these caps with shampoo and place on the tub or near the shower. He is able to shampoo his hair without spilling, wasting it or breaking the shampoo bottle.---ESTHER

DEAR POLLY—Needed space on your closet shelves can be found if you put your out-of-season hats in large bags, which are fastened as high as you can reach on the closet wall with gummed plastic tape.—ADA

DEAR POLLY---To keep the lid of my step-on garbage pail from slapping and marring my nice birch-paneled wall, I fastened a soap holder, called an "octopus," to the top of the lid. It works wonderfully.---RUTH

DEAR POLLY—Your nylon net scored again. When making a batch of grape jelly I found I had no jelly cloth for straining the fruit. I did have some nylon net and it worked like a charm. I washed and dried the net, it was as white as before. —A REGULAR READER

DEAR POLLY---With six youngsters Mother hasn't time to listen to the recipes on her favorite "homemaker" show. So she turns on the tape recorder. When she is not so busy, she copies down the recipes, knowing they'll be right.---KRIS
